The Young Rector Reproved.

Late in a November day, a very smart young gentleman drove up to the gate and inquired for the rector. The domest he was seated in was extremely stylish. The horse he drove was a splendid animal; full blood, and a fast trotter. The knowing groom who sat beside him was equipped in a sprucc livery; and altogether, it was a turn-out. The new arrival sent in his card "The Rev. Mr.,——, ——Rectory." Mr. Turner was suffering from one of his sick headaches; had been very poorly all day; and would fain pleaded illness and declined seeing visitors. But Mrs. Turner, always eager to do good, and on the watch to seize opportunities replied, "Oh I pray see him. He is the new Rector of——. It is a very important post.—He is quite young and inexperienced; and you may possibly be of use to him. Pray see him, if only for five minutes." Mr.—— was admitted. He had a great deal to say about his living; and, contrary to all expectation, holding a benefice worth at least £700 per annum, pictured himself as a martyr. He wound up a long and heavy catalogue of woes by the speculation, "The truth is, I'm sold; regularly and fearfully sold." There was a pause. Mrs. Turner eyed him with a perplexed and mournful air, while her husband's speaking countenance wore an expression which I could translate at a glance. "Your people are, indeed notable!" Mr.—— continued: "My parish contains only a few; horny-handed and stony-faced wretches: but I keep such fellows at a distance. I have nothing and will have nothing to do with beings hardly human." Another pause, broken at length by Mr. Turner's repeating, entre nous, but very distinctly: "Instant in season and out of season, doing the work of Evangelist." I rashly thought, looking at the young rector, the tone in which this verse was uttered would startle him, if unobservant of the warning which the admonition itself conveyed. I was wrong. He proceeded: "I am now to be visited by the most abominable annoyance. The working classes in my parish have a vile, horrid association, which they call a club; and they propose to come to church on their anniversary, Thursday week, by the bye, and have requested me to preach to them. That follows in more atrocious still. On this occasion they've a dinner. And they've actually had the face to send me a formal request that I will sit down to meat with them.—Fancy, just fancy, Mr. Turner, my sitting down to eat and drink with a vile and vulgar mob, a rabble of that description!" "Well! I can hardly fancy it," said Mr. Turner, with an involuntary smile. "Receiving my commission direct direct from the great head of the Church, I am sensible, though these clouds cannot perceive it, of distance, the break, the chasm, the gulf, which seperates the clergy from the laity." "Oh!" "And then for these creatures, this rabble, to imagine that I can be their table companion! that I can sit down to meat with them! Ah! I see by your countenance the extent of your surprise. You cannot reconcile to yourself such presumption? No more can I! But to it once! Such an outrage will never be submitted to. Never! never! I thought I should amaze you." "You have, unquestionably." "Yes! its no common difficulty, but I've surmounted it." "I was thinking of an other far greater.—You say," continued Mr. Turner, speaking slowly and very distinctly, "that you have had your commission from the head of the great church. Agreed. Now your chief, your leader, your master, had his life-long characteristic, humility. He made himself of no reputation, that he might raise us to heavenly honors. He, to pour just contempt on human pride, had his first night's lodging in a stable, and spent his last night partly in an igoominious confinement, exposed to the greatest indignities. He rested his infant head upon hay, his dying head upon thorns. A manger was his cradle, and a cross his death-bed. Thirty years he traveled from the cordial stable to the accursed tree. Shepherds were his first attendants, and malefactors his last companions." I never saw a young man more thoroughly nonplussed or more thoroughly exasperated. He jumped on his legs; would not trust himself to speak; made three stately bows, and bolted. Nor would he open his lips again. No reply, either to Mr. Turner's kind farewell, or to my, a neutral party, civil adieu. He silently signalled his smart attendant; took his seat in the dennet with cheeks of crimson indignation; threw a glance of utter horror at the rectory as he passed it; and was off at tangent.—Rev. Erskine Neal's Summer and Winter of the Soul.

NOT ENVIABLE LODGINGS.—Is this you Thaminas? Man you'er no muckled changed since I left you twenty years past to gang a sodgering!" "It's just me, David; a wee little changed for the better I fear." "what are ye doing, man?" "Just gaun through life wi' my feet on the treddles as when ye left. I'm married too, like the rest o' the world." "Are ye! and what gat ye, man to dribble the cares of the world wi'?" "Do ye mind a weaver they ca'd Satan; for fo'k in Paisley, are scarcely kent by the name in the parish books?" "Brawly do I mind Satan mony a gill bae I had wi' him." "Weel I'm married to the Deil's douchter, we're just stopping wi' the auld fo'k!"—From a ride on the Rail with the Laird of Lo an.

The other day 'in Schenectady, an old lady with two handboxes in her arms came to the track of the Central Railroad and inquired at what time the next train was due. On being informed that it would pass through the city in half an hour, she quietly dumped her handboxes on the pavement and sat down, remarking that "she'd wait till it passed; she didn't want to be run over, and a body couldn't be too keerful."

A man who had brutally assaulted his wife was brought before justice Kavanaugh, of New York, lately and had a good deal to say about "getting justice." "Justice," replied Kavanaugh, "you can't get it here. This court has no power to hang you."

"I never did see such a wind and such a storm," said a man in a coffee-room. "And pray Sir," inquired a would be wit "once you saw the wind and the storm, who might their color be?" "The wind blew and the storm rose," was the ready rejoinder.

The venerable lady of a celebrated physician, one day casting her eye out of the window, observed her husband in the funeral procession of one his patients, at which she exclaimed: "I do wish my husband would keep away from such processions; it appears to much like a tailor carrying home his work.

A dandy, smoking a cigar, having entered a menagerie, the proprietor requested him to take the weed from his mouth, "lest he should teach the other monkeys bad habits."

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy and Conditine Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; it is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

Advice to Young Men.

A lady, who signs herself "A Martyr to late hours," offers the sensible suggestions to young men:—

Dear gentleman, between ages of "eighteen and fortyfive," listen to a few words of gratuitous remarks. When you make a social call of an evening, as a young lady, go way at a reasonable hour. Say you come at 8 o'clock, an hour and a half is certainly as long as the most fascinating of you in conversation can, or rather ought, to desire to use he charms. Two hours, indeed, can be very pleasantly spent with music, chess, or other games, to lead variety; but, kind sirs, by no means stay longer. Make shorter calls and come oftener. A girl—that is a sensible, true-hearted girl—will enjoy it better, and really value your acquaintance more. Just conceive the agony of a girl who, well knowing the feelings of a father and mother upon the subjects, hears clock strike ten, and yet sit on the edge of her chair, in mortal terror lest papa should put his oft repeated threat in execution—that of coming down and inviting the gentleman to breakfast. And we girls understand it all by experience, and know what it is to dread the prognostic of displeasure. In such cases a sigh of relief generally accompanies the closing of the door behind the gallant, and one don't get over the feelings of trouble till safe in the arms of Morpheus. Even then, sometimes the dreams are troubled with some phantom of angry father and distressed [for all parties] mother; and all because a young man will make a longer call than he ought to.

Now, gentlemen friends, I'll tell you what we girls will do. For an hour and half we will be most irresistibly charming and fascinating; then beware monosyllable responses will be all you need expect. And if, when the limits shall have been past, a startling query shall be heard coming down stairs: "Isn't it time to close up?" you must consider it a righteous punishment, and taking your hat, meekly depart a sadder, and, it is to be hoped, a wiser man. Do not get so angry; but the next time you come, be careful to keep within bounds. We want to rise early these pleasant morning, and improve the "shining hours;" but when forced to be up at such unreasonable hours at night, exhausted nature will speak, and as a natural consequence, with the utmost speed in dressing, we can barely get down to breakfast in time to escape a reprimand from papa, who don't believe in beaux—reproving glances from mamma, who understands a little her poor daughter's feelings, but still must disapprove outwardly, to keep up appearance. And now, young men, think about these things, and don't—for pity's sake, don't—throw down your paper with a "I shaw I" but remember safe side of tea.

WINTER STOCK.

Live stock of all kinds should be looked to daily; they should be fed and watered with the regularity of a clock. The card, brush and curry comb will if frequently used not only promote health and cleanliness and effect a great saving of fodder. While at the same time the paradox of sharpened appetites will be observed. A well cleaned ox, whose skin has its pores thoroughly opened twice a week by the friction of the brush and card feels better and will eat coarser food with better relish than an uncleaned one and eat it cleaner and it will do him more good. All kinds of stock should have salt before them so that their natural craving may be stisfied. Salt and ashes is a good mixture, and a few sods thrown where the animal can work them over will be mumbled and chewed with a relish which makes it evident that it is no unnatural appetite but that they get something which the pastures would supply in summer, and which their system need equally in the winter.

Horses.—We do not believe in keeping horses as warm as other stock in the winter. Always rub down and blanket one that comes in wet and tired. Never expose a horse to drafts of air, nor let him stand in the wind if it can be helped and if obliged to leave horses in the wind always blanket them. In the stable pull off the blanket soon after a horse is cooled off. A horse ought to have a good portion of hay daily. High feeding without it gives him a nester barrel but it is unnatural diet and of of course less healthful. The good grooming and regular care and exercise of city horses and those fed in the same way make good in a measure, the defects of this diet, which farmers' horses, that live on dry hay corn stalks the winter through, and are only brushed off a little, to get the hay seeds out of their foretops, Sundays remains healthy (if they do) on account of their more natural late.

Cows.—Do not dry off for the mere sake of saving labor. It is injurious to the milking qualities of both the cows and their female offspring. The milk giving tendency should be encouraged to the utmost if milk is an object with the feeder. Feed well whether cows are in milk or dry.

Young cattle should be maintained constantly growing, and not exposed to the weather, simply for the sake of economy of fodder and the production of manure. We have repeatedly said pine lumber is a great deal cheaper than hay as a means of warming stock, for fodder is little besides fuel, to maintain the internal heat to exposed animals.

Sheep.—Feed so as keep them gaining; if fattening, feed pretty freely being careful that none get to much, and none too little grain. A sheep overfed a few days is apt to get seriously off its feed and run back so that it will hardly recover its former stand all winter. Litter the yard freely.—'American Agriculturist.'

Butter may be made in winter as well as in June, but will not be quite so good. The milk must be kept where it will not freeze, and where it will not absorb smokey or other flavors from the kitchen.

Farm Proverbs.

Do not keep more live stock on your farm than you can keep well.

House all things as much as possible animals, utensils and crops.

Sell when you get a fair price, and do not store for rats and speculators.

The more comfortable you can keep your animals the more they will thrive.

A good cow is a profitable machine the more food she properly digests, the greater the profit.

A Methodist minister in Kansas, living on a small salary, was greatly troubled to get his quarterly instalment. He at last told the non-paying trustees that he must have the money, as he was suffering for the necessaries of life. "Money!" replied the trustees, you preach for money! We thought you preached for the good of souls!" "Souls" responded the reverend, "I can't eat souls—and if I could, it would take a thousand such souls as yours to make a meal!"

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything been so widely and universally relied upon for the cure of the various affections of the throat and lungs, as this remedy for pulmonary complaints. During a series of years, and among most of the communities of more than ordinary humor and intelligence, it has become better known. Its wonderful character and power to cure the various diseases of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While employed to subdue forms of disease more dangerous, it is at the same time the safest and most reliable remedy that can be given for inciptient consumption. Under the changeful aspects of the throat and lungs, As a protection against sudden attacks of croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with the antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still there are multitudes of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely relieved, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the diseases of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Ringers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here. Suffice it to assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Mercurial, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous ingredient whatever, it is neither injurious nor unpalatable. The number and importance of the cures in the sickly districts are literally beyond account, and we believe without a parallel in the history of Ague medicines. Our pride is gratified by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected by obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed.

Time-dreaded seasons, either periodical or intermittent, through which this medicine will be protected by it, the AGUE CURE dills.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, producing in comparatively small doses the most decided results.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing in many cases speedy cures, where other medicines had failed.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and agreeable perfume.

HAIR DRESSING,

[This cut represents Mr. G. A. Colby's Mill, at Niles, Mich., driven by seven Leffel Water Wheels.]

THE Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co. manufacture Leffel's Celebrated American Double Turbine Water Wheels, the most perfect and economical water wheel in use. We are the only manufacturers who can furnish the genuine "Leffel Wheel" in Canada, as will be seen by the following certificate:

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO, Dec. 25th, 1868.

We take pleasure in informing the public of Canada, that we have sold and furnished Mr. F. W. GLEN, of Oshawa, Ontario, Patterns, Formers, Drawings, Gauges, and all other necessary information, to build our celebrated Double Turbine Water Wheel, invented by JAMES LEFFEL, and known as the "Leffel Wheel." We have also obligated ourselves to furnish the same facilities for manufacturing to any other parties in Canada. Without the information we have given Mr. Glen, no one can successfully build our wheels, and we advise parties in Canada to purchase our wheels of no other manufacturer. Mr. Glen's facilities are unsurpassed, and we feel sure that he will build a wheel that will give perfect satisfaction. We therefore commend him to the public of Canada with entire confidence, feeling sure he will manufacture a wheel in all respects equal to our own.

[Signed,] JAMES LEFFEL & Co.

WARRANTY.—We are prepared to furnish Water Wheels, Gears, Shafts, Pulleys, and all Machinery necessary to attach the Wheels to the machinery they are intended to drive; and if, after two months trial, they are not satisfactory, we will take all back, pay freight both ways, and refund any payments made to us thereon. Where parties are not satisfied with the wheel, and cannot make a change at the time without loss to business, they may run the wheel and machinery a reasonable time without charge, not exceeding one year, in order that they may make a change without injury to their business.

We call especial attention to our superior Gearing of all kinds for attaching our wheels, made light and adapted to the high speed at which the wheels run. We caution purchasers against using heavy shafting and gearing.

☞ We also manufacture all kinds of Saw and Flour Mill Machinery, including Steam Engines and Boilers, English and American Gangs, Hand-setting and Self-setting Circular Saw-Rigs, Upright and Oscillating Muley Saw-Rigs, Gearing, Shafting, Pulleys and Hangers, &c &c. Also Shingle Machines and Jointers, Leather-Splitting Machines, Knife-Grinders, Woolen Machinery, Washington Hand Printing Presses, Gordon's Power Press, Taylor's Cylinder Press, and Blake's Patent Steam Pump.

Catalogues containing full information furnished free to all applicants.

Address, F. W. GLEN, President,

HEALTH & BEAUTY!

Strong, Pure and Rich Blood—Increase of Flesh and Weight—Clear Skin and Beautiful Complexion, secured to ALL.

RADWAY'S

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

is made the most astonishing cures. No disease is raised are the rich upon the body when the powerful influence of this truly WONDERFUL MEDICINE that

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

Scrofula, Consumption, Syphilis, mercurial and badly treated Mercurials, Glandular diseases, Ulcers in the Throat, Bowels, Tumors, Spots on the Glands, and other parts of the skin, Blotches, Eruptions, Blisters, Sores in the Eyes, Strumous Discharges from the Ears, Ulcerations of the Nose, Scaly Eruptions, Rheumatism and the worst diseases of the Skin, Fever Sores, Scald Heads, Ringworm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots on the Face, Pimples, Tumors, Cancers, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all Weaknesses and Painful Diseases, Kidney Complaints, Dropsy, and Water Diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are Brick Dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid dark, bilious appearance, and white bone dust deposit, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the small of the Back, and along the loins. In all these complaints Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent, added by the application of Radway's Ready Relief to the Loins and small of the Back, and the bowels regulated with one or two of Radway's Regulating Pills per day, will soon make a complete cure. In a few days, the patient will become able to walk and discharge his or her natural functions healthfully, and the Urine will be restored to its natural clear and amber or sherry color.

THE WASTES OF THE BODY

are supplied with new, healthy and nutritious blood, that furnishes sound structure. Hence all suffering from Weakness Procreative, either MALE or FEMALE, of the Womb, Uterus, or other organs, whether Leucorrhea, Sperm, or Impotency, discharges of every kind, or from violence of "self-abuse," from the mental Faculties, or Venereal discharges, or Ulcers, or Sores, through the reparative process of Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent are arrested, and the ruptured organs healed

THE TRUE THEORY OF CURE.

Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies the system through the blood, urine, sweat, and structure-making constituents with Tissue-making, Flesh-making, Heat or Vital, and Fat-making elements. All of its constituents are nourishing, purifying, and strengthening. It permeates, Renovates, and drives out of the body the putrid elements of Disease and Corruption. CONSUMPTION, SCROFULOUS SWELLINGS, DROPSY, SYPHILIS, CANCER, TUMORS, &c., are all of a scrofulous character, and as such are within the curative range of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent!

1. That Scrofula, by whatever name designated, is the result of disease from the blood, induced or caused by a Chronic Inflammation. That those unnatural depositions take when the blood is poor, weak, sickly, and incapable of holding in solution its proper constituents. Or from the presence of some virus or poison in the blood, as Mercury, Calomel, Corrosive Sublimate, which is the Corrosive Chloride of Mercury, or other agents given in medicines and which enter largely in the common, nauseating, poisonous pills. NOT ABSORBED OR CHANGED FROM THEIR NATURAL CONDITION.

2. That unless the repairs or nutriments are greater than the wastes, that decomposition and decay will supervene, and the powers of life become exhausted.

3. That the dying body cannot be sustained on any treatment of medicines that exhausts the system, or fails to nourish the blood, the only medium through which the vital forces are generated, and on which the growth of the body depends.

4. That Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies a want never before possessed or known to exist in medicine; that the new and principle in Chemical science, which has been brought to such a perfect system of cure, is described as follows:

1. Its great power in assimilating the food in the first stages of distillation to the process of digestion, as rhyme and chyle with the nourishing elements of blood, separating from these liquids refuse and vent qualities before they are taken up by the vessels and are formed into blood. Here we see that by its wonderful power it changes the system with the very essence or principle that forms the vital power of the body, and its chemical action on the blood in its primitive and complete condition, separates every atom of refuse material or element, out of which the virus of disease is formed.

2. That the blood thus prepared, and enriched with those nourishing properties, becomes strong, rich and healthy and holds in solution its proper constituents, through the Sarsaparillian Resolvents, and repairs the wastes of the body with sound and healthy structure. Such is the wonderful power the Sarsaparillian Resolvent exerts on the blood and juices of the system, that no virulent humors or poisons will exist by which disease can be made.

3. The rapidity which the Sarsaparillian enters the circulation and communicates its curative power through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids, pervades the corporeal membrane of each respective organ, establishing functional harmony throughout the system; through its action and power over the Secretions, the Liver purifies its natural or proper allotment of bile. The Skin, the Sweat, the Kidneys urine; and the Lungs carbon; so that this wonderful mechanism not only establishes health in the sick body, but preserves the system in health.

As we have seen the impurities on which disease is formed as well as the only remedial agent, in the cure of Chronic Scrofulous Constitutional Skin and Syphilitic diseases, but it is the only positive remedy for Kidney, Bladder, Dysuary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are Brick dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid dark, bilious appearance, and white bone dust deposit, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the small of the Back, and along the loins. Napoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years while the weakness was coming on me, and after words, I sought medical advice, employing at different times three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but all to no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoneen Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoneen Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a forlorn hope. This case of mine is not a brain one, but known to all my neighbours and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I give only to say try the Shoshoneen Remedy, I believe it will cure you,

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of publicity and truth. I have known her before dining, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that she is ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoneen Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain as to her case, it has acted almost like unto the means of a miracle.

THE LAPSE OF TIME.

Lament who will, in fruitless tears,
The speed with which our moments fly,
Sigh not over vanish'd years,
But watch the years that hasten by.

Look how they come!—a mingled crowd
Of bright and dark, but rapid days;
Beneath them, like a summer cloud,
The wide world changes as I gaze.

What! grieve that time has brought so soon
The sober age of manhood on?
As idly might I weep at noon,
To see the blush of morning gone.

Could I forego the hopes that glow
In prospect like Elysian isles,
And let the charming future go,
With all her promises and smiles?

The future!—cruel were the power
Whose doom would tear thee from my heart;
Thou sweetner of the present hour!
We cannot—no—we will not part.

Oh, leave me still the rapid flight,
That makes the changing seasons gay;
The grateful speed that brings the night,
The swift and glad return of day—

The months that touch, with added grace,
This little prattler at my knee,
In whose arch eye and speaking face,
New meaning every hour I see.

Time, time will seam and blanch my brow:
Well; I shall sit with aged men,
And my good glass will tell me how
A grisly beard becomes me then.

And should no foul dishonour lie
Upon my head when I am gray,
Love yet shall watch my fading eye,
And smooth the path of my decay.

Then haste thee, Time—'tis kindness all
That speeds thy winged feet so fast:
Thy pleasures stay not till the fall,
And all thy pains are quickly past.

Then flieat, and bear'st away our woes,
And as thy shadowy train depart,
The memory of sorrow grows
A lighter burden on my heart.

FATHER HYACINTHE.

"CHARITY AND THE GOVERNMENT OF LIFE."

LECTURE AT NEW YORK.

On rising to speak, as on entering, a perfect storm of applause greeted Father Hyacinthe. He seemed sensibly affected by the warmth of the greeting. Calmly surveying the immense audience before him, the celebrated divine said:—

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:—I, too, require to give some explanation of my presence here to night. I came to seek in this country a few weeks of repose between the struggles of yester eve and those of the morrow. I came resolved to be silent. I came to behold that grand nature bearing an impress of the Deity, the more profound as the hand of man is less apparent upon it. I came to look upon that young and vigorous nation which, if it weakens not, will realize in the future the greatest and the last intentions of God on our race I came here to listen and not to speak. It happened, however, that in this cosmopolitan city I found France, and was appealed to by the charitable in behalf of suffering France. The members of the Societe Francais de Bienfaisance asked me to come and aid (now that severe winter is about to set in) my suffering compatriots in New York. The French population in this great city is not numerous, but its memories are many and glorious. Since the time of Washington and Lafayette no cloud has darkened the friendship of the two countries they respectfully represent. I should have shown but a slender sympathy for France, had I not responded to the appeal made to me on behalf of its suffering children. This will account for my presence before you this evening. The question I would speak on to-night is one of the most important yet, one of the least understood, I speak of Charity. The Government of Life, is, however, the real subject of my letter, and charity a subsidiary element. In this practical age, science is studied for its application to the practical purposes of life rather than for its own excellence. The test par excellence is truth, and from this comes the great question. Of what use is it for man to conquer the universe if he loses his soul, his life? It is a great thing for this great continent to be governed by the people, but it is a greater thing for man to be governed by his conscience. The motive power in life is the heart—a more imperative, impulsive power than the conscience, from which, however, it is not to be separated. I have the right, so to speak—I, a priest of Jesus Christ, addressing you—to say, guard thine own heart.—Every man hath his own heart in his keeping. The three principal powers of the soul and the body are the reason, the senses and the heart. Neither of the first two mentioned are real powers. By the senses man is assimilated to the brute creation, and sometimes degraded below its level. By reason he is assimilated to the angels. He reasons on truth under a dim shadow, while the heavenly hosts behold in all its full radiance. Nothing, however, is more excessively, more essentially human than the heart, for man cannot live or find any permanent principle that will inspire him in life without its aid. I have lived a life of ideas shut out from the world. I have loved, and still love ideas, but I have never found in them absolute certainties or consolations and joys. What is the heart? It is the flesh: It is an organ that commands blood and life, Moses said, "The soul is the blood." The heart is almost the man, for in it all motion, all motion in life commences and ends. It is the first organ awaking to life in the infant in the mother's womb; it is the last that beats on the death-bed. The watered heart is the image of the moral heart; and the heart is love; the power of loving. Man is not a thought—a sentiment, but he is love. This love is the source of all moral acts. for in every man you will find a good or bad love, the weight of which will decide his after life. St. Augustine has said, "My love is my weight; where it bears me thither I go." I may recite to you a German legend I have heard. It deals with a young man in love. He is thirsting as admirable landscape.—Behind him is the fiend in human semblance watching his every movement. Satan finally, after watching him for awhile, cries to the youth; "You are in love?" "And how do you know that?" replies the youth: "have you it?" The fiend replies that he reads the secret in his heart. "Well," says the youth, "if it be so, what means the more foreign to it; in man it is, as I have before said, at the root of every act—the heart is at the foundation of all. Let us then be men of heart; let us bear our hearts into civil life; let us be men of heart of city and of state. Let us love country, family, loyalty, probity; let us love the Church of Christ, but not as the Church of any particular sect; let us respect the letter, but not as an extinguisher—the letter kills, the spirit gives life. Let us, then, I repeat, man as men of heart. Your great poet, Longfellow, whose acquaintance it will my great privilege to make a few days ago, has written in one of his verses, and the lines of which is but poorly rendered in French—lines which have been my motto through life:

"Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

Now, I would speak of the direction to be given in life, and of the region it should traverse. We have often heard of two roads, opening before man, roads diverging from the other. Humanity has hesitated between the two for centuries. Shall heaven or earth be chosen? Shall man give to his existence an impetus that will separate him from the world that bears him, and tear it from all that the Creator has made its basis—family, affections, interest, sufferings; or shall he cast away all idea of loving heaven, and concentrate upon earth his fate, his hope, his love? Man, I say, hesitates between the two roads, and the most rash rush to one or the other. Materialists say that heaven is nothing, and see but the earth, giving themselves to that duet which forms our planet, and to that troublous and effecting hour—life. Mystical minds, (and no one respects earnest minds more than I do), mystical minds set aside all earthly duties and enjoyments, change life into an aspiration toward heaven, instead of striving to merit that heaven. They seek to scale their way into heaven in hot haste. Now my experience has convinced me that between these two roads there is a third opened for the greatest moral and religious progress man can make, and trodden by men who can reconcile heaven and earth, the present life with a future existence, a task to be accomplished in these times as it was accomplished by Christ dying on the cross to reconcile the things of heaven to the things of earth. I open the Bible and I read in it that God made man out of dust and placed him in a beautiful garden, which to material aid, he was to care for and cultivate. Then He fed before him the animals (that inferior race which is intended to supply slaves to man.) Man then, the work of God, was the king, the owner, the manager of the universe. The part we have to act now is unchanged. We have to continue in these ages the work of Adam. Instead of a small part of Asia Minor, though we have a whole planet. God has given us steam and electricity and distance is annihilated. This globe, I say, is our Eden, and by our labors on it we gain heaven and earth. [Applause.] After the first man there came family and society. Adam was alone, and God thought it not good that he should be, for He knew what Adam only felt he lacked. "Let there be light," God said, and light was made, and He beheld it and said it was good, and He created stars, animals and planets, and saw that all were very good. But when He made what He adjudged his masterpiece, and the edifice was crowned by man, He perceived His work was incomplete. So God made Adam a companion and saved him from egotism.—Thus was the organization of the family perfected. In modern society celibacy exists for the sake of God, but this exception, it you make it a rule, is against God and against nature. Celibacy is cowardice if it does not glorify marriage. The apostles have said marriage is honorable, marriage is spotless before God and man. The great object in view is the reconciliation of heaven and earth, and of the present life with the future, and to secure union on earth. Union in the city, in the nation, and in humanity was the thought of Jesus Christ, who first proclaimed that which the prophets but dimly saw, and the Jews never did see. The centuries that will realize this great union of nations have begun. The labor has commenced. Steam and electricity remove all obstacles. Agassiz says the American continent was the first created: it will be the last in the fulfillment of the designs of the Creator. A cosmopolitan land—cosmopolitan in the intentions of its founders, in the bloody struggle of its defenders—God has in store for you who people it the accomplishment of admirable results.—Northward are the Esquimaux; southward is Africa. You summon from walled China the unmoving people to dwell amid the moving nation, and stationery to mingle with the progressive, all impelled by the breath of you, the great humanitrrian. [Great applause.] The foundation of your people is the Bible the Book that speaks of God, the living word of Jesus Christ. In an admirable manifesto from your President there shines through his words the Christian faith—a belief in Jesus is at the root of the nation. May Jesus Christ protect your country and develop old Europe in preparing amid strife, unity, religious and material prosperity. And when I return, I shall tell Europe that I have found here liberty associated with Christianity, and have been among a people who do not think that to be free they must be parted from God. [Great applause.]

Aimless Education.

Here is the rich man's son, who has been educated at great expense and pains, and who has graduated from college, and has come out a gentleman. He has studied not with a view of fitting himself for any avocation in life, but with a view of being a gentleman. He reads not for the sake of knowing anything, but for the sake of being a gentleman. Soon after his father breaks down; and he, when he is about twenty-five years old, finds himself a poor man's son, and dependent on his own exertions. And he says to himself, "What shall I do for a living?" He asks his feet, and his feet say, "I do not know." He asks his hands, and they say, "I do not know." He asks his head, and it says, "I never learnt anything about how to get a living." There is but one man that can befriend this poor wretch, and that is the sexton. Could anything be more useless than such a person? Can there be anything more pitiable than such histories? And yet they are happening every day.

UNWILLING TO GO TO HEAVEN.—There was a clergyman who often became vexed at finding his little grandchildren in his study. One day one of these little children was standing by his mother's side and she was speaking to him of heaven. "Ma," said he, "I don't want to go to heaven." "Don't want to go to heaven, my son?" "No, ma, I'm sure I don't." "Why not my son?" "Why, grandpapa will be there won't he?" "Yes, I hope he will." "Well just?" soon as he sees us he will come scolding along, and say, "Whew; whew! whew! what are these boys here for?"

THE HOLY GRAIL.

The story of the Holy Grail—or, as the old romancists call it, the Sangreal—is among the sublimest legends of mediæval Christendom. According to the tradition of the 'Morte d'Arthur,' after Christ and the twelve had left the Upper Room in which they celebrated the Last Supper, Joseph of Arimathea entered and, as a memorial of the holy event, he took away the vessel wherein Christ had eaten the Passover Lamb. According to this more poetical tradition which is followed by Mr. Tennyson, Joseph carried off the cup in which his master had drunk with his disciples. In either case the saint took the relic to the Cross, and, as he held it up, drops of blood from the wounds of his crucified Lord fell into the [illegible] vessel. It came into his hands the Holy Grail; and the sacred treasure was his constant companion in his wanderings through Pagan lands, until he reached England and founded the Abbey of Glastonbury. The Holy Grail was the most precious possession of traditional England. It was the symbol of Christ's presence among men. It affected miraculous cures. Its presence healed the sick, gave strength to the lame, and even rolled back the gates of death. In time the wickedness of the land caused it to disappear from human sight, leaving in the minds of all men the faith that to reach for the Holy Grail was the highest duty of Christian knighthood, and to find the sacred symbol the highest felicity of life. That legend was a tradition of the Round Table at which sat the Arthurian knights. Some of those champions, it was even whispered, had been mysteriously led from the sacred vessel; and Sir Lancelot of the Lake, it was said, had been thus favored by Heaven, when resting at the castle of Pelles, 'King of the foreign country, and cousin nigh unto Joseph of Arimathea.' But, since he was not pure, Sir Lancelot was fated never to touch the Holy Grail.—That felicity was reserved for his son, the good night Sir Galahad; and the Arthurian warriors knew him to be the chosen of Heaven when, on the first occasion of his entering their company, he sat unmarried in the chair of Merlin, which to all but stainless knights was a seat of death. Thus, also, it was seen that the time had come for the holy quest. But the task was perilous as well as fruitless to those who were living in sin. Disaster chastised the unworthy knights who had set out on the sacred errand Others, who, although shinning lights of chivalry, still bore some traces of earthly imperfection, caught [illegible] only a glimpse, of the Grail. Thus, when Sir Ector de Maris and Sir Percivale de Galis when in search of Sir Lancelot after he had rushed away mad from the presence of his angry Queen, they met in their wanderings and not recognising each other, they fought until each fancied that he had been wounded unto death. Then both found out that they belonged to the Round Table, and presently both were healed by the Holy Grail. Being the less worthy knight, Sir Ector did not see the awful presence, but the pure Sir Percivale had a glimmering of the vessel and of the maiden who bore it.' For the same reason Sir Lancelot never found the object of his search. That 'great and guilty love he bore the Queen,' but, because he was the bravest knight in all the world, because he struggled against his sin, and was ultimately to disown the sanctity of religion, he was permitted to approach the sacred presence, and to see what he was fated never to touch. He reached the door of the chamber which contained the Sanogreal; he saw the place illuminated with as much brilliancy as if all the torches of the world had been there; he saw a table of silver, and the holy object of the Quest covered with red samite; he saw what seemed to be priests celebrating mass; on pushing forward to touch the sacred treasure he was smitten down, and lay in a long stupor. Like Moore, he was to see but not to enter, [illegible] Percivale, [illegible] and were [illegible] find the Holy Grail. They find it at the castle of King Pelles, where Joseph of Arimathea comes back from the place of the dead to address the wrestrick knights, and where the Master himself appears to bid them partake of his feast. They receive the precious vessel and depart. Then, at a second appearance of Joseph, the good Knight Sir Galahad is singled out for the special favour of Heaven, and receives the sacred boon from the hands of the Saint himself, that is the [illegible] of his high felicity. By that sign he knows his earthly cares to be ended, his heavenly reward to be at hand; he is eager to depart from the place of sin, and the prayer for his release is granted; so, giving to his companions the kiss of farewell, he leaves this life, and is borne to the clouds of heaven by angel hands. Sir Percivale goes into a monastery; after many wanderings Sir Bors reaches Camelot, to tell the knights the fate of the sacred Quest; and so ends the search for the Holy Grail.

Befriending Young People.

When John Wesley saw a young man in danger of falling into the share of evil associates, he did not wait the cold shoulder to him. He did not watch him sharply at a distance, and speak of his short comings to others, predicting that he was "on the high road to ruin."

He invited him to his table, and by a genial, affable manner, sought to give him good subjects, for thought, or hints conduct. Advice thus kindly [illegible] was very impressive. He would draw out a young man in conversation, and learn what studies he was most efficient in, which were essential to his success, and then assist him to acquire the mastery of them.

Another great talent was [illegible] young man whom [illegible] dangerous thoughts. Well, [illegible] one [illegible] semblance of a sinner," replied his friend, "and have only the semblance of a SAVIOUR?" And then added with authority, "Know that Jesus Christ [illegible] even of those who are [illegible] and [illegible] serving of utter condemnation."—Anon.

PRESENTATION.—On Tuesday, 21st Dec., a delegation from Bewdley, waited on the Rev. J. L. Murray, at the manse, Baltimore, and presented him with a purse of $60, as a token of their esteem and gratitude for his services during the past summer. Bewdley Station has been organized in connection with the Presbyterian Church during the present year; and is very promising.—World.

TO MAKE HARD SOAP FROM SOFT.—Take seven pounds of good soft soap; four pounds sal soda; two ounces borax; one ounce hartshorn; half a pound of resin; to be dissolved in twenty-two quarts of water, and boiled about twenty minutes.

STARCH POLISH.—Take common dry potato or wheat starch sufficient to make a pint of starch when boiled. Then add half a drachm of spermaceti and half a drachm of white wax, and then use as in common starch, only using the iron as hot as possible. In this manner a brilliant polish is produced.

THE NEW TAX BILL.

Somebody proposes the following new amendments to the Tax Bill.

For kissing a pretty girl, one dollar.
For kissing a homely one, two dollars—the [illegible] added probably for the man's folly.
For ladies kissing one another, two dollars. The tax is placed at this rate in order to be regarded by our M. C's as a piece of unreasonable absurdity.
For over flirtation, ten cents.
Every young man who has more than one.
[illegible]
Singing in the church, twenty-five cents.
Courting in the parlor, one dollar.
Courting in a romantic place, five dollars, and fifty cents thereafter.
Seeing a lady home from church, twenty-five cents.
Going from church without accompanying a lady, five dollars.
Seeing a lady home from the nite Society five cents, the proceeds is to be devoted to the relief of disabled army chaplains.
For ladies who paint, fifty cents.
For wearing a low necked dress, one dollar.
For each curl on a lady's head, above ten, five cents.
For any unfair device for entrapping young men into matrimony, five dollars.
For wearing hoops larger than eight feet in circumference, eight cents for each hoop.
Old bachelors over thirty are taxed ten dollars, and husband to Utah.
Each pretty lady is to be taxed from twenty-five cents to twenty-five dollars; she is to fix the estimate of her own beauty. It is thought a very large amount is to be realized from this provision.
Each baby boy, fifty cents.
Each baby girl, ten cents.
Families having more than eight babies are not to be taxed; and for twins a premium of forty dollars will be paid out of the funds accruing from tax on old bachelors.
Each Sunday fooler on the street corners or about church doors to be taxed his value, which is about two cents.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—On Thursday last, Mr. John Purcell, shoemaker, of the Township of Hope, charged Gen. Hastings, Alfred Loug and James P. Hannah, before His Worship the Mayor, and justices W. Garnett, and J. G. Williams with having robbed him of a number of bills, amounting in all to $37, upon the street, on the evening previous. The parties had been drinking together during the day, and were all "half seas over." Late in the evening he stated, he left them in a saloon on John Street, where they had all been drinking; but he had gone no farther than the corner of Walton and John Streets, when they came up with him, and Long put his arms around his neck and held him while Hastings "went through" his pockets. They all three then ran off leaving him standing on the sidewalk. He immediately secured the services of Constable Hills, and had them arrested. A portion of the money was returned to him by one of them at the time of the arrest. They were committed to jail for trial.—Port Hope Canadian.

REMEDY FOR RUST IN WHEAT.—The following, from a distinguished German Agriculturist, is taken from a Bremen paper:—For forty years I have found this method successful in preventing rust in wheat:—Some hours, at the longest six or eight, before sowing, prepare a steep of three measures of powdered quick lime and ten measures of cattle urine. Four two quarts of this upon a peck of wheat, stir with a spade until every kernel is covered white with it. By using wheat so prepared rust of every kind will be avoided. I have often noticed while to the neighboring fields, a great part of the crop is affected by rust, to mine, lying closely by it, not a single ear so effected could be found. The same writer says he takes the sheaves and beats off the ripest kernels with a stick, and uses the grain thus obtained for seed.

TO TAKE STAINS OUT OF LINEN.—Stains caused by acids can be removed by wetting the part and laying it on some salt of wormwood; then rub it without diluting it with more water. Or, tie up in stained part some pearlash, then scrape some soap into cold soft water, to make a lather, and boil the linen till the stain disappears. Recent stains of fruit may be removed by holding the linen tightly stretched over a tub and pouring hot water over the part. This must be done before any soap has been applied to it. As soon as the stain is made on table linen, &c., rub on it common table salt, before it has had time to dry. The salt will keep it damp till the cloth is washed, when the stain will disappear; or, wash the stain lightly when the cloth is removed.

A school teacher in Illinois gave her scholar the following sentence to spell:—"Robert Wright, the beautiful writer of Wrightsville, down in Torrington, claims the exclusive right to write the rites and ceremon

RED RIVER.

From the correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, Toronto, it appears that matters have been sadly mismanaged by Governor McDougall, Col. Dennis and Major Wallace.

The correspondent says:—"The further the party proceeded north the more contemptuous became the tone of the people towards the vice regal brigade. The country was decidedly opposed to Mr. McDougall."

The expedition, too, spent money recklessly. Col. Dennis gave £300 to Salkirks to purchase arms and powder for Canadians who were willing to fight. Major Wallace gave $600 for a team of horses, and acted otherwise extravagantly, so that a rupture between the parties took place, and Wallace is reported as threatening to go to Fort Garry and raise half-breeds to oppose Governor McDougall. The residents, too, heard these statements and quarrels, which caused no little discredit on the Canadian party.

It is further said:—"What first annoyed the half-breeds at Red River, was the despotic manner in which Col. Dennis and his surveying party went about their business—striking lines across the lands of those who had for years held them under the Hudson's Bay title. This so annoyed the half-breeds, that in half a dozen cases the Colonel was driven off, and had to betake himself and party to another location. These stories savor strongly of truth, and there is no doubt some truth in them."

The insurgents under Riel have taken large sums of money and stores from the Hudson Bay Company. They have agreed to receive Col. De Salabery and Father Thibault, Commissioners from Ottawa, and a favorable impression prevails that the matter will soon be hushed up. Mr. Howe's idea, and John A's general policy "buy them up," may succeed quicker and easier than they could be compelled by force of arms.

The English and Scotch half-breeds say that if Dennis had not left them during the night that the Governor would have been secured, as they were in his favor, and outnumbered the French half-breeds—three to one.

Dennis neither gave them arms nor pay.

It must be cold out there. The thermometer stood at 38° below zero on the 7th inst.

In Dacotah Territory wheat sells at 55c, oats 20c to 35c, corn 75c, barley 50c to 60c, dressed hogs 10c to 12c, beef 6c to 8c, butter 30c, wood $3 to $3.50 a cord, potatoes 50c to 60c.

BAPTIST SABBATH SCHOOL.

The children of the Baptist Sabbath School of this Town, were invited by their teachers and friends on Tuesday evening to a Tea. There were about 120 children present, and also a large number of friends. Just about as many as the Church would comfortably seat.

After Tea, Mr. Gilmour the Superintendent, exhibited a model of the Ancient Jewish Tabernacle and surroundings, made with great care, on the scale of an inch to a cubit. Many passages mentioned in the Bible in connection therewith was also referred to, and, where possible, the object exhibited.

The Court and its fence and curtains, bars, sockets and rings, and the manner of taking down and erecting the same on the occasion of every march through the wilderness, was very clearly shown, so that each child might see what he or she reads of very often in the Sabbath School lessons.

The Altar of Sacrifice was also explained and exhibited in its relative position in the Court. The Tabernacle, the Holy place, and the Holy of Holies, and what was kept therein. The Table of Shewbread, the Candlesticks, the Altar of Incense, the Ark of the Covenant, the Mercy Seat, and a very nice drawing of the Cherubim overshadowing the Mercy Seat, were all in turn shown; together with the High Priest entering in, as recorded, "once a year," to make atonement for the sins of the people.

Mr. Gilmour had also a drawing representing the position of the Children of Israel on the Camp, and also in their marches; each Tribe in its order, with its Standard and Ensign, together with the order of the Priests, in carrying the material of the Tabernacle and Sacred Vessels. The Koathites, the Meurites and Gershonites, and the Cloud and Pillar of Fire.

Every vessel of gold, silver or brass, was covered according to the pattern given by Moses, and erected in the Wilderness.

The children during the Exhibition recited the passages of Scripture referring to each part, its structure, material, use and position; and the recitations were so arranged that every child recited one or more portions, and in this way the undivided attention of the little ones was maintained, and the interest of the lecture on kept up. In fact, those who have read these portions of the Sacred Word perhaps a hundred times, confessed that the Exhibition of Mr. Gilmour's Model had lent a new charm to the whole, and afforded visible instruction that cannot soon be forgotten.

Mr. Gilmour announced that this was only the first of a series of exhibitions intended, after which details would be taken up in turn, the things "first unfolded," so as to pleasantly and forcibly lead along the young minds of the children, as well as the minds of the more advanced, to consider the teachings of these things, and the Great Antitype as foreshadowed therein and that all might be induced to think of that Saviour so forcibly and visibly set forth in the daily sacrifice of the Jewish people, and in every article connected therewith.

After a few closing remarks from Mr. Dyall, the newly inducted Pastor of the Church, Mr. Gilmour dismissed with prayer.

The evening was very pleasantly spent, useful instruction imparted to all present, young and old.

Mr. G. is undoubtedly the right man for Superintendent.

Mr. John Babb, a member of the Church aided Mr. Gilmour in constructing the model. Those who wish a view of it would do well to attend the next Exhibition.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

Col. Dennis has returned from Red River.

Alderman Harman is re-elected Mayor of Toronto.

Lord Cecil and Mr. Dunlop, are preaching in Hamilton.

The custom receipts for the half year just expired, amount to $526,130.

The mills at Belleville were unable to work last week, because of high water.

A meeting of Presbyterians has been held in London, in favor of a revision of our authorised version of the Bible.

Two young boys have been arrested in Montreal on a charge of stealing $122 from the Roman Catholic Bishop's palace.

Thos. Bagley was frozen to death on the 14th, Thursday last, near Orilla. He was but a short distance from his home at the time.

The death of the Bishop of Manchester places the seventh mitre at the disposal of Mr. Gladstone. The value of this living is £4,200 a year.

Father Chiniquy was prevented lecturing in Montreal by rowdies. Some of the Aldermen, it is said, encouraged them. He was permitted, peaceably, a few nights afterwards, to lecture in the Mechanic's Hall, on Temperance.

Mr. Peter Finney of Ashburnham, was severely frozen on Friday, while going to town, Dr. Kincaid was called in and applied remedies. His hands were almost gone, but we are glad to learn that he is progressing favorably.

The Rev. Thomas Goldsmith, one of the ablest preachers of the New Connexion Methodist Church in Canada, applied for admittance at a late session of the Hamilton Presbytery of the Canada Presbyterian Church, and was recommended unanimously to be received.

A man named Oliver Chisholm, whose relatives reside some where in Percy, died in Mr. Croft's hotel, on Saturday. He had been unwell for some days, he was on his way to the shantics, we believe, when he became ill. His body was taken to the dead house on Sunday, to await removal by his friends.

LONDON SOCIETY, for January, 1870, has been received as usual. It is interesting to the lovers of light reading. This number also contains humorous portaits and selections of pretty faces, droll characters, and humorous incidents. It can be had direct from Messrs. Copp & Clark, Toronto, or at the Book Stores in town.

John Bright, in an address at Manchester, advocated a wider Franchise, and freer representation. He says in less than three years, there will be a system of national education, by general consent. Let us hope that this prediction may be fulfilled. At present we are doubtful that he speaks according to revelation.

A child of Mr. D. Sinclair, store-keeper, of Digby, got at a keg containing 15 lbs. gunpowder, took a handful and set a match to it. The scattered powder led to the keg, when all exploded, killing one of the children, and burned the clothes of two others, and shattered the house to pieces. One of the surviving children is not expected to recover.

The Board of School Trustees of the Village of Ashburnham met on Monday evening, when Mr. Bennet and Mr. Wright made the necessary declarations of office.

The Board then elected D. McDonald, Esq., Chairman for the current year. Mr. McDonald has been School Trustee in the Village for nearly 25 years.

On motion of Mr. Ingram, seconded by Mr. Wright, Mr. Stratton was re-appointed Local Superintendent for 1870.

The Board then adjourned.

THE WEATHER.—The weather has been so variable lately that sudden changes have taken place in a few minutes. On Wednesday, 12th inst., it rained all day. On Thursday it was a perfect hurricane of snow and heavy winds. On Friday the freeze was intense, 20° to 23° below zero. On Saturday it rained the whole day.—Sunday was mild but frosty. Monday a perfect teem of rain from morning till night. Tuesday, frosty. Wednesday, frosty. But what will be to-morrow the wisest man knows not.

The Toronto Telegraph is down on the Agricultural Council of Ontario, for an imaginary grievance of requesting the reporter to retire for a little. The matter calling for this is not, perhaps, fully investigated yet. The Council will, however, give the whole thing full publicity.

The great trouble is, the Patent Combination wish to get the entire control of the Agricultural Association, and if they do, what guarantee will the public have that they would conduct the Association any better than has been done by the Council.

By undue influence they might cover over the petty peculations of their officials, but witness the Reifenstein robberies, under the very eye of Auditor General Langton, and the whole ministry at Ottawa. This is enough to satisfy the people of Ontario, that ministers are not proof against perpetrations of frauds.

TOWN COUNCIL.

January 17th, 1870.

The new Council met on Monday at noon. Present—His Worship Mayor Scott, re-elected, and Messrs. Kennedy, Dickson, Helm, Morrow, A. Smith, English, Toole and Stevenson.

The Clerk stated to the Council that W. H. Scott, Esq., had been duly elected and declared Mayor for 1870, and that Mr. A. Rutherford had been returned for the North Ward; Mr. Stevenson for the Centre Ward; Mr. R. A. Morrow for the East Ward; and Mr. A. Smith for the South Ward; and that all the above, except Mr. Rutherford, had made and deposited the necessary declaration of office and of qualifications.

The minutes of the last meeting of Council were read over and signed.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Toole, a By-law was read a first time, appointing Auditors.

In committee of the whole, on the second reading of the By-law, the Council named E. Pearse, Esq., and the Mayor named C. Cameron, Esq., as Auditors. The By-law was then read a third time and passed.

The Council adjourned till half-past seven o'clock, p.m.

At half-past seven o'clock, p. m., the Council again met.

Present — Messrs. English, Edmison, Smith, Toole, Dickson, Stevenson, Morrow, Doharty, O'Beirne, Kennedy and Rutherford.

The minutes of the last meeting were read over and confirmed.

A communication from G. C. Smith, Montreal, in reference to a Steam Fire Engine, giving his opinion as the best place to get one. Several pamphlets sent by Mr. Smith were laid on the table.

The Finance Committee for 1869 handed in the following report which was read, received and adopted:

The Finance Committee beg leave to report as follows:

They have examined Mr. Weller's account, and after striking off several items from the bill of costs on the suit Patterson vs. the Corporation of Peterborough, amounting in all to ten dollars, they would recommend payment of the balance, amounting to $94.56.

Respectfully submitted.

IVAN O'BEIRNE, Chairman.
WM. TOOLE.
GEO. EDMISON.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Doharty,—That the following members of this Council be the Finance Committee: Messrs. O'Beirne, Toole, Edmison, Smith, Dickson and Stevenson.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Doharty, seconded by Mr. Stevenson,—That the following members of Council be the Fire Committee: Messrs. Helm, English, Edmison and Doharty.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Kennedy, seconded by Mr. Morrow,—That the following be the Street and Bridge Committee: Messrs. Toole, Dickson, English and Stevenson.

Lost on the following division:

YEAS—Dickson, Helm, Kennedy and Smith.

NAYS—Toole, Rutherford, Stevenson, Doharty, Helm, English, Morrow and O'Beirne.

The Court of Revision: Messrs. Stevenson, Toole, Dickson, Edmison and Smith.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Doharty,—That the Mayor and Messrs. Edmison, O'Beirne, Stevenson and the mover be a Special Committee, for the purpose of revising the Rules of Order of this Council, and report such amended results as they think proper.—Carried.

On motion, the Committee on Printing and Petitions consists of Messrs. Stevenson, Morrow and Helm.

Moved by Mr. Kennedy, seconded by Mr. Stevenson,—That a grant of one hundred dollars be given to the officers of the Peterboro Battalion, to assist in maintaining the Peterboro Band, in connection with the Battalion, for the present year.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Dickson,—That the thanks of this Council be hereby given to the Peterboro Battalion Band, for their kindness in serenading the Council this evening.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Toole, the Council went into Committee of the Whole on the second reading of the Snow By-law. Mr. Rutherford in the chair. After some discussion the committee rose and the Council resumed.

The Council then adjourned for two weeks.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The members elect for the Village, met on Monday, and after making and filing the necessary declaration of qualification and of office, they organized the Council for the year 1870.

Mr. D. Haggart was named Auditor by the Reeve, and Mr. George Brown was appointed by the Council.

After some other minor matters, the Council adjourned till the first Monday in February, at 7 o'clock, p. m.

We invite attention to the communication of Mr. Fowlis in this issue. Mr. Fowlis is a practical miner; has been in all the gold regions of America, Australia and New Zealand, and from his energy and love of the work he wishes to undertake, is a very suitable gentleman for it. Private parties should aid him to the best of their abilities. Public institutions and the government might spend their overplus cash in a far worse undertaking. We hope Mr. F. will receive encouragement to go on in his enterprise.

NEVER whine over what you may suppose to be loss of opportunities. Every man who wishes may educate himself. Many a servant has listened with attention while his master's children were saying their letters, and by putting together what he thus learned acquired the elements of spelling. If a man has a strong thirst for knowledge it matters not where his lot may be cast, he will become an educated man. The first step toward self-improvement is, to leave off crying over spilled milk.' Let the past go, and bend every energy to the improvement of the present.

Young Ladies' Social.

The Young Ladies in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Church gave a Social Tea and entertainment yesterday evening. It was well attended, and the evening a pleasant one. After tea and friendly chit-chat, music and readings were given. "Shall we know each other then," by the Misses Parnell and Messrs. W. N. Kennedy and E. C. Hill was beautifully rendered. A Reading ("Marco Bozzaris") by Principal Dixon, was delivered in a most clear and effective style. "The Mocking Bird," by the Misses Kennedy, followed, was encored, and "What do the wild waves say?" by Miss Davis, was also beautifully rendered. "The Merry Workmen," by Masters Davis, Flavelle and Stevenson, was one of the most entertaining pieces of the evening.

Mr. D. Haggart read the "Tea Party," which seemed to be the favorite piece, and caused much merriment. Mr. H.'s reading powers are well known, and always cheerfully brought into action when requested.

The Rev. Mr. McDonnell read "The Raven," by Edgar Allen Poe, in a manner that elicited applause.

Several children sung a beautiful piece in reference to the work of the Saviour, to conclude with. After which the Rev. Mr. Davis, pastor of the Church, pronounced the Benediction.

The thanks of the meeting were then rendered to the young ladies who got up the entertainment, which has proved so pleasant, and let us hope profitable towards the end for which it was intended.

TEMPERANCE.

On Tuesday evening the members of the Independent Order of Good Templars held their 11th anniversary in the Music Hall. Tea was served at about half-past six o'clock. About 150 persons partook thereof. The Babtist Sabbath School tea on the same evening prevented some of being present, and the anticipation of the young Ladies' Social in the Wesleyan Church on Wednesday evening would also keep away a few.

After tea, Mr. Rue, of Cobourg, delivered an address, which we had not the pleasure of hearing.

J. B. Dixon, Esq., M. A., followed in a very able and eloquent speech, in which he argued strongly that temperance principles shall prevail, shall triumph—drawing his conclusions from the work already done, and the partial success, and from the fact that positive truths always triumph over error. He was listened to earnestly, and several marks of approbation of the lecturer's principles were given by the audience.

The Rev. Mr. Macdonnel, of the Old Kirk, next addressed the meeting in a very happy and fluent manner, declaring his own practical temperance principles and his reasons for them—his health of body and mind, and the good of his fellows. He remarked that while not a pledged teetothar, he was glad to be a co-worker with associations that were pledged, as their work was good; of the Spirit of the Gospel and of the Spirit of Christ, and hence, he believed, should have the countenance of all Ministers of Christ's Gospel.

His lecture was very much to the point, and with the remarks of the Rev. Lecturer all present would agree. It was a pity that others than temperance men and women were not present to hear him. It is a very pleasing thought that almost the entire ministry of this town are warm friends of the temperance movement and of total abstinence. Let us add the wish that through their labours and the labours of all good temperance men, Mr. Dixon's ideas may soon prevail, and those principles be acknowledged from the Atlantic to the Pacific, through all the world.

INQUEST.

The man Edward Newton, who received injuries at the late fire here, died on Monday morning last. An inquest was held by Coroner Benson, and a Post Mortem examination by Drs. Burritt and Kincaid.

There were no less than 12 witnesses examined, but nothing new was elicited.

The evidence merely going to show that deceased Newton was at the fire, and that some of the falling debris just after the explosion struck him, that he was taken out of it injured. Dr. O'Sullivan attended him at first, but afterwards Dr. Kincaid attended to him. The Autopsy showed the Pelves Cavity "generally Congested," that is, the walls of the Cavity. The bladder very much congested, and firmly adherent posteriorly to the rectum. The Mucous Coats completely destroyed, and covered with patches of Lymph, the proceeds of inflammation. A portion of the lower part of the back bone was shown the Jurors. The lower joint but one was dislocated, and the Vertebra above it, partly fractured, caused by the injuries at the fire. The Doctors gave it as their decided opinion,—That there was no doubt but that death was caused by the injury to the lower part of spine and bladdar! And the evidence went to show that he received the injuries at the fire.

The verdict was, "That Edward Newton came to his death by injuries sustained from falling timber, at McKellar & Cameron's fire, during the explosion."

The evidence was not of sufficient public importance to give in full.

Three boys, named Long, Hastings and Hannah, were sent to jail from Port Hope last week, for robbing John Purcill. They were all on "the drunk."

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—We have been requested to state that Mr. T. White, Jr., will lecture in the Music Hall, under the auspices of the Mechanics' Institute, on the evening of the 27th instant. Subject—"The past ten years' History of Canada." Tickets 10 cents. Let all go.

It is announced that the Archbishop of Cashel has suspended the Rev. Mr. Ryan, for using certain language on the Tipperary hustings; and that the Bishop of Waterford has also suspended the Rev. Mr. Mooney, for a letter he wrote to Col. Charberrie's agent. The Morning Post adds to the announcement that the Rev. Mr. Ryan is to be prosecuted by the Government.

To the Editor of the Peterboro' Examiner.

SIR,—Ever since my return from the mines in New Zealand, it has been my intention to prospect and explore the country to the northward, for some hundred miles in search of minerals. With the exception of a narrow strip along the frontier, from the coast of Labrador to Lake Superior, and then back to Hudson Bay, little more is known of this vast region than of the interior of Africa, at least so far as its mineral productions are concerned.

Will it say much for our enterprise as Canadians, if we let it remain so any longer, without making an attempt to find out what is in the country. If it is a good-for-nothing barn, wilderness, as many suppose it to be, we want to know it.—Generally received opinions, are frequently found to be false when brought to the test. I will mention one case.

When I first went to Australia, it was the general opinion of the "knowing ones," that the centre of the island was a barren, sandy plain, in which neither man nor beast could live; even if this desert could be crossed, they said, the country would be found worthless. Several attempts had been made to cross this supposed desert, but all had failed and some lives had been lost in the enterprise. Mr. Burk, a wild dashing Irishman, who had been an officer in the Austrian service, said he would cross from one side of the island to the other or die, and he did cross it. After passing over three hundred miles of country he came to a well-watered country, with good pasture all the way to the gulf of Carpenteum, a large portion of which is now covered with flocks of sheep.

It is the opinion of many in Canada, that the country to the north of this settlement is not of much value except for the pine that is on it, and that the minerals, if it contains any, are worthless. Perhaps it is so, but I for one am not willing to take their word for it, for I have seen the "wise men" mistaken. They forget that poor rocky countries are frequently rich in minerals. I have an idea that if the country were thoroughly prospected, some valuable mines would be discovered. One of my reasons for so thinking is, because gold has been found in paying quantities in Nova Scotia. And in Newfoundland, there are some valuable copper mines, from one of which Mr. Bonnet clears thirty thousand pounds a year, and some very rich discoveries have been made lately.

What I propose to do is to start next summer with a small prospecting party, to explore the country to the north, if I can raise the necessary means, and I know of no other way but by public subscription. There will be considerable expense attending the undertaking, canoes, tools, provisions, &c., will have to be bought, and mens wages will have to be paid on the return of the expedition. There is no use starting except with a well selected party of paid men—amateur explorers would leave me in less than a month.

Every one who feels an interest in the matter will give a little, the money can easily be raised, the smallest sums will thankfully be received, and any one giving five dollars, can, if they wish, have an interest in any mines that may be discovered. While prospecting, a diary will be kept, and the nature of the soil and mineral indications will be noted down. Whatever money may be received, will be placed in the hands of Alexander Smith, Esq., manager of the Bank of Toronto, who has kindly consented to take charge of it, and will see that it is properly applied.

SAMUEL FOWLIS.

Peterboro, Jan. 17, 1870.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

SIR.—The members of Threshing Company No. One, Otonabee, held their annual meeting on Saturday evening last, when they settled the business of the Company for the past year.

The affairs being arranged, the members presented Mr. Alexander McFee, with a handsome sum of money, as a token of their appreciation of his attention to the business of the Company, to which was attributed the very satisfactory state of it ever since its formation.

Mr. McFee was unwilling to be the recipient of such a favor, but the urgency of the members for his acceptance of it could not be overcome, as all felt that to him especially belonged the praise of the very satisfactory state of every thing connected with Threshing Company No. One.

Yours, &c.

COM.

A CRUEL CASE.

The Irish Times has the following:—"The town of Ballieborough and neighborhood has been thrown into the greatest possible excitement by an act of unparalled cruelty which is about being perpetrated on one of the most respectable and respected families in the place. The Rev. William Bell, a minister of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, died in June last, in the 81st. year of his age, and the 51st. of his ministry. His life was one of marked consistency, piety, integrity and benevolence, and like most of those who devote themselves to their sacred office and the cells of charity at the time of his demise he had hardly any means to bestow upon those depending on him. The surviving members of his family, consisting of two aged sisters and a niece—the widow of a Presbyterian minister, with four children—were left in possession of two farms of land, held under the Right Hon. Sir John Young, Bart., her Majesty's Governor General of Canada. One of the sisters is over 80 years of age, and almost deprived of sight; the other is equally helpless and infirm; and upon the neice depended the management of the land for the maintenance and support of those who were thus cast upon her care. To the surprise and astonishment of the inhabitants of Ballieborough, and to the vehement indignation of all who are personally acquainted with the family, the agent, Mr. Thomas Chalmers, has served the ladies with notices of ejectment, and intends in the coming January to evict them out of house, home and farms, without the slightest compensation for the valuable improvements effected by the late Mr. Bell. Many people here are of opinion that this unprecedented and atrocious piece of tyranny can hardly have the sanction of such a good landlord as Sir John Young has hitherto had the reputation of being. However this may be, the greatest consternation prevails here, and it is believed that in the event of the ejectments being carried out in January, 1870, and such a dreadful and tyrannical edict executed, a petition on the subject will be presented to the Commons House of Parliament. We trust, however, that public indignation, both in Great Britain and Ireland, at a time when the land question is the political difficulty which is engaging the minds of all our statesmen, will rise to such a pitch as even yet to deliver the widow and the aged ones from a persecution worse than death.

There are now twenty-four Protestant schools in Palestine, in which about 1000 children are taught the Word of God. The mission work in Northern Syria and Mesopotamia is prospering, and a remarkable improvement of the Armenian Church towards a reformation is apparent. An Archbishop of that church, who has left all for Christ's sake, will, it is hoped, take a leading part in the movement. Efforts have been made for a number of years past to make known the Word of God in Abyssinia. About 6000 copies of the Scripture have been circulated there, and are read every Sunday.

The religious division of the entire population of India are said to be, approximately, as follows: Native Christians, 1,400,000; Buddhists, 3,000,000; Aborigines, 12,000,000; Mohametans, 25,000,000; Hindoos 110,000,000; Parsees, 180,000; Eurasians, 91,000; Europeans, 136,000; Jews 10,000; Armenians, 5,000. In Bengal, with its population of some 40,000,000, it is said that no more than 500,000 children are receiving any education, though certain classes are anxious to have it. Most of that which is now afforded is given through the 38,000 native schools, which are described as only better than none.

If one has a population of 25,000, who are distributed into fifty-four parishes, for the social and spiritual control and protection of whom there are kept in office 34 cardinals, 38 bishops, 1457 priests, 387 seminarists, 2349 monks, 2021 nuns. In addition to this there are 660 male collegians, 1674 female inmates of charitable institutions, and 1180 Jews. There are besides 4157 soldiers. It ought therefore to be the most intelligent, virtuous, well governed and happy city in the world, if Roman Catholicism is a true system and the Pope is a good ruler. Ask any traveller who has visited Rome whether he found it to be such.

Judge Wilson lately in a charge to the Grand Jury of York, after referring to some changes in the criminal law, said:—

"The conduct of criminal suits is assimilated to the practice in civil cases. All admissible as witnesses, and are not any longer incapacitated by reason of crime or interest from giving testimony. The objections in favor to their credit, not to their sympathy. The same change has at length wisely been made by the Legislature of Ontario in civil cases with a few exceptions.

"The Judge of the Court may now reprieve a prisoner from time to time if it be necessary for the purpose of considering any question of law in the cause, or if the case be a proper one for the Royal mercy. And I am glad to say that all capital sentences are hereafter to be carried into effect within the walls of the prison, and are no longer to be disagreeable public spectacles.

"The change which has been made in the trial of civil cases is also one which I should advise. The Judge is now, in all cases, with the consent of parties and with his own consent, enabled to try cases without the intervention of a jury. It has worked to the satisfaction of all parties."

THE DURABILITY OF TIMBER.—The following statements, taken from one of our exchanges, illustrate the comparative durability of timber:—The piles sustaining London Bridge have been driven 500 years. In 1845 they were critically examined and found to have been but slightly decayed; those piles are principally of elm. Old Savory Place, in the city of London, is sustained on piles driven 650 years ago, they consist of oak, elm, larch and chestnut, and are perfectly sound. The bridge built by the Emperor Trajan over the Danube affords a striking example of the durability of timber in a wet state. One of these piles was taken up and found to be petrified to the depth of three-quarters of an inch, and the rest of the wood had undergone no change, though it had been driven 1,666 years.

SCENERY AND CLOUDS.—Ah! this beautiful world! I know not what to think of it. Sometimes it is all sunshine and gladness, and heaven itself lies out far off, and then it suddenly changes, and is dark and unsubstantial, and the clouds shut out the day. In the times of the subject of sin, there also happen days like this, when we find it is we could take the great wealth by our sense. Then some gloomy horizon, whose shadow will not leave on our hearts, and without sun within is dismal, cold, and dark. Believe me, every heart has its secret sorrows, which the world knows not, and oftentimes we call a man cold when he is only sad.—Longfellow.

A Curious Story from Rome.

(From the Boston Traveller, Jan. 7.)

A correspondent of the Traveller, writing from Rome, tells the following remarkable story respecting the early life of the Pope. It is certain that there is some mystery in connection with his taking the vows of the priesthood, and the corrective may help to solve it. Speaking of the appearance of the Pope, who is now a fine-looking man, and who must have been a fine specimen of manhood in his youth the writer says:—

"Those who are nearest to him, and who ought to know him well, says he is a very kindhearted man, but is dreadfully afflicted by his ministers and agents who ought to do his bidding but who would use him for their own worldly purposes. The world at large does not know that fifty or sixty years ago he was engaged to be married to a Miss Foster, the daughter of an Irish bishop, and the sister of the Countess de Solis, famous at that period in Italian Society, and that the young lady and her friends waited at the altar of the Church of S. Luigi de Francois (near the present post office) for Count Mastai-Ferretti to appear and complete his marriage vows, and that they waited and waited in vain, because the young Count never came. Nor is the world aware that the explanation given to her before her death was that his Jesuit relations had forcibly abducted him and sent him abroad under oath of secrecy which he never divulged till after he was a Pope and that this he caused to communicated to her, to ease his own conscience and her broken heart. I mention this because the Pope is now living, and that he and Jesuit friends may question it or confirm it, as they please.—I hold the document at length in my own hand which tells the whole story, communicated by one of her near relations, and given me by one whom the venerable Count personally knows, and has conversed with and smiled upon since he has occupied the Papal throne."

The Fenian Conspiracy at Salford.

A telegram was received, says the Manchester Guardian, from the Horse Guards, by the assistant adjutant general for this district, a few days ago, intimating that the Fenians contemplated an attack upon the Militia barracks in Salford, with a view of obtaining possession of about 800 stand of arms which were stored there. The rifles were at once taken to the Infantry barracks for safety. The exposure of the contemplated Fenian raid at Salford will, it may be hoped, have double effect. It will make local authorities watchful, and it will show the misguided Fenians zealots that the government is well acquainted with their movements.

A fenian attack upon the militia barracks at Salford, Lancashire, has, it appears, been contemplated. Colonel Reynolds, in command of the 10th Regiment, now stationed in the Salford infantry barracks, received a telegram from the Horse Guards on Saturday night, ordering him at once to remove the 800 stand of arms from the militia barracks, and place them under the protection of the regular troops. The many directions were given in consequence of its having been declared, with some authority, that a raid on the militia storehouses was meditated.

Warden Hayes, the good genius of the Massachusetts State's Prison says that during the thirteen years that he has been connected with that institution, twenty-one persons have been imprisoned for killing their wives, two for killing their fathers, and for killing his mother. Of these twenty-four, all but one were not only habitual drunkards, but actually drunk when they committed the crime; and he also remarks that "these wives not bad men except when under the influence of liquor; and yet justice can make no distinction, but holds him equally guilty who commits a crime under such circumstances as the one who soberly and with intellect unclouded violates the law." There is another temperance sermon.

The Suez Canal.—The London Economist had lately some sensible remarks upon the effects of this great achievement. It showed that it would not make India any the less secure to Britain, and whatever its commercial benefit to Europe, England would enjoy the lion's share of such benefit. No hostile European fleet mediating a descent on Britain's Indian Empire by this route, could evade an encounter somewhere in the dangerous ravine of nearly 1 500 miles known as the Red Sea, and at the eastern end of which she possesses the fortress of Aden, surpassing in natural strength even Gibraltar itself. No surprise from a fleet descending the Red Sea would be possible then, and it is only against a surprise that India needs to be guarded.

Clerical Scandal.—A prominent clergyman of New York disappeared on Saturday morning, the 10th inst., in company with a young lady—one of the prettiest of his flock, and belonging to a wealthy and highly respectable family. The circumstances are such that a guilty intrigue exists between the parties. The reverend gentleman has left behind him a distracted wife and two children. Next day his pulpit was occupied by the Bishop of the diocese, and it was not until the evening that the shocking intelligence reached the ears of the congregation.

Advices from Mexico state that fears of a general revolution are daily increasing. In Puebla the insurgents have captured several towns, defeating the government troops and capturing and executing General Bocardo. Great freshets have occurred in the province of Chiapa. The water washed many farms lying along the borders of the rivers, and it was computed that no less than 200 lives were lost.

The Baptist congregation in Whitevale made their pastor, Rev. J. B. Moore, a surprise visit on the 29th ult., and presented him with a purse of $38.25, and other valuables to the amount of $70 in all. The new church will be opened on the 30 January.

Presentation.—The Mercury says:—A few evenings since the ladies of the Wesleyan Methodist Congregation, Guelph, met at the residence of their pastor, Rev. Mr. Griffin, and presented him with a splendid dressing gown, valued at over $30.

A man in Boston, in a fit of ill temper cut off his wife's hair which was very thick and beautiful. She seperated from him in consequence.

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 29th, 1868,

Messrs. Raymond C. Lister & Bro:

Gentlemen:—While a son of my friend Mr. Francisco de Matton Pimenta (a large proprietor in the Cidade de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tenoco, who is thought a great deal of in Campos, but the fever, instead of diminishing, turned, continued, and typhoid, the boy (16 years old) could not speak, would not take the broths, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tinoco declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: Ten teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the Relief pure on the Chest, back and wrists; three (of Radway's) Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after meals, one dessert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments.

I remain, gentlemen

Your very obedient servant,

Joaquim Pinto Fagade, Merchant.

Dr. Radway's Remedies are sold by Druggists and Country Merchants.

See Dr. Radway's Almanac for 1868.

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

It has been said by a few unfortunate mortals who have striven in vain to gain position of honor and distinction, that they were not sufficiently appreciated. While such may sometimes be the case, it is generally to be observed that true deserving worth is cordially accepted and honored, whether applied to religion, politics, the arts, or invention. Next to religion, invention or discovery, has the highest position, for it wields a mighty influence; through its channels nations have been leaped, as if by magic, the bounds of a separation, and united by electric wires, can converse together at momentary will.

Indeed, the diversified efforts of man's genius in these respects, are a source of admiration and gratitude to the whole human race. In medicine, science has revealed during the last quarter of a century, many hidden truths, which had before been considered to be impossibilities. The malignity of pestilential disease is now in a great measure bereft of its terror and even the "insatiate archer," consumption, is arrested in his deadly march, and oftentimes overthrown. Undoubtedly the great rallying power in the treatment of this and other pulmonary diseases, is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry; and the foregoing allusions are applicable to the memory of its illustrious discoverer. The proof of the efficacy of it is great remedy is in its undying reputation. It has stood the test of time, and its fame as a curative of throat and lung complaints has extended to all climes.—Canada Christian Advocate.

At a Public Meeting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly; an immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel complaints, and all other diseases incident to it is climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

Dyspepsia is one of the most frequent diseases with which the physician meets; it is found in every country, at every season of the year, and among all classes of society, and in more generally a subject of middle age, young persons being, as a rule, exempt from it. It usually commences gradually, and in a very insidious manner, producing, more or less, distress, and in many instances rendering life a burden. Dr. J Briggs' Allevantor, used according to directions for Dyspepsia, has been proved to be a very superior remedy, and those who use it will not be disappointed in the result. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N.Y., and No 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Dr. Briggs took of every substance known, That ever healed, or stilled a groan, And soon compound by skill nicne, His own unrivalled Curative.

The people said, at last we found A cure for every sore or wound; They have used it, and are whole and sound, And all their pain have left them.

Afflicted with corns, bunions, or bruise, Thousands of sufferers heard the news, The thing was found that met their views; They bought and used the Curative.

No sooner was the sore part dressed The pain was eased that spoilt their rest; With tears of gratitude they blest The man who made the Curative.

All signs of soreness soon went by, Whether in hand, or foot, or eye, Let every sufferer likewise try Dr. Briggs' Modern Curative.

Briggs' Curative, the only reliable and most, efficacious Remedy for the cure of Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors. Offices, No. 208 Broadway, New York, and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto Canada.

Don't Know What to Do. We sometimes hear persons say, 'my horse is sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;' they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and certify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us that his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell more rapidly and for higher prices. The article is 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy.' Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hord &Co. is on each package Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealer

If with Catarrh, that distressing disease, You are afflicted and wishing for ease, Use no snuffs that induce you to sneeze, They surely increase, not relieve the disease.

Briggs' Allevantor will relieve in a trice, You also will find it fragrant and nice; Go try it, your friends please entice, Gladly they'll thank you for the advice.

You will always find the above-named Remedy at all Druggist and Country Merchants generally throughout the country, and you will also find Briggs' Allevantor the greatest remedy of the age for the speedy cure of Catarrah, Headache, Neuralgia, and all ailments arising from Pain or Inflammation. Dr. J. Briggs and Co., Proprietors. Offices, No. 208 Broadway, N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto, Canada.

A Clergyman writing to a friend says, "My voyage to Europe is indefinitely postponed. I have discovered the 'fountain of health' on this side of the Atlantic. Three bottles of the Peruvian Syrup have rescued me from the fangs of the fiend Dyspepsia." Dyspeptics should drink from this fountain.

To those who suffer from Corns Bunions Bad Nails, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, &c, try Dr. J. Briggs' Curative. If used liberally as directed, relief is immediate, and cure certain. Sold by Druggists.

Are you a sufferer from Neuralgia Rheumatism or Pain of any description? Dr. J. Briggs Allevantor will soothe away your Neuralgia cure your Rheumatism, and banish your Pain. Sold by Druggistr.

Consumptives, try Dr. J. Briggs' Throat and Lung Healer. It will relieve and cure you.—For all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, nothing can surpass its beneficial effects. Sold by Druggists.

Bryan's Wafers.—The great public remedy have now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried, and pronounced (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a pure, harmless, and eminently salutary preparation, and if taken in season will invariably cure colds coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affection. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical.

The Ecumenical Council lately called at Rome is an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large assemblies of this nature constituting representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be as harmonious and unanimous as the verdict in favor of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, for diseases of the lungs, blood, stomach, liver, &c. For sale by all druggists.

A MYSTERY

AT

WHITE & McCULLAGH'S

Boot and Shoe Store, Peterboro.

I that rustic path was treading,
When the sun his rays were shedding—
Beaming, gleaming, fairly streaming through the trees:
And I watched the streamlet glistening,
As entranced I there was listening
To the melting, merry music on the breeze,
When beneath a tree reclining
Where no sun or ray was shining,
Lo! I saw a fellow-being on the ground!
Though no other feature abilted,
Quickly soon his eyes uplifted—
Upward lifted as he wildly looked around.
'Good friend,' said I, approaching,
'Do not charge me with encroaching—
Are you waiting for some messenger of news?'
But no other word he muttered,
And no other sentence uttered,
Save—'You'll find there's none like

WHITE & McCULLAGH'S

Boots and Shoes!'
'That's a strange expression, surely,'
Said I, looking down decurely,
'I trust, good sir, that you the question will excuse;'
But he only looked the prouder,
As he spoke the words the louder,
'There's always plenty comfort in WHITE & McCULLAGH'S Boots and Shoes!'
'Why, bless me, man!' I shouted,
As his sanity I doubted,
'Tis surely nought to me what people's goods you use!'
But he only cried the higher,
With enthusiastic fire,
'You'll save your cash by wearing WHITE & McCULLAGH'S Boots and Shoes!'
So I left him there reclining,
Where no ray of sun was shining,
And frequently I wondered at the words the man did use;
Thinking surely 'twas a mystery,
And that some hidden history
Was wearing round myself, and WHITE & McCULLAGH'S Boots and Shoes.
So then I resolved to try them;
Nay, I felt compelled to buy them.
And behold, I've cause for gladness,
That the words I deemed were madness,
Induced me thus to purchase

Matchless Boots and Shoes.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

STOP AND SEE!

The following items is an Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Kneestown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Cameron, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Papanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well. Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

Price of Remedy in large pints $1.00.

☞ For sale by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicine. Agents for Peterborough—Messrs. Kempt, Coulter, Ormond & Walsh, Ontario Drug Store, and Dr. Taylor and Dr. Bell.

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and Can Say in Confidence and Truth of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—Never has it Failed in a Single Instance to Effect a Cure, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak of terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW" after years of experience. And Pledge our Reputation for the fulfilment of what we here declare. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

CURES CROUP OR RATTLES.

Dr. Dingham, of Utica, New York, says:—"I have used Dr. A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment in my practice a number of years, and can say with pleasure I deem it one of the greatest discoveries of the age for the cure of inflammation of the Lungs, Inflammation of the Bowels, Inflammatory Rheumatism, and in Child Bed Fever, it operates with perfect success. In cases of Burns, Bruises, Frozen Limbs, it acts like a charm."

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"I has stood the test trial and has not been found wanting. Its astonishing cures of inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subsiding the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

"Dr. A. W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. A Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment" are on the wrapper.

The Sarsaparilla Diggers of Yucatan.—This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico, and still retain some of the peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., employ a small army of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with narrow spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild banana furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own. "For a That, an' a That."

BY PROFESSOR BLACKIE.

Is there for noble human kind
Who droops and doubts and a' that,
We'll pass him by, and what we find
We'll bravely do for a' that,
For a' that, and a' that,
Our ups and downs and a' that;
Though seeds are slow in March to grow,
We'll bide the June for a' that.

Some preach we're near the end of things—
To crack of doom and a' that—
When Constitutions, States and Kings,
Will fa' to smash and a' that,
For a' that, and a' that,
Their Dragons, Beasts, and a' that!
We'll love to God and love to men,
We'll beat the Deil for a' that.

Some trust in Churches and in Creeds,
The articles and a' that;
A crutch may help their limping needs—
My legs are mine for a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
Their ban, their bray, and a, that,
Though priests may blink, and prophets WINK,
There's truth in Christ for a' that.

Some swear by cassock and by cope,
Cross, candlestick and a' that;
But Christian faith and love and hope
May sit and smile at a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
Their scarlet dads and a' that;
Who walk with God will tread the sod,
High Priest o' men for a' that.

Some talk of forces and of laws,
Mixed atom-forces, and a' that,
But God's the force and Mind's the cause,
That spins the globe and a' that.
For a' that, and a' that,
Their peeping glass and a' that;
To him unseen behind the screen,
We'll bend the knee for a' that.

Then let us trust in manly wills,
An honest heart and a' that,
And love with sacred fire and fills
Heroic souls for a' that.
For a' that, and a' that
Their doubt and feats and a' that;
Though churches nod we'll trust in God,
And live by faith and a' that.

SHARP TRICK.—Pat went to the house of the priest to confess his sins, and passed into the kitchen to ask for the holy father; but perceiving that there was no one in the room, while a fine ham was lying on the table fresh from market, Pat lost no time in securing the prize. Hiding it as well as he could under his coat, he proceeded to the apartment of the priest, and said,

'Here, your riverence, is a fine bacon which I stole and brought as a present to your honiness. Will you take it?'

'Take it,' said the confessor; 'by no means. Carry it back, instantly.'

'Faith, and I did, sir, and he said he wouldn't take it by no means.'

'Very well, then, Patrick, you may keep it.'

'An' I'll be obserbed your riverance, will I?' demanded Pat.

'Yes; it is your, if the owner does not take it back.'

'Good morning! God bless ye! long life to you riverance!'

SHORT and Sweet.—Pay your debts as soon as you get any money in your pocket. Speak your mind when it is necessary, hold your tongue when prudent. Speak to a friend in a ready coat. If you can't lend a man money tell him why. If you don't want to, do the same. Cut any acquaintance who lacks principle. Bear with infirmities, but not vices. Respect honesty, despise duplicity. Wear your old clothes till you can pay for new ones. Aim at comfort and propriety, not fashion. Acknowledge you haven't got. Entertain your friends but never beyond your means.

WHO MOVED DAT WELL?—Some years since a prominent business man of Northampton, Mass., who began to sow his wild oats when a boy, and hasn't got all through yet, attended a colored ball at a house in Market street in that town. After each breakdown he noticed that a well near the house, which by the way was not a deep one, was resorted to by the men to quench their thirst. Unobserved while the dance was going on he slipped out of the house and moved the curb a few feet from the well, and waited the result. Presently out came one of the dancers and plump into the well he went. Blowing and puffing he came to the top, and exclaimed, 'By gorry, who's moved dis well since I'se out here last?'

A Scotch Judge condemned a man to be hanged on the 28th of the month for sheep-stealing. As the poor convict was being removed he exclaimed, 'My lord, my lord, I haena got justice here to day!' The Judge looked up from his papers, and said, 'Weel, Weel, my man, ye'll get it on the 28th!'

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy and Condition Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions thus equalising the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

C. P. & M. Railway and Mining Co.

The Annual Meeting of the shareholders of the C. P. & M. Railway and Mining Company was held in the Company's Office in this town, on Monday week pursuant to notice.

The Hon. Asa A. Burnham was appointed Chairman, and Mr. F. J. Haydon Secretary.

Col. Chambliss, the Managing Director, submitted a full report, stating the financial position of the company, giving an account of the sales and working of the iron ore during the past season, and concluding with the assurance that the standing and prospects of the company at the present time were much more favorable and encouraging than they had ever been heretofore.

The report having been received and adopted, the election of Directors for the present year was then proceeded with.

Messrs. W. Hargraft and E. S. Wiman were appointed scrutineers.

After the deposit of the votes, the scrutineers reported the following gentlemen unanimously elected, viz.: Isaac Butts, Thomas S. Blair, J. H. Shoenberger, John Ball, J. Harsman, G. K. Shoenbergur, Alex. Fraser, B. Burstall and W. P. Chambliss. The Mayor of Cobourg is also a Director ex-officio.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman having been passed, the meeting adjourned.

Raising Turkeys.

The following note was communicated by our esteemed contributor "Vectis" to the English Agricultural Gazette, and is reproduced in these columns, inasmuch as the suggestion it contains is worthy the attention of Canadian as well as English breeders of poultry.

"The turkey is a native of the American continent, and is found in the wild state all through the Western States, and often in the south-western part of Upper Canada. The wild mix with the tame, and do not produce mules, and are therefore, doubtless, of exactly the same species.—The tame turkeys often associate with the wild, and join their flocks, breeding with them, and sometimes coming home to the barn-yard in the winter with some of their progeny.

"Turkeys, in their wild state, always separate after the breeding season, and males and females into separate flocks, and they seem to avoid each other; they certainly migrate to considerable distances, and there is no known rule for their returning; the separation between the sexes seems to be complete, and if they ever meet again in pairs, it is undoubtedly by chance. It has been observed that the broods of wild birds are very large, whilst the broods of those kept in confinement are often very small broods is that the same male bird is kept year after year, and those who look to their turkeys for profit, therefore, spare no pains to change the male birds every year, replacing him by one from as great a distance as possible.—Many who have tried it say that, with the same male, they get good broods the first year, poor broods the second, and very bad one the third year. This is a piece of 'henwife love' that may be worth putting in force in England, where, for some reason or other, they do not raise one young turkey where they raise ten in America.—It can do no harm to try the experiment."

MALICIOUS OUTRAGE.

We learn from the London papers that during last Wednesday night some persons, at present unknown, entered the grounds of Hellmuth College and wantonly destroyed almost everything within their reach. A large number of windows were smashed with stones, the missiles being found inside,—valuable trees and shrubs broken and uprooted,—the fountain in the centre of the lawn overturned—gates unhinged and smashed to pieces,—and apparently as much damage done as the malicious spirit of the miscreants could suggest. The College, being nearly vacated at this holiday season, they suffered no interruption in their work of destruction, and the act was not discovered till this morning. Part of one of the gates was found near the Post Office. It is to be hoped that the villians may be detected and meet the punishment they deserve for such outrageous and unprovoked spreedings.

The Vine and Oak.—The following beautiful allegory is from the interesting Algic Researches of Henory R. Schoolcraft Esq—A vine was growing beside a thrifty oak, and just reached that height at which it required support. "Oak,' said the Ivy-Vine bend your trunk, so that you may be a support to me." 'My support,' replied the oak, 'is naturaly yours, and you may rely on my strength to bear you up, but I am too large and too solid to bend. Put your arms around me, my pretty vine and I will manfully support and cherish you, if you have an ambiton to climb as high as the clouds. While I thus hold you up, you will ornament my rough trunk with your pretty green leaves and shining scarlet berries. They will be as frontlets to my head, and I shall stand in the forest like a glorious warrior, with all its plumes. We were made by the master of life to grow together that by our union the weak may be made strong, and the strong render aid to the weak." 'But I wish to grow independently,' said the Vine, "why cannot you twine around me and let me grow up straight and not be mere dependant upon you?"—"Naturre,' answered the Oak, "did not so design it, It is impossible that you should grow to any height alone, and if you try it, the winds and rain, if not your own weight, will bring you to the ground. Neither is it proner, for you to run your arms hither and yon der among the trees. The trees will begin to say it is not my vine—it is a stranger—get thee gone, I will not cherish thee. By this time thou wilt be so entangled among the different branches, that thou canst not get back to the oak; and nobody will then admire thee, or pity thee." "Ah, me,' said the Vine let me escape from such a destiny and with this she twined herself around the Oak, and they both grew and flourished happily together.

PRESERVATION OF MEAT.—M. S. Benjamin, of Clyde, N.Y., asked how to keep beef. Mr. Crane—"In the first place, the blood must be soaked out; for this purpose, put it in pickle for eight or ten days. Then make a brine of fine salt (Ashton is best) and have it strong enough to bear up an egg or potato. Add some salt and some sugar, and change the brine as often as a thick scum appears upon the surface." Mr. Foster—"I happen to have a recipe in my pocket: One hundred pounds beef, nine pounds salt, two pounds sugar, two ounces saltpetre, two ounces black peper, pour on hot. I generally put the beef in weak brine to remove the blood, and in this way have kept beef good until on into September." Dr. Mezgrue—"I have used the same recipe without the peper, which is unnecessary," Francis Collins, of Morrisville, Pa.—"For every one hundred pounds of meat (pork or beef) take four pounds of fine salt, four ounces of ground saltpetre, and one pound of common brown sugar."

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continued, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence in many advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds taking a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures. many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of Scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which encouraged by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public scarcely need to be informed of its virtues or uses.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and survives the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its pre-existence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Ayer's Blister Plasters and Mercurial Ointment are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. The SARSAPARILLA is a great assistance for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Wearied, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections consequent on Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious simulengs exploded. All useless material discarded. The native principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form HABITUAL CONSTIPATION CURED. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL.—Those who have no hair may have it.—Those woo have plenty, may preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HEITS EZRIM HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't eat till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry JACOBS' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever invented is capable of more extended application. It has hundreds of imitators, but not one RIVAL. Beware of Counterfeits.

A REAL HAIR RESTORER AND DRESSING
Combined in One Bottle,

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
HAIR RESTORER

Will Restore Gray Hair to its Natural Life, Color and Beauty.

It is a most delightful Hair Dressing.
It will promote luxuriant growth.
FALLING HAIR is immediately checked,

Mrs. S. A. ALLEN'S ZYLOBALSAMUM, another preparation for the Hair; clear and transparent, without sediment. It is very simple and often produces wonderful results. Its great superiority and economy as a Hair Dressing over high cost French Pomades is acknowledged by all not only in this country but in Europe. The Restorer and Zylobalsamum should not be used one with the other. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

THE TRUE

THEORY OF PURGATION

APPLIED TO THE

Liver, Kidneys, Skin,

STOMACH & BOWELS.

DR. RADWAY'S

PERFECT

PURGATIVE PILLS,

Perfectly Tasteless,

ELEGANTLY COATED.

Dr. Radway has completed one of the most essential discoveries in medical chemistry—in the combination of vegetable substances, for the purposes of PURGATIVE, APERIENT, COUNTER-IRRITANT, ALTERATIVE PILL, that can be taken or administered with the absolute certainty of securing THOROUGH EXPULSION OF ALL DECAYED AND DECOMPOSING Elements of the human body, and also safe to take in the most enfeebled of Invalid Power. In cases where the mucous membranes of the internal viscera are suffering from Ulceration, Inflammation, or from

LIVER,

Gastric, Biliary, Pancreatic Complaints,

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS

supply the only Vegetable substitute for

CALOMEL or MERCURY.

In RADWAY'S PILLS you have one medicine that will secure quicker, more thorough and better results than will be given in from three or more different prescriptions of the medical practitioner. As a proof of this—You are seized with a Bilious attack! Doctor prescribes Blue Pills or Calomel and, may, some Drastic Aloetic Pill or Powders to work off the effects of the Blue Pill: this penetrates you, and a tonic is next given, or a quick aperient, whereas ONE DOSE OF RADWAY'S PILLS will do all the work that the three or more prescriptions are given for, without running any risk from mercurializing or salivating the system.

RADWAY'S PILLS.

In RADWAY'S PILLS, the true principle of purgation is secured—not alone to the cure of diminishing the feces and excrements from the bowels, but those humors that are checked or stopped in their passage through the Nose, Kidneys, Lungs, and all excreting and secreting functions! for if these excrementious secretions belonging to the skin, liver, lungs, kidneys, &c. (naturally in their course), become products of decay and decomposition, and must be purged from the living body through their proper channels: hence the purgative qualities of RADWAY'S PILLS extend to the excretions of the SKIN, KIDNEYS, LIVER, &c.; whereas not one of the advertised Pills claim to act beyond the bowels.

How to Take Radway's Pills.

THEIR DAILY USE.

In doses of one or two pills, by all persons of a full habit of body, subject to giddiness, rush of blood to the head, palpitation of the heart, and all those subject to fits, will not only keep the blood from becoming congested or clogged up in the blood vessels, but will equalize its circulation, and prevent sudden attacks of apoplexy, diseases of the heart, congestion. Persons who will take one of these pills every day will not suffer from Headaches, Dizziness, Hysterics, Fainting Spells, Pains around the Heart, and a hundred other disagreeable symptoms.

DYSPEPSIA.

RADWAY'S PILLS, two or three hours before dinner, taken daily, will keep the system free from DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, COSTIVENESS, &c.

Bear in Mind,

RADWAY'S PILLS are the only purgative that will secure an alterative, diuretic, sudorific, aperient and tonic influence.

They are the only vegetable substitutes for Calomel or Mercury.

They are elegantly Coated with Gum, perfectly Tasteless, and free from Smell.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

POISONED BLOOD.

When the blood becomes poisoned by the presence of an excess of BILE, UREA, CARBONIC ACID, and the excrementious secretions of the SKIN:—SORES, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, SPOTS, ULCERS, and HUMORS of all kinds break out on the surface.

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent,

When the blood is in this condition, should be taken alternately with RADWAY'S PILLS. The indication of Cure is to free the blood from the presence of these poisons, and restore the Elements of the Liver, Skin, Lungs, Kidneys, Bowels, to their proper duties. This effected, which RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT, aided with Radway's Pills, will soon secure—a Cure will be the result.

A BAD SKIN.—Spots, Morphew, Scurf, Pimples, Blotches, Pustules, Tetters, are caused by impurities of the Blood. Checked Perspiration, Sluggish Circulation of the Blood in the excreting vessels of the Skin. One or two doses of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT will rid the skin from these visitants, and insure all a beautiful, clear complexion.

UTERINE TROUBLES.—Prolapsus Uteri, Falling of the Womb, Ulcers, Tumors, Fever, cured by SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

Ladies suffering from Chronic Leucorrhœa, Weakness or Irritation of the Bladder and Urinary Passage, Difficulty of Passing Urine, &c., will be relieved by a few doses of RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT, and cured by a few bottles.

PARALYSIS CURED.

DUNDALK, Harrison Co., Ohio. May 12th, 1869.

Messrs. RADWAY & Co.

Gentlemen.—The RESOLVENT has effected a cure in a very severe case, that of a Mrs. Lemuel Johnston in this neighborhood. She was confined to her bed and had lost the use of her legs:—four bottles of the RESOLVENT has restored her, and last Sunday she was able to attend church. The demand for the RESOLVENT has increased, and we deem it advisable to order in time.

Yours truly, E. PITTIS & SON.

SARSAPARILLIAN.

So quick is RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN or RENOVATING RESOLVENT in entering into the circulation, that it may be detected in the urine, sweat, and blood in ten minutes after it has been taken.

A Remedy so quick in entering into the circulation and communicating its curative properties as RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN supplies a want that has ever existed.

RADWAY'S Sarsaparillian or Renovating Resolvent furnishes positive evidence of its Purifying and Fruitful efficacy in curing persons considered Impotent and Barren, who have since married and had children.

STOP THE WASTE OF LIFE!

RADWAY'S Sarsaparillian Resolvent will stop the waste of the life-fluid that in so many persons follows a discharge of water through the urethra. It is a positive cure for Spermatorrhœa, Nightly Emissions, &c.

SYPHILOID ULCERS.

Sores of all kinds, Tumors, Cancers, Sore Heads, Sores on the Tongue, in the Mouth, in the Glands of the Throat, cured by Radway's Sarsaparillian.

IMPOTENCY.

The best evidence we have of the powerful Purifying, Tonic, and Fruitful properties of Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent is that it has cured persons who were verging on Imbecility and Insanity through Self-Abuse, with continued drains of the seminal fluid, and were cured by the Resolvent, when prepared under the old process in 1850, who have married and have children now living. A few bottles will restore the vigor of life.

VIGOR OF LIFE RESTORED.

Persons who, from self-abuse, disease, or injuries, suffer from paralysis or weakness in the secreting vessels of the genital organs, will be cured by Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

SARSAPARILLIAN, PAREIRA BRAVA.

Two of the Wonderful Ingredients that enter into the composition of RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN or RENOVATING RESOLVENT.

There are some thirty or more different species of Sarsaparillian, and it requires great care and intelligence in selecting the proper kinds; so with Pareira Brava. The great respective agent is to be found in Guayaquil, Peru, Nicaragua, Brazil, and there are some twenty species of this root. Dr. Radway uses only one kind, that which grows in Brazil. His employe, through his agents, some but experienced and intelligent men in gathering, selecting, packing and shipping these roots to the United States. No ignorant savages or Hottentots are employed in gathering vegetables, roots, plants, &c., for the Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT is sold at $1 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $5, by all

I stooped, and wrote upon the sand
My name—the year—the day.
As onward from the spot I passed,
One lingering look behind I cast;
A wave came rolling high and fast,
And washed my lines away.

And so, methought, 'twill shortly be
With every mark on earth from me;
A wave of dark oblivion's sea
Will sweep across the place,
Where I have trod the sandy shore
Of time, and been to be no more,
Of me—my name—the mark I bore
To leave no track nor trace.

And yet, with Him who counts the sands,
And holds the waters in his hands,
I know the lasting record stands,
Inscribed against my name,
Of all this mortal part has wrought,
Of all this thinking soul has thought,
And from these fleeting moments caught
For [illegible], or for shame.

Matty and Maggy; Or Self and Self-Improvement.

A TALE OF ULSTER.

BY FRANCIS DAVIS, "THE BELFAST MAN."

"WHATEVER maun be will be!" True for you, Mrs. Tescup; but had Witherow known that his visits to the cottage of Donald M'Blain gave the country such matter for consideration, it is very probable his cousin had been in bed before this, and the hour unproductive of either story or incident. But there sat Nattie Cameron looking into the fire; and there stood Witherow thinking on Red Bay, or the caves in its vicinity. Now, these caves of Red Bay were only a short half-mile from where Witherow was musing; they were five in number.—One of them had been converted into a blacksmith's shop; one was inhabited by a lady who contrived to support herself by illicitly disposing of a drop of mountain dew to the natives or to an occasional visitor; two were used only as boat-houses for the neighbouring fishermen; while the fifth, larger than the others, and consisting of three chambers, chiselled, as were its neighbours, out of the solid rock, was used, at the time, as a school-room. Through this latter, for the last fifteen minutes, had Witherow been wandering in imagination, for amongst the fair pupils who attended the nightly teachings of Mr. Solomon Sorrowful was, as has been already hinted, Matty, the eldest daughter of Honest Donald.

We do not, however, mean to assert, with unshaken confidence, notwithstanding its growing to be the general opinion, that it was on the rueful-looking Matilda his young heart had bestowed the first flower of its affections; but we do know that Matty, on this particular night, had requested a special meeting with the youth, having had, when she saw him last, as she always had, at parting with him, something, when next they would meet, of the highest importance to communicate—something which, malgre the time she had already detained him, she could not, for the life of her, tell him then —'no' a bit o't!'

Nattie Cameron dropped backwards in his high-backed oaken chair, till said dingy throne raised and balanced itself on its two hinder legs. He then—not the chair, but Nattie—extended his mis-shapen limb on a low stool before him, planted his chin in his bosom, clasped his hands a little below the latter, and raising his thumbs, passed the one around the other with considerable ex-sotness and rapidity.

The hour of the school's adjournment was at hand, and Witherow had promised to be there long before the scholars would separate. What was he to do? There was his cousin fallen into the attitude that ever preceded a lecture on the mastery of godliness—a favorite subject with Nattie, and one which was sure to continue an hour at shortest. Under these circumstances Witherow knew too well the consequences of leaving the house abruptly, or of quitting for one moment the presence of his cousin till the last word was uttered—till the great mystery had, in reality, become the MASTER.

Oh! in that hour how Witherow hated, loathed thee, 'mastery' of godliness! Of the particular ideas cultivated in or under your dominion, he had, it is true, but a rather imperfect understanding; from those particular ideas when mingled with the mental mud and slime of Nattie Cameron, and clothed in the somewhat peculiar phraseology of that gentleman, one item of knowledge only seemed to be attainable. It taught that man was sent upon this earth to become wealthy whatever way he might; and that virtue in all, or any of its forms, was neither more nor less than villiany in disguise. However these things were, the lad knew that, in the present case, it was his business to listen and be delighted,—Delighted! Poor Witherow! and his heart bursting with impatience.

Witherow became pale, and paler. He flapped his hat—no, his cap—his bonnet—blue cloth bonnet, with its golden band, fiercely against his knees—fixed his fingers in his hair and tore it silently and revengefully—coughed, also, very long and very loudly—helped himself more than once to a draught of water, and, heaving a sigh, or rather a series of them, looked imploringly on his musing relative.

Jenny Maguire the house-keeper—a warm and simple-hearted old woman, some sixty years of age—sat at her wheel, by the fire opposite her master. She had performed the duties of the day for him and his, and was then employing the evening for herself. Upwards of twenty years she had managed the household affairs of Nattie Cameron, for which she received her bed, her board, and permission to spin for herself—that is to say, every third bank, only, being her own—when the daily work of her master was accomplished. These were her only wages; but her wants were few, and she felt that if the 'mayster had been but a wee trifle less o' the vinegar,' she could have been tolerably happy. As it was, she was ever cheerful, and very often not a little loquacious.

After a considerable silence, the lips of Nattie Cameron having been writhed and twisted, shot outwards, inwards, and compressed for a few seconds, at length, with a long and oft-repeated 'Hem—hem!' slowly separated:—

'Witherow—Issy—hem—Witherow Cameron—Cameron, aye—hem—Cameron, as we call you—hem, hem! The human heart is a most singular tubercule—that is, I mean to say, in the language of Scripture, 'We are strangely and wonderfully made!'

Witherow slowly acquiesced. The old housekeeper dropped her thread, and seizing her nose betwixt her finger and thumb, as though she endeavoured to wring a reply from that organ, held it a few seconds, dropped it despairingly—elevated her countenance, and casting through her spectacles a commiserating glance on the distorted limb of Mr. Cameron, shook her head mournfully as she uttered, in an exceedingly sympathetic tone, 'True for ye, mayster; but Guid kens we canna help them things.'

'Help! Mo—rtality no!' shouted Mr. Cameron, starting from the reverie into which he again was falling, and glancing hurriedly and fiercely towards the door:—

'Who are you talking to about help?' he demanded vehemently of his housekeeper.

'I was only sayin' we canna help the way we're made,' returned Miss Maguire, venturing a second glance on the mis-shapen object of her so misplaced solicitude.

'You're a most inconsiderable ould fool!' muttered her master, as he dwindled again into his theological abasement.

'I'm a very charitable man, Witherow,' he continued, after a pause.

Witherow uttered something in a whisper. The housekeeper closed a long, low groan, with an abrupt short sound beneath her breath, like the 'bumph!' of an unbeliever. Her master proceeded:—'There is a benevolence in my heart that is very ill to be fathomed!——

'Consequently, never found!' whispered Witherow, in an agony.

'I give my substance every Sabbath till, almost, I am a ruined beggarman, long ago; but—but—but that he who giveth to the poor lendth to Him 'Who feeds the ravens with a shepherd's care!' But, I was wanting a little conversation, on a different subject, with you, Witherow, my man.'

'My dear cousin knows I am always—happy to hear him talk with me,' stammered Witherow; 'but,' he continued, 'if another time would do as well as the present, it would oblige me, as well as poor Mr. Sorrowful.'

'So, so! Mr. Sorrowful! Eh!—and may your dear cousin venture to prognosticate a few remarks—that is to say, queries, on what may be the nature of your business with Mr. Sorrowful? Recollect, my dear boy, that man is an animal of a query-absorbing propensity; and your charitable relative is not extinct from the general rule.'

'I generaly lend the gentleman an hour or so in the evening,' replied the lad, 'to aid in the instruction of his pupils.'

'So, so! gentleman—gentleman—eh!—Hem—I thought Mr. Sorrowful was—was a—hem—hem—next door to a common beg—hem—been! He's not so badly off, then—is he?'

'Well, Sir,' said Witherow, 'I am not at all acquainted with his pecuniary position; but, seeing that he has both the address and education of a gentleman, I never hesitate to bestow the title.'

'Bah—Witherow Cameron! mere barbarosity, my little gudgeon! No man can be a gentleman without the blessing of God, which money, my boy! And, as for education—fee-fa-fum! It a man can make his markets, and lecture a little on the thriologies, he has enough of it—quite enough of it! Education, my dear fellow, is altogether an extraneous verbosity—died in it. I wish I had much less of it!'

'It's terribly severe upon the temper,' cautiously observed Miss Maguire.

'May I ask, would our conversation do as well at another time, Sir?' as cautiously added Witherow.

'At another time! Why—hem—yes; but—hem—a word or two with you, Witherow. I have been given to understand that your natural organ has taken some peculiar titulation; and—hem, hem!—that is—that it has to be hung daily over Donald M'Blain's fire, before it can be transposed again. Is that so, my gudgeon?'

Poor Witherow! In vain attempting to speak, he

"Blushed and reddened like a rose,
Syne pale as ony lily."

'So, so!' said Nattie; 'well, never mind, my boy. An earley bird, sure enongh; but, as it's the early bird that gets the early worm, move along my lad. Hem, hem, ha! You'll get little but a worm in that quarter. So, so! Now, mind me, Witherow: You know I'm a charitably disposed man, living apart from my neighbors, and wishing to do so—but, that Donald M'Blain —hem—Heem! Whisper, Witherow: Donald's a villain—a back-biter! So, so! I know it, but I can't prove it. You could help me! Mark me, now: When you're in his house, have an eye about you. You have ears—eh? Don't keep them in your pocket—take a circumventory of his chinchuck. Do you mind me, now—So, so! Move along, my lad!'

'And would my cousin wish me to play the spy upon his neighbours?' indignantly inquired Witherow. 'The spy! Ha, ha! Spy, spy—so, so! Play the devil, you dog you, if I desire it; and why not?—if it was not for my trenchers, you'd be playing the ghost somewhere. But, hear me, my gudgeon: Believing, as I do, that Honest Donald is the name of a sartin dishonest knave; and feeling preponderate in my animal economy, tantamount to an oath upon the matter, I intend to make you prove it, you dog, very shortly. So, so! Now, then, move, along, my lad!'

The color rose and fell for a few moments on the cheek of young Witherow; but the lad wassilent. Nattie Cameron proceeded;—

'There, now, keep quiet, my gudgeon! It's all benevolence on my part. I haven't spoke to the man for the last quarter of a century—he's a dangerous man! I intended never to speak to him, if he lets me alone. Maybe he will, too; but that's not Enough—Withie, my boy; do you hear me, now?'

Witherow started from the table against which he had been leaning, stood erect, and, while his lips quivered with emotion, he looked his cousin in the face, and uttered emphatically—

'Dear cousin, I honestly believe that you are wrong, and that Donald M'Blain is an upright man, and every way worthy of the name he bears!'

'And I believe that you are an impudent, disobedient young liar, that would frustrate the benevolent perambulations of our nature! So, so, now—move along, there!'

Witherow was excited; he had spoken, and was now prepared for the worst. He continued:—

'That, in this particular, I am disobedient, and likely to be so, I admit; that I am young, I also grant, but a liar I know I am not. More than this—tell me,' he went on, while all the pent-up fires of his ardent nature flooded his countenance—'tell me,' he repeated, 'if unconnected with our neighbour or his affairs, and desirous of so continuing, when did our inquiries after his moral character originate in benevolence? We make such enquiries, not with the view of palliating his errors, misfortunes, or offences—for, were such our object, with the holy veil of charity we could screen, or endeavour to screen them, as well when they live in hearsay, farther than which we would not seek, as when they exist in our unclouding knowledge; but we hunt after them, not only in a fiendish desire for the hellish music of calumny, but to find therein a fulcrum upon which the lever of our condemnation—our malice—our misanthropy—may act with a force the greater and a precision the more dealy.'

'Bravo! Bravo! Parson Pennywhistle! Faith we'll be the great man some day, when you're able to bullyrag your henniesector so supereminently as it is. But I'll tell you, Mr. Full-cramb, though your whiran-gee is not just the easiest thing understood, I'm most tenderly delighted with the modest delivery of; and Mr. Cameron, drying from his chair, and having laid hands upon the lad, squeezed him to the open door, where he continued:—

'And now, my most obedient relative, as your young blood, to judge by the color of your features, is rather hot at present, and the air without there pathetically free and cooling, you can just move about in it till such times as I send for you; and till the natural condemnation of your new acquaintance, Miss Anne Trophie, you can let her liver [illegible] on that, jist,' and, accompanying his words with a barbarous thrust of his foot [illegible]—'Not, by any manna [illegible] to me till she requires a force pump [illegible] perdition the three dead-

A wild groan straggled through the lips of the MAYSTER, as, reeling along the pavement, he turned to address a few words to his cousin; but Nattie had withdraw—his door, also, was closed, and Witherow felt that on him it was closed for ever.

CHAPTER II.

Let us go back to the cottage of honest Donald, and seek some further acquaintance with his elder daughter. We left Matilda, as she entered at the end of our opening [illegible] with a step unusually firm and queenly, and eyes directed towards the heavens, while a most wickedly eloquent scowl perching upon her countenance, sang forth as audibly as any scowl might be empowered, in the words of the old song:—

"Adieu, adieu! you faithless world—
You never were made for me!"

Its silent proprietress seated herself on a low stool, that same scowl continuing most indignantly to assert that this world was a most villinous world, and that superlatively diabolical was everything therein, with barely an exception. Here, while she sits in silence, let us present our readers with a photograph.

Nature, whose brain, it will be admitted, is freaky as the fingers of a juggler, in the formation of the sisters, mentally and physically, had failed not to discover her unquenchable thirst for variety. On no two human beings could she have ran her lines of distinction broader or deeper than on these two sisters, Matty and Maggy M'Blain.—Matty who, as already insinuated, shivered in the six-and-twentieth Winter of her pilgrimage, was, in the literal as well as figurative sense of the phrase, a very low person. From the outer edge of the heel to the tip of her clasping comb, Matty measured exactly four feet, one inch and a quarter.—But of a corresponding delicacy of parts the damsel had no grounds for complaint, being as her countryman, the owner of the immortal blanket, would have had it, 'as broad as she was narrow.'

Of a truth, Matty was a strange-looking personage, her short, wiry, and comb-defying ringlets standing out from her cranium like oaken chips newly stricken from a mossback, and her narrow stripe of a lichen-colored forehead, surmounting a flat nose and a couple of broad puffed out cheeks, like a modicum of twopenny riband, or a partially embrowned half-inch on the edge of a gigantic toad-stool.

Matilda was seldom in the habit of wearing shoes or brogues, from the simple fact that her feet were so broad they could as seldom be fitted; and though not precisely web-footed—as a certain indefinable feature in her carriage, something between a roll and a bunt, seemed to insinuate—she could not have failed to strike the mental eye of a naturalist as a creature entitled to his closest observation—a sort of treatise on the mystery of unity, or family connection, between one species of animal and another—in short, a kind of walking amphibiology—She had, moreover, a large mouth, immoderately lauded with long and exceedingly dusky ivory.

Though not of a temper calculated to sweeten remarkably the cup of life connubial, the nature of Matty M'Blain drew none of its acid from the facts we have been communicating. Of her personal interiority to her sister she was partially aware; but in this she was more than consoled by a comfortable knowledge of the superior possessions which were hers, in a mind whose powers of penetration and discernment—to the utter discomfiture of phrenology—had procured for her not only the esteem but the admiration and homage of the surrounding country.

Matty was au-fait in all the arts of divination known and practised by the pettiest-ad magi of her locality. In the tossing of cups, the cutting of cards, and the reading of dreams, as well as in the various methods of getting a peep at the future resorted to at particular periods, such as May-eve, Hallow-eve, &c., Matty may have had an equal at some era of the world's history, but certainly no superior.

The getting up of the wind, or the down of the rain was no mystery to her long before, any more than it was to that whiskered oracle, the cat, who exhibited to Matty her love for, and knowledge of, such natural phenomena as well by the manner of her fireside abulitions as by that in which she struck her talons in the non-susceptible limb of a chair or poked them capriciously in the delicate ribs of a captive mouse. And as to the arrival of a stranger, or of news to the cottage of her father, or any neighbour with whom she may have been on terms of intimacy, let Matty and a crowing cock alone for a knowledge of that! A stranger, indeed, to think of visiting honest Donald without the prevision of Matty! He might as well have thought to domesticate a young whirlwind without the aid of a fairy intermother.

With this superior knowledge, Matty, as already hinted, was, at least, generally in the habit of consoling herself for the acknowledged inferiority of her personal attractions; though it must be admitted that occasions did occur well calculated to compel poor Matty, in her own heart, to avow that a younger and more beautiful sister may be a very questionable piece of comfort to an unmarried lady.

But to return.

'What kin' o' a night are gaun tae hae, Matty?' inquired old Donald of the frowning damsel on the opposite side of the fire.

'Gran' night for young ducks or for auld deevils: the baith o' them wad be the better o' water, an' ane o' them, ony way, o' somethin' tae whiten them,' returned the moody maiden, as seizing the tongs, she raked the hot ashes, and placed the burning peat in such proximity to her person as proved pretty plainly that a good fire was not among her notions of the disagreeable.

'You think it'll be either rain or snaw, then,' returned the old man, somewhat coolly; "but I'd rather hae heard ye say so, Matty dear, without usin' the name o' the enemy.'

'How does Mr. Sorrowful get along?' inquired Maggy' wishing to change the subject.

He's an auld fool; an' sorra a ane but a fool 'al gang near him,' replied her sister, adding—'Matty may wag un'her an inky-lation o' thum' rates the next time she bothers her head wi' his tachment!—But hand, there, hand awee, there! Dinna snuff that can'le, weanie! Look there—gin ye no tae me if there's no a daith in it. Augh—augh! whaur's the fool thing lookin'; dye no' see the shavin' there, on the side o't, as plain as ever rowled off a coffin? Guid take care o' yer sauf, Matty! Augh—augh! a thrawsn' tae nae but its for myself,' said same coffin!' and fixed her small twinkling eyes with a horrible interest upon the [illegible] where—terribly true it was—hung the [illegible] shavings.

Now, though Matty did not mean to insinuate that she saw on said candle either a bona-fide coffin or yet a bona fide dead shaving, she would have been quite willing to testify, in any required form, that the more than ordinary amount of grease—consequent, perhaps, on a recent too closely tapping of the light—dissolved round the lower part of the wick, and passing from a peculiar action of the air, undulatingly over the consuming edge, frosting and curling as it passed, till, flat and thin, it had attained some half-inch in length, by about one-eighth in breadth—Matty, we say, would cheerfully have given her 'chavie' that said frozen grave—pecunically termed a shaving—was a true and supernatural indication of a death at hand.

'Mercy on me, the nicht!' Matty continued, 'that shavin' may be aff o' my candle; an' Guid sure me! I hae a terrible thumpin' on me, an', the mair I dinna like to complain, I've had a wallopin' and a wallopin' about my heart for the last half hoor an' mair. What'na way dae they tak' the fires, [illegible] as it no wi' a quarter-o-awee over the back?'

'Hoot, Matty!' said the old man, 'dinna talk that way, wench; there's nae sickness gaun tae trouble ye. The nicht was a wee thing sharp, ye ken; an' ye awa without yer cloak or even a bit shawl o' yer head, ye may hae gatten a wee dose o' the cauld; but I'm sheur its nae'thing mair.'

'I'll hev a drap water in' baith yer feet, Matty,' said her sister, starting up for the purpose.

'Dae, Maggy dear; and scaud me a drap milk, a wi' a sand o' meal in't—gie's a guy catch o' meal, Maggy! Augh—augh!' she continued, 'but it's easy for my father to say he's sheur; but there's a stiff nin' 'na a wrack about the wast o' my back—an' a [illegible] an' a [illegible] that's no' there for naethin'. Augh—augh! Fast wi' the drap milk dear! I'll never see the morn' it I'm no better. Leuk—leuk father! Dae ye see how my head wabbles when I thry tae haud it up. Augh—augh—augh!'

Donald, shrewd [illegible] that there was more at work than indigestion, could hardly avoid smiling over the supposed scabbling of her head, as he rose and, hastily producing a large woollen shawl, approached to the unfortunate. He was preparing to fold the article round the shoulders of his child, who, no longer able to sit upright, had sunk sidelong upon the chair left unoccupied by her sister, gazing upon her for at least a minute with the garment in his out stretched hands, he suddenly exclaimed, 'What—what is this? Bring that candle, Maggy, and look here!'

Maggy obeyed, when behold a small portion of sailcloth, a fragment of fishing-net, and a large quantity of teased rope, or oakum, were firmly, though most antisefully, wedded to the back of the horribly-grinning damsel by means of a broad and thick coating of tar or pitch.

'Whaur hae ye been th' nicht, Matty?' inquired her father, without attempting to meddle with the parent of her supposed 'Fiver.'

'Whaur hae I been, is it? Div ye no' ken whaur I've been—was I no' at the nicht school? Augh! augh! augh!'

'Was ye in nae ither place, Matty, either ye cam fra the nicht schuil?'

'Augh—augh! Is it a beginnin' to cross-question a crathur that's deein', ye are?—Augh! augh! The dhrap scanded milk, Maggy dear! Fast! fast! Augh! augh!'

'Gie me answer tae my question, Matty,' continued Donal, growing louder in his tone. 'Whaur did ye gang either ye cam' out the schuil?'

'Into neither a boose nor a-hall boona Neddie M'Gee's boat-house, whaur I leant my back awee agin the boat; for I had a fidam o' this comin' owre me. Augh! augh! Ye'll soon hae done wi' me noo—ye'll soon hae done pittin' sic questions tae me—aye will ye! Augh! augh! There, noo, Gud bless ye for the dhrap milk, dear. Augh, augh! Hand! In it laughin' ye're at me, Maggy? Dae ye want me tae rise tae ye? Hech! hech! I fin' myeel' fentin' fast!'

'What took ye into the boat-house, Matty?' inquired her father, with increasing vehemence.

'Will ye pit me awa tae bed—will ye dae that will ye? Augh—augh! I'll dee amang yer hands—aye I will!'

'Matty—I say, Matty, ye maun answer my question, and this instant!'

'I maun—maun I? Ah, weel, then, tak' my answer—ye may as weel dae that as tak' my life, what yer deein'; augh! augh! I gaed into the boat-house to wait a meenit on my wee Witherow.'

Disallowance of the Supply Bill of Ontario.

The Governor General by the advice of John A. McDonald, has refused confirmation to the Act of the late Ontario Legislature granting supplies for the year. What a statesman John Sandfield must be, to be thus coming into collision yearly with John A.! Do the old bickerings still exist between the Coalitionists? Is John A. determined to humble John S. in the same way that he has injured Mr. McDougall, and is seeking to ruin the reputation of all who at any time opposed him? This appears to be the real root of the matter, but John Sandfield's Patent Combination has not political sagacity enough to avoid the breakers or quicksands of John A's old party feelings. The sooner this unhallowed coalition is broken up, and wholesome party government established, the better for the country, and especially for Ontario; and the sooner, too, will the country get rid of men whose political life has been one scene of corruption and venality.

Mr. McDougall is now reported as alienated from the Government, and likely to go into opposition on the Red River policy. He should have done so long ago. Such a course would have ensured for him an honorable position in public opinion, and would have ensured for him a name among Canadian statesmen that perhaps even the remainder of his life may fail to secure.

S. S. PECK, Esq., WARDEN.

The County Council met on Tuesday, and after a few minutes re-elected Mr. Peck, Reeve of Minden, Warden for this year, by 14 out of 18 votes; one member not voting. During the two years that Mr. Peck has been in office he has shown himself efficient, attentive and agreeable, and aided by the Council and Finance Committee has succeeded in establishing a healthy and safe system of banking, securing for the County interest for their money when on deposit, and arranging the bank account so that discounts are paid only for sums actually needed for short dates. The bank account being somewhat in the nature of a mutual running account, receiving and paying interest as the balance may be in favor of or against the Council.

The expenditures, too, of the Council have been on very equitable terms, and and only where thought absolutely necessary. There are many who think that the County Council is very burdensome, but when it is considered how much the law compels them to do and pay without a question, it will be found that all other sums are as well husbanded as is possible.

There are, no doubt, other gentlemen in the Council well qualified to discharge the duties of Warden, but the almost unanimous vote of the Council speaks volumes of the manner in which the present Warden has done his duty in the opinion of the members. It is certain that his affability, agreeableness and faithful discharge of duty cannot be surpassed.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

We delayed this issue to get in as much of the County Council proceedings as possible.

Mr. T White, Jr. will Lecture this evening at 8 o'clock, in the Music Hall.

Mr. Hill again offers the Music Hall for the benefit of the Home, to any party who wishes to get up an entertainment for that purpose.

The dead body of an infant, concealed, was lately sent by express from Toronto to Montreal in a leather trunk, addressed to R. Stinson. No clue to the matter has yet been discovered.

LAKEFIELD.—The Anniversary Soiree of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church, will be held on Tuesday, 1st., of February.—Tea at two o'clock. Several Revd. gentlemen will afterwards deliver addresses.

AN EVENING WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS.—On Thursday evening, 30th of February, the young people of the Wesleyan Sabbath School, will give an entertainment of readings, dialogues, recitations and singing.—Tickets only 15 cents; a reduction made to families. Go and hear the young folks.

FIRE.—Part of what is known as Renfrew's Coopering establishment was consumed by fire, on Sunday morning, between 5 and 6 o'clock. The loss is considerable It was ensured in the Commercial Union to the amount of $1,500. It is believed to have been the work of an incendiary.

PERSONAL.—It will be seen by minutes of the County Council that W. Sheridan, Esq., has resigned his position as Treasurer of the County. Mr. Sheridan has been Treasurer 25 years last August, and during that time has given as general satisfaction as any man could be expected to give. He was always courteous, and obliging to the utmost, and has been considered a faithful and efficient Treasurer.

Mr. E. Pearce, County Clerk, is to succeed him, and his being so conversant with the affairs of the office, will tend very much to prevent any serious disarrangement being caused by the change. We only wish that Mr. Pearce may retain it as long as his predecessor. We have no doubt of his being an efficient and likewise an obliging public officer.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

JANUARY SESSION.

The members met for the different municipalities, met, on Tuesday, at the Court House.

Present—Messrs. John Walton, I. Gerrard, James Miller, Thos. Blezard, T. Coughlan, J. Brown, T. G. Choate, A. McDonald, F. Peck, S. S. Peck, John Hunter, W. W. Armstrong, Wm. Moher, Jer. McCarthy, W. S. Clegg, M. D., W. Wood, D. Buck, and R. D. Rogers.

About three o'clock they assembled in the Council Chamber. The Clerk announced that according to their standing rules, as amended last session, the Council would record their votes by ballot, which being done, it was found that fourteen votes were given for S. S. Peck, Esq. Fourteen being a majority of the whole Council, the Clerk declared Mr. Peck duly elected.

This is the third year for Mr. Peck to be chosen Warden of this County, and the fact that he had fourteen votes out of nineteen members indicates his popularity and the general satisfaction he has given during the past years.

Mr. Peck then made the necessary declaration of office before John Walton, Esq., and was conducted to the chair by Messrs. Millar, Reeve of Otonabee, and Garbutt, Deputy Reeve of Smith.

Mr. Peck then briefly addressed the Council, saying:—"On again assuming the position of a renewal of your confidence I have very little to say, as I can hardly find words to express myself. but I do say that your renewed confidence in me will have the effect of causing renewed activity on my part to discharge the duties of the honorable position to which I have been chosen, as faithfully as I am able."

The minutes of the last meeting were then read and signed.

On motion of Mr. Walton, seconded by Mr. Garbett, Messrs. Rogers, Miller, Gilmour, Coughlan, Choate, Moher, and the mover were appointed a Committee to draft the Standing Committees for the year.

On motion of Mr. Millar, seconded by Mr. Blizard, Mr. Balmer was appointed Sessional Clerk for the present year.

On motion of Mr. Moher, seconded by Dr. Clegg, J. J. Hall, Esq., was appointed Auditor for the year.

The Warden appointed C. Barton, Esq., the other Auditor.

The Band, under their very efficient Band-master, Mr. A. H. Rackett, at this point started some very cheerfull music in the way of of serenading the new Council.

On motion of Mr. F. Peck, the Council adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow, to let the committee to work.

WEDNESDAY.

The Council met about ten o'clock, a. m. The Warden, S. S. Peck, Esq., in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The Warden read a communication from Walter Sheridan, Esq., resigning his situation as Treasurer. The following is a copy of the letter:

County Treasurer's Office.
Peterboro, January 26, 1870.

To the Warden and Members of the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough, in Council assembled:

GENTLEMEN,—I beg respectfully at this first session of the County Council for the year 1870, to resign my office as County Treasurer, for the following reasons, viz.:

The increased and constantly increasing duties and responsibilities of my office were too much for me; therefore, I found it necessary to employ assistants at my own expense, especially in the non-resident department.

In requesting to be relieved from the responsibilities of my office I feel confident that I shall put you to no inconvenience, as Mr. Pearce, your Clerk, now being employed as an assistant in my office for the past eight years, is quite conversant with every branch of my business, as Treasurer, and will, I am sure, be able and willing to render you every assistance you may require, in order, finally to close my accounts.

In closing a connection which has lasted over a quarter of a century, I take this opportunity of thanking the councillors, generally, for the kindness and courtesy with which I have always been treated by them since my first appointment by commission under the Governor General of Canada, in the month of August, 1844, to the office of Clerk of the Colborne District, to the present time.

I have the honor to be, gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
WALTER SHERIDAN.

On motion of Mr. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. Millar, the resignation of the Treasurer was accepted and the consideration of the appointment of a new Treasurer, referred to the Committee on Appointment to Office.

On motion of Mr. Walton, seconded by Mr. Garbutt,—Certain accounts and claims were referred to the Finance Committee.

Moved by Mr. Coughlan, seconded by Mr. Brown,—That John Kennedy and T. G. Choate, two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, for the County of Peterboro, be associated with the County Judge for auditing Jail and other general expenses connected therewith: this to be referred to the committe on appointments to office. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Brown,—That the report of the special committee appointed to draft the several standing committees, for the year 1870 be received and read. Carried.

REPORT.

On motion of Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, the report was adopted.

Report of Committee appointed to draft the standing Committees for the year 1870.

The special Committee appointed to draft the standing Committees for the current year, beg leave to report.

That the following gentlemen are recommended to compose the several Committees as under:

COUNTY PROPERTY.

John Walton, Esq., chairman, and Messrs. Rogers, Gilmour, Miller, Coughlin, Moher and Armstrong.

ROADS AND BRIDGES.

James Miller, Esq., chairman, and Messrs McCarthy, F. Peck, Choate, Moher, Garbut, Brown, Clegg and Armstrong.

SCHOOLS.

F. Peck, Esq., chairman, and Messrs. Clegg, Buck, Blizzard, Brown Hunter and Walton.

FINANCE AND ASSESSMENT.

T. G. Choate, Esq., chairman, and Messrs Rogers, Miller, Coughlin, Walton, Gilmour, McCarthy, Moher and Armstrong.

BOUNDARIES.

J. Brown, Esq., chairman, and Messrs. McDonald, Woods, Buck, Hunter, Garbett and Blizard.

PAINTING.

J. Garbett, Esq., chairman, and Messrs. Woods, McDonald, Armstrong, Hunter, Coughlin and Buck.

APPOINTMENT TO OFFICE.

J. W. Gilmour, Esq., chairman, and Messrs. Miller, Clegg, Garbett, McCarthy, Brown, F. Peck, Choate and Woods.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

T. G. CHOATE, Chairman.

Committee Room, Peterboro, Jan. 25, 1870.

The Council adjourned.

THURSDAY.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Millar, Dr. Burnham, Mr. Clarton and Mr. Dunlop were heard as a deputation from the Grammar School Board, asking to be allowed to erect a Primary School House in the old burying ground. The matter was referred to the Committee on County Property.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Wood, the Committe on Appointments reported.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

The committee on appointments to office beg leave to recommend the following persons to be appointed to fill the several offices herein mentioned:

For Treasurer, Edg. Pearce, Esq., with a salary of seven hundred dollars, as Treasurer, which, with his present salary of five hundred dollars, as Clerk, will amount to twelve hundred dollars.

That J. A. Butterfield and W. H. Stephenson be Trustees for Grammar Schools at Norwood.

That Mr. J. W. Gilmour be Trustee for the Grammar School at Peterboro.

That Mr. J. Stratton be Local Superintendent of Schools for the Townships of North Monaghan, Smith, Otonabee, Douro, Ennismore, Dummer, Asphodel, Belmont, Methuen, Harvey, Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos.

That the Rev. Mr. Burt be Local Superintendent of Schools for Galway, Snowden Minden, Stanhope and Dysart.

SUB-TREASURERS OF SCHOOL MONEYS.

Asphodel, W. H. Stephenson; Belmont, Philip J. Garrison; Dummer, F. Lumsden; Douro, County Treasurer; Smith, County Treasurer; Monaghan, John Dobbin; Harvey, David Brodie; Ennismore, F. Moloney; Galway, C. Irwin; Snowdon, Geo. Andrews; Minden, Geo. Andrews; Stanhope, Alfred Moore; Burleigh, County Treasurer; Otonabee, George Read; Dysart, A. H. Garrett; Sessional Clerk, Stephen Balmer; Inspector of weights and measures, J. R. Benson; County Engineer, Jas. Bird; Special Engineer, G. A. Stewart, to complete the Mud Lake and Pigeon Creek Bridges; Surgeon of Jail, Dr. McNabb; Advisory Committee, J. Walton and J. W. Gilmour, Esqrs; Board of Audit, John Walton and J. Carnegie, Esqrs.

Moved by Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Wood,—That the report be received and adopted.

Mr. Coughlan, seconded by Mr. Brown, moved in amendment, that the report be referred back with instructions to include the name of Mr. Choate instead of that of Mr. Walton on the Board of Audit.

The report was read clause by clause and adopted, except this one, but the amendment was lost.

Moved by Mr. Brown, seconded by Mr. Armstrong,—That Major Kennedy's name be inserted instead of Mr. Carnegie's.—This amendment was lost.

On motion of Mr. Rogers, seconded by Mr. Hunter, Mr. Armstrong's name was added to the advisory committee. The report was then adopted.

Col. Poole and Mr. Dunnett, by request, addressed the Council, asking a grant for supporting the 57th Battalion Band.

On motion of Mr Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, several communications were referred to committees, to which they related.

Moved by Mr. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. F. Peck,

And Resolved,—That as one of those who met on several occasions in this Council, the late George Young, Esq., and whose illness commenced last session while in the faithful discharge of his duties as Reeve of North Monaghan, has since been removed by death, and as the members of this Council who knew him, held him in the highest esteem as a gentleman, as an associate, and as the representative of North Monaghan, this Council cannot allow the present occasion to pass without expressing their deep sympathy with the family of our late esteemed colleague; and this Council would also express their testimony of respect to the memory of the deceased, whose conduct, as a member of it, was always upright, honorable and just, and that the Clerk do forward a copy of this resolution to Mrs. Young and family.

A motion of Mr. Armstrong, asking a grant of $750, in addition to $250 already voted; provided the County of Northumberland would grant a like sum, and the Government as much as both Counties, to erect a bridge at the Narrows of the Trent, was referred to the Finance Committee.

Moved by Mr. Coughlan, seconded by Mr. Armstrong,—That Messrs. Armstrong, Clegg, Wood, Millar and the Mover, be a special committee to obtain information in reference to the disposal of $20,000 of debentures, sold under By-law 264, in 1865. This motion withdrawn.

The Council, after some discussion on Mr. Coughlan's motion, adjourned till two o'clock.

TAKE YOUR OWN PAPER.—As this is the time of year our friends in the country begin to make up clubs for papers or renew their subscriptions for the same, we would invite their aid for their home paper. If people would extend the patronage given to foreign journals to their local organs, they would ensure much better papers than they now get. Let us, then, urge our friends to support their home papers as well as other home institutions, first, and then if they desire, aid those outside. It should be a pleasure to all good citizens to see that home business is properly patronized and built up, that it may add prosperity and wealth to the community in which it is carried on.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met yesterday evening in special session, the Mayor presiding.

The report of the special committee, appointed by the County Council to superintend the construction of the Mud Lake and Pigeon Creek Bridges, was read, and aid asked to complete necessary booms and anchors that the engineer and committee found would have to be added before the bridges could be considered secure.

There was considerable irregular discussion concerning the part the town had done and was expected to do.

Messrs. Stevenson and Edmonds both remarked that the Town Council could do nothing more without a special act of parliament.

The Warden addressed the Council by request, and said that the County had done all they ever agreed to do, and he thought that if the town would do nothing more, that the County Council would be compelled to erect the bridges as agreed, and then if the Town did not aid as it ought to do, let them go to ruin, as they would go; and let them.

Several members of the Town Council urged the members of the County Council to place the Bridges in a safe condition, and that next fall an act might be obtained to enable them to assist.

Mr. Millar, Reeve of Otonabee, thought if the County made the necessary outlay, that was the end of it.

The Mayor left the chair because of the disorder in discussion, and the Council broke up, without doing anything, as was generally believed, because they had no power to grant any more for the purpose.

Agricultural—West Riding.

At the annual meeting on Thursday last, John Walton, Esq., President presiding, the report for the year was read.

Receipts were $1000.94; Paid to Branch Societies, $4.20; Old accounts, $60.27; Prizes, $372; Expenses of 1869, $141.16; Yet due for prizes, $14.50; Cash on hand, $9.51.

OFFICERS FOR 1870—John Walton, Esq., President; Jos. Walton, Esq., 1st vice do; Ed. Kerr, Esq., 2nd vice do; J. Carnegie, Jr., Secretary and Treasurer.

DIRECTORS—Messrs. George Tully, M. Sanderson, J. W. Gilmour, E. Mann, I. Garbutt, H. Collins, John Riddell, A. Mann and J. White.

AUDITORS—J. Edwards and W. Coulter, Esqs.

ASPHODEL, BELMONT & DUMMER.

The annual meeting was held at Norwood, on the 14th inst. F. Birdsall, Esq., was chosen President; Robt. Fife, Esq., 1st Vice President; John Humphries, Esq., 2nd Vice President; W. E. Roxburgh, Esq., Secretary and Treasurer.

DIRECTORS—Messrs. Grover, P. Pearce, John Pettigrew, Thomas Howson, J. B. Fitzpatrick, R. Howson, D. Rose, P. Fitzpatrick and John Blizard.

AUDITORS—J. A. Butterfield and Thos. Smith, Esqs.

We give space to several communications this week, which are, in our opinion, entirely personal, and are only admitted upon the ground that the parties look upon their position as anomalous in a great degree; and consider that the reports that have been circulated require contradiction or explanation; but we do not consider ourselves in any way responsible for the matter contained, or for the views of our correspondents, as in some instances blame is attached where we can see no cause for it. An Attorney is most undoubtedly bound to do the best he can for his client, and if he did not do so, he would be guilty of a betrayal of the confidence of his client, and unworthy of being employed. Even when an Attorney seems to us, whose judgment is warped on our own behalf, to use the most strenuous efforts against us, we have no right to feel against him, as he was honestly discharging his duty to his client, and would have used the same energy on our behalf, if employed by us.

Mr. Stinson has shown us the following letter, as indicating the effect of love of doing right or fear of doing wrong:

Peterboro, Jan. 22, 1870.

Mr. Robert Stinson, Shoemaker.

SIR,—Some years ago you, myself and your son had some dealings, and when accounts were rendered you had omitted charging me with some shingles (old fashioned split shingles) I think 3 or 4 thousand, worth at that time about $1.25 per thousand, making about $5. I must say we both were to blame; you for not asking me for it, I for not reminding you of it, and not paying you; but not being asked I never paid it until now.

I enclose you eight dollars, which will include interest as well as principal; although you are not entitled to interest as you never asked it.

Yours in friendship.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

SIR,—Permit me to occupy a small space in your journal by the following:

J. B. Dixon, M. A., Principal of the Union and Grammar Schools, Peterboro, delivered a most scientific lecture on the subject of Temperance, in Keene, on the evening of the 21st inst. The house was crowded to excess, and without exception every eye was fixed on the speaker. Mr. Dixon's arguments were based on principles which none can deny, and upon these he reasoned with mathematical precision, and drew his conclusions in a geometrical style. He ably showed how the evil practice of intemperance originates, and its effects upon the will powers. We need not refer you to an example of the effects of will either positively or negatively, and the results of both all well know. The principle of annihilating the liquor traffic was beautifully demonstrated, not as has often been said by destroying the place of production, but its consumption. As an illustration he asked the question: Where do our teas and other things, not of home production, come from. You answer from the most distant lands; so would it be with the liquor were it not obtained from a nearer source. From this it may be seen that the principle of destroying its production would require to be a worlds measure—the other that of a locality. Mr. Dixon stated that the temperance movement sprang up in our own day, and that its failure, like those in other things, only paves the way to success. As an example of this he referred to the Atlantic telegraph, whose failure at first only taught the lesson which led to its final and ultimate success; so said Mr. D. shall it be with temperance.

It is hoped Mr. Dixon will soon favor us with another such treat, and with Dr. Dean in the chair, we will promise him a welcome reception and hearty thanks.

A few suitable remarks were made by Mr. Richardson, of Peterboro, principally on the pernicious use of tobacco.

Truly yours,

AN ADVOCATE OF TEMPERANCE.

January 24, 1870.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—You have heard the report and seen it published, that I was a defaulter, and had not paid over all the taxes that was collected by me in 1869 in North Monaghan. This report was got up by the Clerk and endorsed by the Council of N. Monaghan, after the Auditors report was received, and finally audited by the Council. The Clerk undertook to show that I was due the municipality a balance, and that that balance in the first place was $60, and I received a note from the Clerk to appear at a meeting and settle the same. This I refused to do, as I believed it to be only a dream, and that it would soon pass away. Next I was told by one of the Council that the balance was only $11, and that I had better settle it. I told him I would have nothing to do with it, as I still knew it was only a dream. But, sir, at the next meeting of Council I accidentally went in, and on doing so was requested to pay over the amount, but I still refused to acknowledge that I was due them anything. They then examined the accounts again and swelled it up to $20; they went on a little further and reduced it $8; it was $12, again due by me. I was also requested to examine the figures for myself, but I told them I would have little to do to correct figures after Messrs. Coulter & Edwards. Well, sir, before the next meeting it was clear to them, and was endorsed by the Council, that the sum due was $22.90, so a resolution was passed to the effect that the book be handed back to the Auditors, with instructions to report, and I was to have a copy of the same so that the account could be finally settled. The next thing I received was a letter on Sabbath morning—not very consistent with morality, I think. This letter contained the report, and spoke in unmistakeable language that I must interpret the dream or stand the consequences. Well, sir, I was satisfied it was a dream, and now that I had their figures in my possession I could interpret the dream, and the dream I did interpret, and this is the interpretation thereof, viz: That instead of $22.90 being in their favor, there was $17.30 in my favor.

Now, sir, I think that your readers will agree with me that the Clerk is sold this time, but it is not to the Ishmaelites, therefore the Council can redeem him with the small sum of $20 extra for his services as Clerk of the Municipality of North Monaghan.

HENRY COLLINS.

January 20, 1870.

We believe the whole trouble in this matter arose from neglecting to make an entry in the Treasurer's books, of an order of the Council for $40, in favour of Mr. Collins. The Treasurer honestly and fairly settled with Mr. Collins, but the $40 not being entered because not cash received, yet taken as cash, the Clerk, Auditors and Council were unable to decipher the error, until all the papers, vouchers, &c., were again referred to the auditors and detected, when in reality it was found that Mr. Collins had paid $17.10 more than his Collector's Roll required him to pay.—As the matter was so much talked of through Monaghan, Mr. Collins claimed the privilege of settling himself right with the public.—Ed. Ex.

SMITH COUNCIL.

In conformity with the provisions of the Provincial Statute, the newly elected members of the Council of the corporation of the township of Smith, viz:—John Walton, Reeve, Isaac Garbutt, Deputy Reeve, and Michael Sanderson, Andrew Montgomery and Joseph Nelson, Councillors, met at the Town Hall, Bridgenorth, on Monday the 17th., day of January 1870.

The Reeve nominated William Fitzgerald one of the Auditors.

A By-law to appoint the following Municipal Officers for the present year, and to fix their remuneration, received its first, second and third readings, and passed, viz:

Auditors, Wm. Fitzgerald and Lewis Davies, four dollars each.

Assessor, Samuel McKibbon, seventy-five dollars.

Collector, Richard Waram, eighty dollars.

Inspector, Richard Waram, twenty dollars.

A communication from Isaac Millburn was read, stating that in accordance with a recent survey, the present travelled road between lots 4 and 5, West of the communication road has not been located in its proper place, and that some wood is now growing where the road should be located; and that the said Isaac Millburn intends to remove his fences shortly. And he asked to be allowed to cut and remove the said wood. Privilege granted to cut and remove the same.

The Treasurer was directed to pay to James Davidson, the sum of $3,00, for one sheep killed by a dog or dogs in 1869.

The Council then adjourned till Friday the 4th., day of February next, then to meet to appoint Overseers of Highways, Poundkeepers and Fence viewers.

In regard to the Bible Societies we publish the following interesting particulars:—

The object of the British and Foreign Bible Society is the circulation of the Bible, without note or comment, amongst all the nations of the earth, in their own language. Its constitution is so framed as to admit of the cordial cooperation of all christians; and it is heartily supported by the great and good amongst them, from the Queen on the throne to the humblest subject in her empire.

The number of branches in Great Britain is about 4 500, in the Colonies about 1,200; of which Upper Canada numbers nearly 400.—The Upper Canada Bible Society is the best auxiliary in the British colonies.

The number of versions now circulated by the Parent Society is 213, of 161 are translations which were never before printed.

The number of copies of the scriptures circulated by the Parent Society amount to over 53 millions, in 175 different languages; besides thirty millions more which it has helped to circulate by means of foreign auxiliaries. The annual issue of scriptures by the Parent Society is about two and a half millions of copties; and its annual income is from £170,000 to 200,000 sterling.

The Upper Canada Bible Society issues about 50,000 copies of the Scriptures yearly.—The annual income for all purposes is nearly $10,000. During the thirty-seven years of its operations it has circulated nearly 570,000 copies of the Bible and Testament.

There are two auxiliaries connected with the U. C. Society, viz., the London and the Kingston. The Number of branches throughout the country is nearly 600. In addition to the labors of its agents and of colporteurs employed by various branches, the U. C. Society regularly employs four Colporteurs to labor chiefly in newly settled townships where no branches have yet been organized. It also aids in the work of circulating the Scriptures among the Ottawa lumbermen, and in the destitute settlements of the Province.

Sir Francis Hincks, it is said, discovered, shortly after his accession to office, an error of nearly $120,000 in Langton's statement of the Public Debt of the Dominion.

INEBRIATES.—A bill to provide for the conviction of habitual drunkards has been advanced several stages through the Quebec Assembly. A habitual drunkard, under the act, is any one who, according to the common report of his neighborhood, has the reputation of being a drunkard.

The Irish Times's London correspondent understands that a very important matter, deeply affecting the interest of the Irish Protestant Church, is under discussion. It involves to less a step than the revision of the Thirty nine articles, so as to embrace Presbyterians and Dissenters.

An Englishman went to the theatre at Toronto, and saw "Enoch Arden" performed. He returned to the hotel and retired, and was found next day lying insensible on his bed. Being restored, he said he had been affected by the play. He had left a wife and children in England, and was in circumstances similar to those of Enoch Arden when he died.

HORRIBLE MASSACRE AT FIJI.—The Melbourne Argus reports a horrible massacre at Fiji. A Mr. Lattin, who, it is said, was formerly a storekeeper in Melbourne, had shipped about 280 natives on board the French bark Meron. Their ultimate destination was, it is believed, Queensland; but it seems that the islanders rose on means and successfully killed every white man on board with the exception of the mate. They then jumped overboard, with the intention of swimming on shore, but only about thirty reached the land, 253 having, it is supposed, been drowned.

SAD END OF SYLVANUS COBB, JR.—For many years the name of Sylvanus Cobb, jr., the writer of novels for the New York Ledger, has been familar throughout the land. He has written more sanguinary romances than any other American. Week after week his name has appeared at the head of some startling story. And now the Springfield Republican tells us that this prolific writer is the inmate of the Boston insbriate asylum. Liquor has done its work, and he who has caused so many thousands to buy the Ledger is laid away in an asylum. Died end indeed for the son of a celebrated boston clergyman.

It has transpired that Rachel Hill, the female upon whom Dr. Andrews of Toronto performed the operation of abortion, for which he is under arrest, is the young lady who recently attempted to shoot her seducer, a merchant named Burke, at Newmarket. The latter has since married, upon learning that the friends of Miss Hill had procured Andrews' arrest, got her out of the way in order to save further revelations. She is supposed to be in the States, and the case against Andrews is likely to fall through on account of her absence.

From all we can gather in respect of Sir Francis's proposes modifications in the tariff, they are likely to cause great dissatisfaction, if not consternation among manufacturers.—Gentlemen from different parts of the Dominion, representing its manufacturing and industrial interests, who have recently had interviews with the New Finance Minister, are not impressed too favorably, it is said, with either the gallant Knight's views upon questions of commercial interests, or his suavity of manner. This won't do, but it can scarcely be wondered at either, for he has been so long in the Windward Isles, that he must be considerably to the leeward of later Canadian industrial improvements.—Evening Mail.

ARCHBISHOP MANNING.—The London Times correspondent thinks it by no means improbable that Archbishop Manning may some day attain Pontifical honors. The Archbishop of Westminister has been appointed by the Pope "Promoter" of the dogma of infallibility. If he acquits himself creditably of the task, not only can this Roman Catholic Prelate make sure of the "Hat," but he may in proper time look forward to the Tiara itself. It will be curious, indeed, if such a result ensue. Only one Englishman has ever been Pope, and if Archbishop Manning attains the dignity, he will close a period of seven centuries during which the chair of St. Peter has been a forbidden honor to the natives of the island.

FROM OTTAWA.—It is stated on what is considered good authority, that Governor Mc Dougall has decided not to return to the Red River Country as Governor, that he intends to take a prominent part in opposition to the Government, especially on their policy of the North-West question.

It is rumored that Mr. Langton is to resign his position as auditor, and receive in lieu thereof, the control of the sub-Treasury at the Toronto Branch. It is said that Langton is sorry for his letters against Hincks, in years gone by, on financial questions. It is also rumored that C. S. Ross, new Secretary of the Intercolonial Railway Commissioners, will be appointed in his stead. The appointment would be looked on with favor from here. Mr. Ross is considered an able financier.

It is stated in certain circles that the Hon. A. T. Galt has finally settled to go into Opposition. He, no doubt, would have done so last year, only for the appointment of his brother as Judge.

The New York Clerical Scandal.

Rev. Horace Cook, the levanting elder, at New York, turned up on Thursday evening.—He appeared suddenly and mysteriously in the World office, wild with excitement, and made a frantic effort to demolish a gentleman connected with the paper. The police captured him, in the midst of his demonstrations, and lugged him off to the station house, where he was locked up over night. While in the hands of the police he advanced the extraordinary theory that the press, in noticing his elopement, was animated solely with a desire to attack the Christian religion, and particular the church of which he is a member. After the arrest, it was ascertained that Cooke returned to the city yesterday from his excursion, and sent Miss Johnson to her parents. He went home, brandished a pistol, and frightened his family out of their wits. A friend fortunately induced him to give up the weapon—a six-shooter—before he did any injury. He then Wandered down town until he came across a newspaper man, who he proceeded at once to immolate. The friends of Miss Johnson and also of Mr. Cooke are satisfied that the young lady has returned from her enforced tour as pure as she went away. Whatever may have been Cooke's designs, she at least came through the ordeal without harm. The particulars of the remarkable history are published in full.

Cooke was born in New York city, and early in life contemplated going on the stage, but became converted to a serious life at some prayer meetings. He became a minister in 1863, and joined the New York Eastern Conference. He was first appointed to the Methodist Church of Austria. From thence he went to Flushing and Mamaroneck, and finally, in May last, to his late field of labor. In Mamaroneck he is accused of having misled another young woman under similar circumstances, with the exception of the elopement.

Mr. Cooke is 35 years of age, tall and slight, with black hair and eyes. He wears his beard entire. He is of strictly orthodox principles, an eloquent preacher, frowns on the theatre and dancing, and has been bitterly denunciatory of what he styled the infidel reforms and reformers of the day. Though but a new comer in the Church, the congregation made up a purse to send him to Europe for his health, during the recess. He returned two months ago.

The N. Y. World of Friday says:

Rev. Mr. Cooke was taken before Justice Cox, at the Tombs, yesterday morning, and there being no appearance against him, he was released, after a short exhortation from the Bench. He returned home for a few moments, and then went out with some friends, since which time he has disappeared from public view. It is supposed he has been quietly conveyed to an insane Asylum. His family have left the parsonage, and it is probable that with the closing of the mad house door this

Flowers and their Blessings.

A hanging plant at a window is a sign of gentleness and grace inside. No bad people hang plants in their windows. Beauty never commiserates with badness. No evil spirit can go through a window where there is a flower. They avoid flowers as Satan does the form of the cross. Shoot me the poorest hovel with a plant in its window, and I will show you inside of that hovel goodness and gentleness, although clad in the rags of poverty. I have seen, in my walks about town, perhaps in the fourth or fifth story of some wretchedlooking building, a little plant set out upon the high window ledge. I always stop and say good morning to that plant and its owner. I came very near hugging a horse the other day on Clark street. He was attached to a heavy cart standing near the sidewalk. In front of him was a cart laden with flowers, into which this horse would bury his nose, and which this horse would bury his head, amidst the odors without injuring a plant or disturbing a petal. And, as I stopped and said to the horse "Good morning, my dear fellow, I wish you had a home, and it you, so that we could talk to each other;" I wondered if he and the flowers did not talk together in their own sort of way. I should trust that dumb brute where I wouldn't trust a man who is not fond of flowers. I cannot conceive of the composition of [illegible] flowers believe they have the most graceful curves in the anatomy of nature. I do not [illegible] which blossoms in the wood, or the tiniest flower which grows on the most distant prairie, was made without a purpose by Him who used them more than all else in his teachings to man. They go with us from the cradle to the grave. They brighten and bless the sick-room. They crown the marriage feast. They accompany us to the long rest, and they blossom over us when we are gone. Their breath is magical.—The perfume of a rose will recall a long buried memory you had supposed to be dead forever. A little anemone you stumble upon in the woods will set in motion a train of thought carrying you back to scenes you had forgotten. A whitepod rose leaf, or a pressed bud, is a something link which makes life more beautiful, recalling the "tender grace of a day that is dead."

Another Fenian Scare.

The Ottawa Free Press, one of the new Evening Daily's, recently started in that city, in its issue of the 12th inst., has the following respecting Fenian movements:

"We have received from our special correspondent on the American front, the most satisfactory assurances that the Fenians have resolved to move on Ottawa at a very early day. Arms have, within the last two weeks, been forwarded almost daily to places near the St. Lawrence, to be ready for a sudden crossing.

"The Government of the Dominion have received partial information, but not in full.

"In order to avoid suspicion the arms now in Ogdensburg have been brought from considerable distances in all sorts of conveyances. On Monday night there were six cases brought in and deposited in new places, and six tons were ready at Malone for removal.

"The Fenian leaders along the front are aware that they are watched, and move cautiously. Our correspondent believes they are better organized than they have ever been before, and that they appear confident of success; but the nature of the expedition is not positively known except to the leaders."

The Montreal Gazette of the 16th says:—"Col. Gibbons' promise to come to Montreal 'a no Sir supported that a recent visitor to St. Alban's heard of Fenian arms being moved there, with a view, apparently, to use here whnp opportunity may come."

LEGAL TENDERS.

A correspondent of the British Whig to that paper says;

Sir,—It is popularly believed that all legal tender notes, or Canadian greenbacks, are good in all parts of the Dominion for their face value in gold, and I dare say for this very reason they are preferred by a great many to the notes of other Banks. When it is known, however, that all greenbacks are not worth what they represent, and that those payable in Halifax are subject to a discount of four per cent, in Ontario, on account of the difference in the currencies, perhaps they would be received with greater equition. Every merchant or farmer who unwillingly receives a $5 Dominion note payable in Halifax, on presenting it at the Bank of Montreal here, is charged twenty cents, which he, of course, loses, and the party who sends it afloat at par pockets.

Now, it is because I do not think this is so widely known as it ought to be, that I ask you to publish the fact. It is to be noticed that there is no difference in the appearance of the notes payable in Toronto from those payable in Halifax, though it might naturally have been expected that the Government would have used every precaution to prevent the public from being victimized, instead of opening wide the door for unprincipled speculators to cheat unwary Ontarians.

Seeing, however that a gross blunder has been committed, surely the sooner it is remedied the better.

It is well known, to the cost of a number, that a considerable quantity of these notes are in circulation in Kingston and its neighbourhood, though why, it would be difficult to determine; whether brought here in the usual course of business or by the aforesaid speculation.

It appears to me Sir, that the circulation of these notes will by and by become as great a nuisance as ever American silver has been, and it is high time that the question should be agitated, so that government would be compelled to remedy the evil by withdrawing the present Halifax issue, and replacing it with new notes distinct in appearance.

The Rev. Geo. Macdonnel, Minister of St. Andrew's Church, Fergus, has accepted a call from the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, Milton. A goodly number of his parishioners and friends assembled at the Manse, and presented that gentleman and his lady with a Silver Tea Service, valued at two hundred dollars, as a parting token of their esteem and affection.

A Paper published the following erratum: 'The words printed pigs and cows in Mr. Parker's letter on the land question, which appeared in yesterday's issue, should have been pros and cons.'

One of the gentler sex says that the heaven of the strong-minded women is where buttons grow in their proper places, where men cease bothering and needles are at rest.'

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS A WORD.

For every word in the following Certificate found untrue, after writing to the parties named, and to the U. S. Consul, at the Jamaica, the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid.

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 20th, 1868.

Messrs. Ratsperger C. Lupp & Bro:

Gentlemen:—While a out of my friend Mr. Francisco de Matteo Pitcoria (a large proprietor in the Ordede de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tocoso, who is thought a great deal of in Campos, but the fever, instead of diminishing, turned, continued, and typhoid, the boy (16 years old) could not speak, would not take the broths, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tocoso declared that there was not the slightest hopes of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Ealed in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the Ballet pure on the Chest, back and spine; pills (of Radways's Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half as here after meals, one dessert-spoonful Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of

HERE'S THE NEW YEAR.

Here's New Year's—let us boldly greet him,
We may as well, for none can cheat him;
He will steal on and slily sprinkle
The first gray hair and three-o'clock wrinkle,
And yet methinks it little matters
What seed or ruin-mose he scatters,
So that annid it we contrive
To keep truth's hearty cast alive
Within our breast.

Here's New Year's—and it seemeth well,
That occasions so apt should tell
The just result of all we're done,
And trace the way our souls have gone.
Let us peruse the closely sealed,
The volume ever unrevealed,
And see if we have said or thought
No evil thing that shall have brought
Blame on our breast.

The heart is back to-day sheet,
Where Right and Wrong in balance meet,
And well is it so that we should see
Full often how 'accounts' may be,
Old New Year's less a trick, we find,
Of ringing bills of every kind,
So ere we drain the festive cup
We'll look within and reckon up
The debts we owe.

To many of us get no wrapt
In 'our own dear self,' that we are apt
To dwell much more on what our brothers
Should give to us, than we to others.
Our energies could be expended
The kindness piled in sterling gold,
But equity, that bids us pass
The same again, oft sees, alas!
Our pillars sadly slow.

Let us not idly shirk the task
But face ourselves, and boldly ask
Our conduct, whether it has trod,
The path of Mammon or of God?
A more important 'day book' lives
Than that which weekly counselee gives;
Some brighter figures must be found
Than those that make the golden round
Of Profit's dial.

Let us take heed that no arrears
Are due to those whose silent tears
Are calling on us night and day
For debts which mercy ought to pay;
Let us be sure that we have heard
The claims of Misery's lowly word,
And that our lips have never driven
The helpless and the spirit riven
With harsh denial.

A LOVE LETTER.

The following anecdote shows that lovers cannot be too courteous in the means which they choose for their correspondence. A young man had gained access into the house of one of the richest and most aristocratic families in Paris. He fell in love with the daughter of the house, and tried to ingratiate himself with her in every possible manner and especially always brought her the latest publications. One day at an earlier hour than usual—the ladies were still on the promenade. On the table lay M de Camors Octave Feuillet's latest novel. In order to while away his time the old gentleman takes the book about which he has heard a great deal and commences glancing over it. He is surprised to find a number of words underlined with a lead pencil, not 'beautiful passages,' but simple words, 'I' and 'you' or 'and.' He turns over one leaf, two leaves, three leaves and find everywhere the same thing. Suddenly an idea occurred to him for fathers having beautiful daughters are exceedingly keen sighted in certain matters. He tries to connect the underlined words and his petrified eyes read as follows: Dearest Mademoiselle—will—it insult—you—if—I—tell—you—that—I—adore—you—and—,' In short a love letter of the most gushing description and closing with the suggestive words: Answer—in—the—next—chapter.' Wait you rascal, cried the father, I will give you your answer. So saying he takes a lead pencil and underlines some words in the next chapter prepares the book in a piece of paper, and hands it to his footmen, whom he instructed to take it back to the sentimental young gentleman The latter opens the volume, his heart throbbing like a sledge hammer and—oh joy! finds that words are underlined in the next chapter. He read as follows; If—you—impudent—puppy—dare—again—across—the—threshold—of—my—house—I—shall—kick—you—out—of—the—window.

A CUTE ONE AT MEETING A DIFFICULTY.—Housen, particularly the inferior sort, are more plentiful than they were some years ago, but many proprietors and factors are still very particular about the choice of tenants, and they have an almost Malthusian dread of large families of children. A woman who numbers no fewer than eight of the cherubs round her fireside applied a few days ago to parties who had houses to let for a room to shelter them.—Her proposals were well enough entertained till she answered the inquiry as to the extent of her family, when no landlord could be found to accommodate them.—Driven to the exercise of her wits, they did not fail her in the sad emergency.—She took the children to the churchyard, and placing them within the gate, told them to wait there till she tried in another quarter. The usual question was put, 'Have you any children?' to which the anxious mother replied in tremulous tones, 'Dead, sir, I have eight, but they're a' in the kirkyard,' Human nature could not resist the appeal of one who had been so greatly bereaved, and she was accepted as tenant. It is needless to say that the little ones were soon transferred to their new home from that temporary abode where many generations have rested long.—Hawick Advertiser.

ANECDOTE OF SIR JOHN NEWTON.—Two or three years before the death of that eminent servant of Christ, Sir John Newton, of London, when his sight became so dim that he was no longer able to read, an aged friend and brother in the ministry called him to breakfast. Family prayer followed, and the portion of Scripture for the day was read to him. In it occurred the verse—"By the grace of God I am what I am." It was the pious man's custom on these occasions to make a short familiar exposition on the passage read.—After the reading of this text he paused for some moments, and then uttered this affecting soliloquy:—I am not what I ought to be—Ah, how imperfect and deficient! I am not what I wish to be—I abhor what is evil, and I would cleave to what is good! I am not what I hope to be—soon, soon shall I put off mortality, and with mortality all sin and imperfection.—Yet, though I am not what I ought to be, nor what I wish to be, nor what I hope to be, I can truly say, I am not what I once was—a slave to sin and Satan; and I can heartily join with the apostle, and acknowledge—"By the grace of God I am what I am.' Let us pray."

A remarkable case of waylaying is at present under investigation by the police authorities in Dungannon, Ireland. Two young men, who are Catholics, were asked while on the public road by some half-dozen other young men to curse the Pope, and on declining to do so they were attacked, and one of them severely beaten. The other escaped and ran for the police. Several arrests have already been made.

DEAREST, SHUN THE BOWL.

BY ADRIANA BAROLI.

By the dread of all good sorrow,
By the fear of future cold strife,
By each dark deadening sorrow;
Lengthening out, a wretched life,
By the chains, still worse than iron
Burn the bright and near the soul,
By the torturous fiend's aversion
Dearest, dearest, shun the bowl.

By the hopes, thou would'st not wither,
By the love, that round thee clings,
Now turn thy footsteps whither,
Wild,—the drunken maniac sings.
Enter not the poisoned vapor,
Where oaths and fumes, together roll;
Kneel and pray, by lovely taper,
Pray for strength, to shun the bowl.

By bloodshot eye, and voice whose quaking,
Tells the agony within,
By the palsied hand, that shaking
Bear into the draught of sin;
By the torment, still increasing,
Gnawing brain and gnawing soul,
Thirst unasted and incresing,
Dearest, dearest, shun the bowl.

By each holy kiss, thy mother,
On thy infant forehead pressed,
Love of Father,—Sister,—Brother,—
All that purifies thy breast.
By the hope of Heaven within thee,
O! defense not, mind and soul,
Let not sins and chalice win thee,
Dearest, ever shun the bowl.

A PROFITABLE WIFE.

I have been married Twenty two years. The first four years before I was married I began farming with two hundred and fifty acres in the Blue Grass re-Kentucky. I headlded cattle, hogs sheep and horses—principally the two first named—and lived I thought tolerable economically; spent none of my money in tobacco in any way, and neither betting a cent or dissipating in any way, and yet at the end of four years I had little or no clear money I then married a young lady of eighteen years of age—who has never done any house work of any kind except made sportion of her own clothes. She had never made shirts, drawers pants, or waistcoat, or even sewed a stitch in a coat and yet before we had been married a year she had made for me every one of the articles of clothing named, and knit numbers of pairs of socks for me—yes and mended divers articles for me, not excepting an old hat or two. She had also made butter sold eggs, chickens, and other fowls and vegetables to to the amount of near six hundred dollars in cash at the end of the year, whereas during the four years that I was single I had never sold five cents worth—besides making me purely happy and contented with my home. And so far as to making of money, we have undertaken the farm, and she has made three hundred and fifty to five hundred dollars every year except one, during the time, selling butter eggs and marketting of different kinds, My yearly expenses of fine clothing etc., before I was married were more than my yearly expenses were after I was married combined with the expense of my wife and children; and our farm increased two hundred and fifty to five hundred acres; and I believe that if I had not married, it never would have increased but little if any; and I have never been absent from home six nights, when my wife was at home, since we were married and her cheeks kiss as sweetly to me as they did the morning after I was married.

THE DEACON AND THE WASP.—A worthy deacon in a town of Maine was remarkable for the facility with which he quoted Scripture on all occasions. The divine word was ever at his tongue's end, and all the trivial as well as important occurrences of life furnished occasions for quoting the language of the bible. What was better, however, the exemplary man also made his quotations the standard of action.

One hot day he was engaged in mowing with his hired man, who was leading off, the deacon following his swath, consuming apt quotations, when the man suddenly sprang from his place, leaving the swath just in time to escape from a wasp's nest.

'Peoh!' said the deacon, "the wicked flee when no man pursueth, but the righteous are bold as a lion;" and taking the workman's swath he moved but a step when a swarm of brisk insects settled about his ears, and he was forced to retreat with many a painful sting and a great discomfiture.

"Ah!" shouted the other with a chuckle, "the prudent man forseeth the evil, and hideth himself, but the simple pass on and are punished."

The good deacon had found his equal in making applications of the sacred writings, and thereafter was not known to quote Scripture in the mowing field.

Justice may be defined that virture which impels us to give every person what is due. In this extended sense of the word, it comprehends the practice of every virture which reason prescribes, or society should expect. Our duty to our Maker, to each other, and to ourselves, are fully answered, if we give them what we owe them. Thus justice, properly speaking, is the only virture, and all the rest have their origin in it.—Goldwith.

AN EARNEST APPEAL.—A boy was lately caught stealing currants, and was locked up in a dark closet by the grocer. The boy commenced begging most pathetically to be released, and after useing all the persuasion that his young mind could invent he proposed, "Now, if you'll let me out and send for my father, he'll pay you for the currants, and lick me besides." The grocer could not withstand this appeal, and released the urchin.

TIME.—An Italian philosopher expressed in his moto "that time was his estate." An estate, indeed, which will produce nothing without cultivation, but will abundantly repay the labors of industry, and satisfy the most extensive desires, if no part of it be suffered to lie waste by negligence, to be overrun with noxious plants, or laid out for show rather than use.

How do you like me now? asked a belle of her spouse, as she sailed into the room, with a sweeping train of muslin following her'—'Well,' said he; to tell the truth it is impossible for me to like you any longer.

A man who covers himself with costly apparel and neglects his mind, is like one who illuminates the outside of his house and sits within in the dark.

A German woman committed suicide at New York, because her husband would not please her in discontinuing the use of tobacco.

It has been well observed that advice is not disliked because it is advice, but because so few people know how to give it.

Why is a young lady, just left boarding school like a building committe? Because she is ready to receive proposals.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was there any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and removing effect on the digestive apparatus.

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious stimulants exploded. All useless material discarded. The active principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form HABITUAL CONSTIPATION CURED. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL. —Those who have no hair may have it.—Those woo have plenty, preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HERT'S ESPING HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry JACOBS' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever invented is capable of more extended application It has hundreds of imitators, but not one RIVAL. Beware of Counterfeits.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

Cures the Worst Pains

IN FROM ONE TO TWENTY MINUTES.

NOT ONE HOUR

After reading this advertisement, need any one suffer to take Pains.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF IS A CURE FOR EVERY PAIN.

It was the first, and is

The Only Pain Remedy

That instantly stops the most excruciating pains, ALLAYS INFLAMMATIONS AND CURES CONGESTIONS,

Whether of the Lungs, Stomach, Bowels, or other glands and organs, by one application.

In from One to Twenty Minutes.

No matter how violent or excruciating the pain, the RHEUMATIC bed-ridden, Infirm, Crippled, Nervous, Neuralgic, or prostrated with disease may suffer.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

will, in from ONE to TWENTY MINUTES, afford ease and comfort. And this medicine, so rapid in stopping pain, can be purchased for 25 cents per bottle at almost every druggist's and country merchant's store on this continent, and within one hour's distance of almost every habitation in this country

FEVER & AGUE CURED

FOR FIFTY CENTS.

There is not a remedial agent in this world that will cure FEVER & AGUE, and all other Malarious, Bilious, Scarlet, Typhoid, Yellow, and other Fevers (aided by Radway's Pills), so quick as Radway's Ready Relief.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

has proved infallible, and will cure these terrible fevers quicker, and without exhausting the frightful penalties of Improved Liver, Fat spleen, Disordered Kidneys, and Saffron-Colored Skin, that are sure to follow the use of the "Cholagogues" or "Ague Curse" and other agents of the horrible Quinine, Mercurial, Arsenic, and other treatments where the medicines used accumulate, and become deposited in the system.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

is the best, cheapest, and safest remedy that can be used for Fever and Ague, Bilious and other Fevers.

NOT ONE

person need suffer, be they ever so much exposed to Fever and Ague, if they will only take Radway's Ready Relief, and keep their bowels open with Radway's Pills. Hundreds in the West, who have hitherto been doctoring at the rate of one and two hundred dollars for a few months' treatment, are keeping themselves and families free from Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Bilious Remittents, &c., for one or two dollars a year, spent for Radway's Ready Relief and Radway's Pills (tested).

The Ready Relief will afford instant ease to all. Price only 50 cents per bottle.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

NEW PRINCIPLES OF CURE

Of all Wasting Scrofulous, and Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth, Throat, Ears, Head, LUNGS, Kidneys, Bladder.

THE SKIN MADE PURE, CLEAR, SMOOTH, AND BEAUTIFUL.

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent establishes a new principle of Cure of all Chronic diseases, and proves to the medical world that Consumption and other scrofulous diseases are curable. This fact has been demonstrated in over

One Hundred Cases of Confirmed Consumption, wherein two to one scrofula cases was destroyed and dried up, and in over

500 CASES OF SUSPECTED CONSUMPTION

Dr. Radway, three years since, published to the world his analysis of the Blood in the several stages of Consumption, showing in every stage, that where tubercles become deposited in the Lungs and other organs, as in the kidneys, Liver, spleen, Bronchial Glands, Intestines, establishing Consumption of these organs. The Blood is thin, Weak, pale, watery, and is deficient of such constituents as Rhin Albumen, Fibrine, and the rich red coloring discs of the Blood Corpuscles. In the absence of these constituents in the Blood, the Blood is exhausted of strength and nourishment, and wherever there is inflammation, it deposits tubercles and decomposition, it has not the power to hold in solution its natural constituents, and Ulcers, sores, Tumors, Cancers, and Virulent Humors are formed, the presence of which causes inflammation, gathering, and consequent suppuration.

This, reader, is the true cause of the formation of Tubercles and Consumption. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory of the cause of Consumption and its kindred diseases, and prepared the Radway's Resolvent to supply the Blood with such constituents it was deficient of, in these conditions of system, and to give it the nourishment and strength to hold its natural constituents in solution. Dr. Radway's theory was published in England, France, Germany, and America, and was seized upon by the scientific men of both hemispheres. From his last medical books have been since published by medical writers, claiming to have discovered the cause of Consumption, but have failed to produce the remedy to cure. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory, and the first and only discoverer of a medicine that will cure. In Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent the public have a remedial agent that will cure Consumption and all diseases of the Lungs, Bronchials, Kidneys, Bladder, Womb, Throat, Glands, and Urinary Organs.

In all Wasting Discharges, such as Involuntary Loss of Sperm, Emissions, Weakness of the Genital Glands, Leucorrhœa, and all Uterine Affections, Gravel, Lime Stone, Brick Dust, Uric Acid, and Calculous Concretions, the Sarsaparillian Resolvent is a positive cure. In Proper, Diabetes, Venereal, Syphilis in its many forms, it cures when all other medicines fail.

EVERY DAY

an increase of flesh, weight, and strength is experienced. It is Fat-Dissolvent, Calorie or Heat-making. It is to the blood what oxygen is to the atmospheric air—it supplies the life principle. It swiftly removes from the surface all Spots, Blotches, Pimples, Tetters, Ringworm, Scurf, Scrofula, Sores, &c., imparting a Clear & Beautiful Complexion to all.

CERTIFICATE OF BEAUTY.

The following letter is from a highly-gifted lady, well known in the literary circles of our inner metropolis:—

LEAMINGTON, Feb. 23, 1868.

I had not much confidence in your RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT. Having been disfigured for the last four months with BLOTCHES on PIMPLES, I resolved, as all remedies had failed, to try it, and took TWO TEASPOONFULS three times a day, as directed. In less than ONE MONTH after I commenced to use it. To-day there is not a BLOTCH, spot, blemish, or defacation of any kind on my person.—

SARAH H. TILBURY.

To Messrs. Chamberlain & Sills, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.
Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.
Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. Wood, J. P. &c.
I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

The Rights of the Runseller.

BY NED BUNTLINE.

What are his rights? Let them be told:
To arm the murderer's hand;
To make the midnight robber bold;
To light the incendiary brand;
To start the starving orphan's tears;
To raise afresh the widow's curse;
To shade the sunset of man's years,
And even make the vilest worse.

To lead the nation's youth astray;
To tempt to kill and to destroy;
On human wretchedness to prey;
To cancel every human joy;
To blast each strong, vigorous tree,
Which rears aloft its manly crest;
To blacken every destiny,
Which but for him might have been blest.

His rights! The very fiends of hell
Have rights as good as his to claim!
His rights! No tongue or pen can tell
One half his wrongs or paint his shame.
His rights! It makes grim Satan sneer,
The special pleading of his friends,
In their profound debates to hear,
While working out his fiendish ends.

By all the glories of the past—
By all our sires have ever done
To make the nation great at last—
The purest, freest 'neath the sun—
Awake, ye people! up and arm,
And battle in this holy cause!
Dispel the Rum-fiend's cursed charm,
And call aloud for temperance laws!

Matty and Maggy; Or Self and Self-Improvement.

A TALE OF ULSTER.

BY FRANCIS DAVIS, "THE BELFAST MAN."

Another hour found the family at rest and the most ungentle spirit of Matty M'Blain away on a pilgrimage to Dreamland, which Dreamland being a country of spirits, and having, as a matter of course, its paradise and its purgatory, the immaterial representative of the damsel, ever thirsting after inquiry, was, as we shall be enabled to show, alternately delighted and tortured by the workings of the opposite establishments.

CHAPTER IV.

DREAMS—dreams! We sleep and we dream? Of what that has life and a system of nerves can we say is sleepe, but does not dream? There are no phenomena more general—more common—there are none less understood. 'Show us your company,' saith Society, 'and we will tell you what you are.' Show us your dreams, say we, and we shall do the same for you, with, perhaps, a much greater accuracy. Our companions are the result of our relations with the outward, frequently beyond our control. Our dreams are the result of the inward, in its secret communings with what is or has been—some say with what is to be. The first is certain; the last, not. One thing we know—all sleep and all dream.—Another thing we are almost as sure of—the dream, in its manner, as well as its matter, is ever tinged with the peculiar idiosyncracy or individuality of the dreamer. Show us your dreams and we shall show you what you are, much better than we should be able to do by any manipulation of your phrenological development, or by any—the minutest—examination of your autograph correspondence.

Matty M'Blain was a dreamer. We left her in dreamland; let us return to her.—Here is her vision, but where is the interpretation?—

SCENE 1st.—The largest cavern in the vicinity of Red Bay, where the angel of the hour, in the pleasing form of little Witherow Cameron, transports her to the comfortable home of his relative, Nattie. Presently he hath led her to a gorgeous bower, at the foot of a large mountain, which she at first conceived to be composed of huge basaltic pillars, something similar to those she had once seen at the lower part of her own country; but suddenly, the housewife getting better of the geologist, she discovers said pillars to be made up of sterling old cheese. Through the bower aforenamed, and immediately at her feet, floweth a magnificent river of new milk.

Following with her eyes the course of the stream, she perceiveth that it disappears in a broad lake of cream, the surface of which is literally covered with little fishing-boats, manufactured from gigantic rolls of fresh butter, and rowed, each of them, by a single and self-same Witherow Cameron, with a sister Maggy, whole and entire, seated at every rudder. This latter was rather an unpleasant portion of her vision; but just as she had opened her mouth to empty her heart's indignity upon her sister, for such indecent proximity to her own beloved one—though his name did appear to be Lenion—the mid-day sun, in a burning fury, breaking from behind a cloud, looked down upon the scene, till the broad lake grew broader, boiling up in yellow billows, with the dissolved wreck of every boat upon its bosom.

'Whatna a'fu' fine place for a bodie tae cass an' sail on their brogues!' quoth the delighted Matty, through her sleep; 'an' shear they things o' nunes is as hard as the deil's cleuts, an' tak' a' the skin aff o' my taes; but sang, I'll boil them in this, every nicht, sae I will!' And the slumbering damsel continued:

'He-he! Thavm, an' thir scrap o' butcher at hame! Faith it's here that Matty 'll come, frae this oot, tae sup her athilk—an' nae mistak'!' And the lips of the maiden smacked in her vision, like a morsel of wet leather between the lapstone and the hammer of a hurried cobbler.

Bye-and-by she lifteth her eyes and, behold! the tall trees which border the lake are in full foliage; but every leaf is a ham of bacon! The strand, also, which she at first believed to be covered with smoky pebbles are not pebbles, but newly-laid eggs: and, instead of your sheets of daises over its broad banks, they are invitingly studded with hard onion cakes, white as pearl, and so impregnated with the rich aroma of caraway that Matty M'Blain aneeseth three times.

The bliss of the slumberer is at its highest.

Anon, she perceiveth the form of her sister clasped in the arms of little Witherow, both seated on a golden billow of butter, and riding quietly to the shore—to the sunniest spot of it.

This is horrible; rage gets hold on her: she looketh upon them in frenzy; her bosom becomes a furnace, her spirit dissolving therein, and, in the end, she becometh thirsty—fearfully thirsty. She descendeth to her knees—she leaneth forward to the river before her, and essayeth to quaff the snowy beverage—but—ha! Just as her lips come in contact with the fluid, sounds a tremendous squirt above, and a heavy splash beneath them. She useth her eyes; oh! ye rulers of dreamland!—the golden-tinted white of the rich milk-river, for many yards around her, is black and sputtering with boiling tar.

The damsel staggers, in her horror, from her knees, and perceiveth at her side the angel of the hour, but not in the form of Witherow Cameron. Fiends of the imagination, this must be your Emperor! Poor Matilda! how she trembles, and little marvel! Close by her shoulder sits a monster, horrible-looking and gigantic, with a head huge, bald, and dark as the iron skull of Sleibo Barraghad; eyes like the 'Copeland lights,' but poor Matilda cannot distinguish how many. Ever and anon, he opens his mouth, which is not a mouth, but a dark and fearful cavern, guarded with terrible teeth, which are not teeth, but long, thick, and weather-beaten oars. Within this cavern lolleth a tongue, which is not a tongue, but a large and newly-tarred fishing-boat.—The upper part of the creature is clothed as a seaman; the lower is that of a fish, naked, curled, finned and scaly. He sits with his arms akimbo, looking upon his companion with a withering grin, chewing whole hills of oakum, canvass, and fishing-nets, and quietly squirting through his teeth terrific showers of boiling tar.

SCENE 2nd.—The bottom of Red Bay, and a troop of mermaids, at the head of whom is herself and her horrible companion.

Poor Matty is seized with an indescribable horror, and perceives that amongst the female community around her there exists an unutterable jealousy; when, lo! amidst upbraiding looks, flapping of tails, twisting and tearing of hair, the sea man-monster becometh in appearance much more human. The lower or fishy part is exchanged for a pair of short legs; the fins and scales for wide canvass trousers. His many and terrible eyes, also, have dwindled into one, which learns at an upper angle of his face, in a dull, slimy, phosphorescent blue. His nose is large, red, and globular; his mouth, though still gigantic, has parted with much of its dimensions, and, instead of the filthy fishing-boat, it possesseth a tongue which, in the ear of Matilda, escayeth to whisper sweet and overpowering rhapsodies.

These the softening heart of the dreamer is beginning to interpret when, dash and splash, with many a bubble, plump, and plunge, but with much unwillingness, cometh into company, Nattie Cameron, breathless, and pale as a jelly-fish, in the clutch of an enormous lobster.

The entrance of Mr. C—— is followed by several moments of profound silence. At length a very sea-weed coloured lady, of the fish-woman community, with graceful and delicate flap and flutter of her scaly [illegible] with into the presence of the stranger.

In the hand of this lady, is a huge oyster shell, behind which she leers, ogles and simpers, with a most bewitching salt-water sweetness; while, ever and anon, she strikes her fingers against the shell, and, peering in the face of Matty, inquires,

With smiles, which might as well be tears.'

and in a voice thin and piercing as the North wind:—

The name of Witherow, speedily recalling the first part of her dream, and, above all, the lake of butter and milk, she feels exceedingly delighted at seeing Mr. Cameron, the proprietor of the same, in hands which she saw were likely to detain him some time. 'At laste,' she whispers to herself as passing her tongue over her lips, she is enabled to conclude, 'At laste till I get takin' a guid drink, an' gi'in my brogues a guy saf'nin' plout or twa in the butther you ber.'

Accordingly, as the lady with the oyster-shell is continuing her performance, and repeating her query, Matilda ventures an introductory smile—one of her heart-dissolvers, used only on particular occasions—to her protean inamorato. The globular-nosed gallant answers it with a knowing wink and a certain twist of the features, which brings one corner of his mouth almost in contact with his closed eye; while this lengthened wrench of said mouth not only discovers within something—to use a haymaker's phrase—like a lap-cock of tobacco, but enables him to syllable very distinctly, 'Ay, ay! my divy duxy all's right! I know what you'd wish to be at;' and, laying his hand upon her shoulder ann his lips to her ear, he whispers, 'Up—up, Matty!'

In an instant the whole scene was changed—Matty awakened to broad day, and her father; the latter standing by her bedside, shaking her gently, and whispering, 'Up—up, Matty, and answer that woman at the window.'

Matty was in the act of rubbing her eyes very thoughtfully, when a loud tinkle at the bed room window, which put her exceedingly in mind of the oyster-shell, attracted her attention. Presently a shrill, wiry voice, which Matty at length recognized to be that of Miss Jane Maguire, the old housekeeper of Mattie Cameron, essayforth:

'Wastie—wastie! but yer the a'fu' heavy-headed, deaf-lugged crew o' neibours, tae keep a cratlnir standin' here in the cauld, like the kye'a rubbin'-post, the half-hour an' mair!'

'Is there onythin' wrang wi' ye—is there?' vociferated Matty, while, pale as a post, she sprang to the floor and presented herself at the window.

'Aye—thesure there's wrang; or, aboon a' the the wirnla's in the warld, d'ye think I'd been stan'in' at yourn? D'ye think the maisther wad hae sent me tae ye this mornin' if there had been naethin' wrang?'

'I'm no thinking onything about yer maisther, or yersel' either,' retorted Matty, indignantly. 'But if ye want onythin' say it, or whistle it, an' hae done wi' it!'

'Aw can ye no answer my question, after me shoutin' it this half hour—did ye see ony sign o' our wee Witherow last nicht?'

'Is it Witherow? No, nor the plague on a stime o' him saw I the whole nicht; only when he was tum'lin' au' tum'lin', about, in a lough o' but——'

The remainder of the word was lost on the separating lips of Matty in a loud smack as she returned in fancy and delight to the oily element of her vision.

'Is it tum'lin' in the lough, ye say?—Oh, glory o' Antrim! Then it's owre true—owre thrue that my crathur's drooned!'

'Alow-ow-ough!' replied Matty, in a tolerably canine tone and pronunciation. 'Will ye haud yer trawsedyez utse—will ye, Miss M'Guire - wasna it in a dhrame I seed him.'

'Ah, weel a weel! Dhrame here or dhrame there, Neddie M'Gee was oot in his boat this morn', and got my crathur's cap floatin' upon the wather. Dear, oh! dear, oh! My puir wean, that was like a lady i' the hooss! Oh, my! oh, my! What is't at all—at all!' and Miss Maguire immediately absconded, leaving poor Matilda up to the eye-brows in agony inconceivable.

A few hours later and the voice of the country confirmed the statement of Mr. Cameron's housekeeper. A cap of blue cloth, girt with yellow bave, and marked on the inside with the initials W. C. M., had been discovered floating about the mouth of the bay, and was immediately recognized as that of Witherow Cameron.

What the feelings of the "queer-absorbing" Matty may have been on this melancholy occasion, for the sake of the sentimentally moralizing of our readers, we regret to say has not transpired; but it was generally understood that ever after he was much less of the tyrant than the slave of his old housekeeper. It has even been stated that Mrs. Maguire was in possession of certain cabalistical words, which running something like 'Rest your liver on a full crumb,' had the marvellous power of reducing him from a fury the most frantic to the calmness of a little child.

Of Matty M'Blain it needs hardly be said she was loose-bodied. Her's was a sorrow which, upon her own authority we are permitted to state, for many days slept not, rave, as it hath been hinted, when she took sustenance at repose or when, mayhap, she groped among the darkness of the future for a glimpse of some companion more tangible than the memory of the departed—the recollection of a bygone sensation.

To these supplements, we may add, from the hour of the fatal discovery, did the day-and-night of Matty's life become devoted; while, on the part of poor Maggy, never was sisterly affection and solicitude made more strikingly manifest. She eat not, she slept not, but with pale—with fear and trembling. And why?

'Why,' she would have told you, with many tears and bluches, 'dalma the wan' ken it could be for naethin' but for fear 'at puir Matty, the crathur, wad tak' her trouble owre meikle tae heart, an' let it, maybe mak' awa' wi' her.'

Thus she was in the habit of talking; and we, as a historian should, being possessed of much generosity, as well as an unbounded confidence in the maiden's knowledge of her own heart, shall close this chapter, not by ascribing to her other motives than those assigned, but by simply asserting that, all things being as stated, there who, on the part of Maggy M'Blain, more sorrow endured and manifested for the sorrower, than, for herself that same sorrower, ever either exhibited, felt or dreamt of.

A REMNANT OF THE PAST.

A SKETCH.

"Alas! that every lovely thing
Lives only but for withering."

Youth, health, strength, beauty, the world's favor, the bright sun of the fleeting present shone upon her, as she stood upon the summit of that ruined tower; and no trace of perishing mortality could be seen in the cheek whose hue had brightened into a glow from the laborious exertions of the ascent. No shade of the dim and distant future darkened the clear mirror of her brow,—no memory of the past saddened the eye whose beam fascinated with enchantment,—and yet she looked down upon the ruined Abbey with its broken pillars its ivy-clad walls, its dilapidated windows, its half obliterated carvings, its fragments of stone stairs,—the graves around, and the slumbering dead beneath. The sun shone down on her young head—the sighing breeze echoed loved words in her ear. Thoughts of danger, of coldness, of change, of death, were far away; and yet that blooming countenance gazed upon remnants of the past,—park, frowning, melancholy, prophetic, stern-teaching lessons of the changes which time will bring upon each and all.—Oh! youth, with the coronal of roses! oh! beauty, with thy bewitching smile! Health and strength, with thy pride and power! Love, with thy untold agony and happiness! Trouble in thy short lived hour of triumph, day-creatures of the present; ye will be but 'remnants of the past!'

"How beautiful is nature, and how dear is life!' exclaimed the sunny girl to her guide, and her hand pointed towards the picturesque ruins, the richly wooded country, and the sky so gloriously blue. "What is there," she exclaimed, "more lovely than the full and perfect majesty of those sad-tinged ruins, and what more perfect than love in such a world as ours!"

"'Tis perishing white you gaze," said a stern voice beside her. "'Tis but a passing odour; it will be but a 'remnant of the past.'"

"Never!" was the maiden's response.—"I may die, but this world will be green; I may sleep, but love will cheer my last hour."

"Not so, heedless one; earthly love is but a flash of light; earthly happiness will prove but deeper; trust not to the shadow when the substance is so near."

"Shall I live and not love?" was the exclamation—but the guide's rejoinder was checked, and his eye caught the decrepid figure of an old woman, bent, weary, poor, dragging herself along the wood-covered path beneath, and taking her solitary towards the ruins.

"Lenan, child of the present!" he said, and his finger pointed out the feeble, tottering object beneath; "listen and learn; she was once as thou art; as young, as lovely, as beloved; she was rich, and the world bowed before her. Look at her now; a "remnant of the past!"

"How? was she beloved, and did he fail her?"

"No, they were happy in each other,—but riches fell from them; children dropped into the grave; the world scorned them; youth passed away. Yet she has lived to repent. There is One who scorns not the humble poor. He is her guide and her hope. No vain regret occupies her. The world and the things thereof are but 'remnants of the past.' Be warned. Youth is the seed time. Sow now, that ye may reap after."

"Is this true?" asked the gay and thoughtless one; "shall I too be but a remnant of the past? I shall my youth wither and my love die? But comforting words were within her which said,—

"All flesh is grass; the grass withereth and the flower fadeth; but the word of God shall stand for ever!"

THE RUM-FIEND'S WORK.

STELLA.

Two bodies lay on the white sands of the river-shore, where the receding tide had left them, and the sunset's ray gleam played mockingly over the still wave washed faces.

Two bereaved mothers knelt beside them in fearful agony, and those who had come to bear away the dead stood aside for a few moments, and left the mourners alone in their sorrow.

A single sentence fell from each pair of quivering lips; one replete with calm, Christian resignation and joy, the other full of heart-rending anguish and unutterable woe.

"Father, I thank thee that my boy went beforethee pure and innocent!"

"O God! help me. My child died in his sins, and is lost, forever lost!"

Both had been called in the early springtime of life.

One lay with his brown head pillowed on his arm, his fair, boyish face and broad, white brow unmarred by death, and so serenely calm and beautiful that those who saw him could scarcely believe that his eyelids were closed in the sleep of death. His right hand was tightly clasped over a small pocket Bible, and on his breast a Band of Hope star, with its cross and anchor, glittered in the fading sunlight.

And the other—oh! it was too dreadful, too terrible—that youthful face upturned to the Summer sky, marred by the crimson stamp of the rum-king's fiery hand, and the deep marks of crime and dissipation, while in his death-grasp was the bottle, the direful messenger of destruction, that had sent both souls into eternity. Staggering recklessly on the edge of the wharf, he had fallen in; and the other, pacing too and fro in the cool river breeze, his thoughts almost absorbed in the Scripture lesson he was studying for his Sabbath-school, heard the plunge, and like a young hero, boldly sacrificed his life in his efforts to save a poor, rum-wrecked creature.

Well might you thank God, O weeping mother! that your darling's bright young life had closed out in darkness, like that of him who lay so near him. There was no gleam of hope or comfort for the lifeless drunkard's mother; and covering her eyes to shut out the hideous sight before her, the child plead-hearted bends her lost boy, and ere another sunset tinged the western sky with its golden glory, mother and son were laid in the same grave.

And still the fearful work of ruin goes steadily on, and still the cry of anguish is ever ascending from crushed and bleeding hearts, while every burning-spot on earth is peopled with the countless victims of the rum-fiend's insatiable, selfish power!

GOLDEN THOUGHTS.

A man is a fool if he be enraged with any ill that he cannot remedy, or if he endures one that he can.

A husband can readily foot the bills of a wife who is not afraid of being seen footing the stockings of her husband.

He that hath the ear has the hand of God; and prayer moves the hand that moves the world.

NOTICE is hereby given to the people of Canada, that the subscriber has purchased from Abrahams Miller, of Breslau, Waterloo County, Ont., all his right, title and interest in certain letters patent issued to him by the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec for a

HAY SLING!

For Unloading and Weighing Hay, Straw and Grain. It is acknowledged by all who have used it to do its work

EASIER, QUICKER, CLEANER,

And with less waste, is cheaper in its construction, and less liable to get out of repair, than any Horse Hay Rake Fork now in use. Those who have seen it in operation recommend it as the greatest

LABOUR SAVING MACHINE

Now in use. The above Hay Sling will be in operation foo a short time at

SHAVER'S HOTEL,

PETERBOROUGH.

It is well known that Hay Forks have given good satisfaction to those who have used them, everywhere; but the Hay Sling will unload Hay better than any Fork, and will also which the Fork will not. I will guarantee the Hay Sling everything represented above, and if necessary, give reference to a number of the best Farmers in Ontario, who have used both Fork and Sling, and Farmers, Mechanics and Business Men are earnestly invited to call and examine it, feeling assured that it cannot fail to meet their highest approval.

UNLOAD ALL KINDS OF GRAIN,

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1870.

RED RIVER.

The Honorable Mr. McDougall has, since his return, addressed the people of North Lanark in Almonte. There was a large meeting; the proceedings lasted over three hours.

Mr. McDougall, after introducing himself, remarked that the early history of the coalition he would pass over. In Red River matters he held that the government had made a great blunder in not completing the bargain by paying the money agreed upon. By refusing to do so he was left powerless in the midst of a great undertaking, when he needed all the influence of the government, and of a right to the territory to which he was sent. By their not doing so, enabled the insurgents to raise the objection of no authority, and of an intention to rob the people of the settlement of their property.

Mr. Howe had also been into the country and on coming out of it declared there would be trouble in it, but did nothing to allay the feeling.

Riel would not allow a conference with any one, nor would he meet the would-be Governor. American citizens were blowing the flames, so as to prevent the Governor and suite entering into the land.

Mr. McDougall also holds that the bad advice of the government at Ottawa in sending him to the west, and at the same time refusing to complete the bargain by paying the money to the Hudson Bay Company, compelled him to abandon a country on which he really had no claim.

Personally, he thought the whole course of John A. & Co., a blunder—a serious blunder.

Mr. McDougall holds that he is still the representative of North Lanark, as he did not accept an office under the Crown, as no such office as Lieut.-Governor of Rupert's Land exists until the purchase is completed. Mr. McDougall, therefore, goes back to the Dominion Parliament. But has not Mr. Aiken accepted the office that he, Mr. McDougall, vacated? Or does he mean that he only vacated the place in the Cabinet, but not the representation of North Lanark?

It is rumored that he will go into opposition; that, however, is not yet decided. If John A. manages his cards and pays him well, he will remain faithful. The days of John A. & Co., however, are nearly sealed. He is at the mercy of the Lower Canadians. Mr. McDougall says he knows there is a party surrounding the government who have considerable influence in the North West, and who wish to see it a French Catholic colony with great restrictions on all other inhabitants. This is just the point. John A. is still the same; still under Lower Canada influence; still ready to lend himself to establish French Catholicism, and ruin his ally, McDougall, in order to permit it, at the beck of Cartier and Lower Canada. But this will not last long.

Riel is reported as a prisoner in the hands of his own insurgents. Some suspicion cast upon him has led to this. This may be true, but it is very doubtful. There are evident signs, however, of weakness and discontent, and if the blunderers will but prepare to use the opportunity, pay over the purchase money and send out settlers, the whole can easily be quelled; but by all means grant them all rights and privileges that Canadians enjoy.

SEPARATE SCHOOL TAXES.

The Trustees of the Separate School having applied to the Town Clerk to "record certain taxes for separate school purposes, against the land, so that the lands might be sold for these taxes, the Clerk refused to comply upon the grounds that he had no law to warrant compliance. The Clerk has since written to the Chief Superintendent of Schools and obtained the reply,—That the School Acts do not authorize a Municipal Council to levy and collect rates for separate school purposes, whether Roman Catholic, Protestant, or Colored." The Trustees of such schools must look after their own affairs.

From this it appears that separate school rates, where there is "nothing to destrain,' cannot be collected by sale of the lands, nor does it appear that they can be collected the next year off the owner or occupant. They become a personal debt, perhaps.

BAPTISM.—On Monday, on the occasion of the Rev. Mr. Dyall removing from town to the Parsonage, Smith, the members of the church in Peterboro seized the opportunity to manifest their good will to him. Mr. Dyall is but lately from England and was, therefore, to all intents just commencing house keeping. The brethren, therefore, took such articles of household furniture as would prove useful and needful, and made them a present to him. The donations amounted to about $100 worth. Some of the farmers also brought wood, flour, butter, &c., &c., in addition to the articles of furniture. The young folks of the congregation also got up a surprise party in the evening, took possession of the parsonage, astonishing Mr. and Mrs. Dyall, bringing well stored baskets and presents, and having arranged their tables invited them to partake with them. After spending an hour or two in happy and agreeable conversation, Mr. Dyall made some very touching and appropriate remarks, when all bade them good-bye for the time, hoping that the good minister and lady may be both happy and useful in their new sphere.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

CONTINUED.

THURSDAY.

Just as we were going to press, the County Council were discussing a motion of Mr. Coughlan, relative to a certain By-law of 1866, providing for issuing $20,000 debentures to be spent on roads and bridges.

This motion was withdrawn after satisfactory explanation.

These are the facts, we believe:—"The Councils previous to 1865 had spent money largely on Roads and Bridges; at the same time they did not provide annually for these expenditures. There was therefore large liabilities left unprovided for. The Bank refused to go on in this way, and the Warden, Mr. Rogers, also refused to be a party to it. There was therefore no way of getting the matter settled but by paying the debt. The Council therefore of that year had to foot the bill of balances of several years previous, heaped up through the unwillingness of Councillors to tax the people too heavily. In 1864, $1234.37 were paid for discounts, and in order to put a stop to this system, the debentures were issued. The money no doubt had been spent on roads and bridges. Since that time there can be no greater care taken to keep out of debt, and a wise system of levying every year enough to meet the liabilities of the year; and discounts, too, have been kept down."

EVENING SESSION.

The Council met. The Warden in the chair.

On motion of Mr. Blizard, seconded by Dr. Clegg, the committee on roads and bridges reported.

On motion of Mr. Millar, the Council went into a committee of the whole on the report. The report was read without amendment.

The report recommended the levying of $2,473, for construction and repairs of roads and bridges.

The following is the apportionments:—

Asphodel, $224; Ashburnham, $86; Belmount, $116; Dummer, $191; Douro, $217; Enniamore, $80; Monaghan, $148; Otonabee, $490; Smith, $388; Harvey, $100; Galway, $50; Snowden, $50: Minden, $50; Stanhope, $50; Dysart, 130; Burleigh, &c., $100.

The Reeves of the Municipalities to be commissioners to expend these sums, and they recommended that the work be done by the first of July.

The committee also recommend that Mr. Wood be instructed to repair the Buckhorn bridge, it being reported in an unsafe state.

They also recommended that the County Engineer get up plans and specifications of a bridge at Lakefield, and submit the same to the Warden and Advisory Committee, and if approved of, by them, that they take steps to erect the same.

In reference to a communication from certain lumbermen, the committee could not recommend that they be paid $1,000 towards building a bridge at Burleigh Chute, but they recommended that Messrs. Garbutt, Clegg and Moher, be a committee to build a bridge, at or near the site of the old bridge.

A communication from the Revd. Mark Burnham, was read, praying the Council to place the fence on the right place opposite the West half of lot 32, in the 12th concession of Otonabee.

The committee recommend that as soon as Mr. Burnham shows this Council by survey or report, or satisfactory evidence, that the road encroaches on his land, they will place it in its proper place.

The committee also recommended a special grant of seventy-five dollars for the Nassau bridge, and that Robert Brown be commissioner to expend the same.

On motion of Mr. Millar, the report was read and adopted.

On motion of Mr. Walton, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, Mr. T. Bradburn and Mr. R. Rowe were accepted as sureties for the County Treasurer.

On motion of Mr. Walton, seconded by Mr. Garbutt, a By-law for appointing County Auditors was read a first time.

It was afterwards read a second and third time and passed.

FRIDAY.

The Council met. S. S. Peck, Esq., Warden, in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed by the Warden.

On motion of Mr. Armstrong, and seconded by Mr. Hunter, a communication from Mr. Kelso, President of the Board of Trade, Bellcville, was read, on the subject of railway communication from Belleville through Asphodel to Peterborough. The letter was received.

On the motion of Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Peck, a By-law appointing County officers was read a first time.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, the Council went into committee of the whole on the second reading. Mr. Gilmour in the chair. It was read without amendment.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. F. Peck, it was read a third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. Garbutt, seconded by Mr. McDonald, the report of the committee on Printing was read, and

On motion of Mr. Millar, seconded by Mr. Blizard, the report was adopted.

The report recommends that the Printing be done as per contract of last year, it being found satisfactory.

On motion of Mr. Coughlan, seconded by Mr. Blizard, the subject of a grant to the Norwood Grammar School, was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Coughlan spoke in favour of the grant, inasmuch as the Norwood people had to contribute their portion of it.

On motion of Mr. Armstrong, seconded by Mr. Coughlan, a memorial praying that a road be opened from the Village of Blairton, to the Burleigh Road, was read a first time.

On motion of Mr. Armstrong, seconded by Mr. Coughlan, it was read a second and third time and passed.

On motion of Mr. McDonald, a memorial to the government to complete the Buckhorn road, was passed through all its stages. The Warden urged that something ought to be done to force this on the government, as they had received $1,500 from the County and spent it, and he thought this itself was enough to induce them to keep faith with the County.

Mr. Hunter believed a personal correspondence with the commissioner was worth one hundred memorials. He, Mr. H, had to resort to a personal correspondence when memorials failed entirely.

It was moved by Mr. McDonald that the Warden be authorized to accompany Mr. Blomfield to urge the matter on the government.

Dr. Clegg remarked that too often all correspondence with the government was neglected; the paper perhaps thrown in the waste basket.

Mr. Coughlin thought, at the same time, something ought to be done to get a road from the east part northward, and hoped the Warden would not neglect the eastern section.

The Warden was in doubt whether he was the right man to go, and spoke of Mr. Walton. Mr. Rogers was of opinion that the Warden should be sent on his own account, not accompanying any one.

Mr. Millar thought the Warden was the right man to go to, but thought the government should be asked to keep up the roads through their own lands as well as make them. For his part he thought the money spent at Young's Point would be better spent on roads and bridges.

The motion was carried that the Warden go and urge on the government the undertaking of all the necessary colonization roads.

SATURDAY.

The Council met. The Warden in the chair. All the members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and signed.

A statement of the Treasurer was submitted, showing a balance in his hands of $1703.23.

The Warden remarked that after paying the liabilities there would be a deficit of $84.39. Last year it was $2000, and the year before that $4000 over assets.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, a By-law to provide for payment of certain accounts and claims was read.

On motion of Mr. Choate, seconded by Mr. Gilmour, the Council went into Committee of the whole on the By-law: By-law read with amendments.

It was then read and passed.

Moved by Mr Garbutt, and seconded by Mr. Walton,—That whereas, the Treasurer of this County, Walter Sheridan, Esq., has placed his resignation in the hands of this Council, and whereas said resignation has been accepted, therefore, this Council feels that it owes it to itself as well as to Mr. Sheridan, to place on record, their appreciation of the diligence and faithfulness with which he has, for more than a quarter of a century managed the Finances of this County. It has ever had the utmost confidence in his integrity, and his uniform courtesy, has tended no little to create profound regard for him, and this Council in taking official leave of Mr. Sheridan, expresses its earnest hope, that he may yet long enjoy the rest and quiet, he has so fully won. Carried.

Mr. E. Pearse thanked the Council for the confidence reposed in him, and hoped that he would be able always to retain that confidence.

Mr. McCarthy asked for information in reference to the Mud Lake Bridge, and the $1,000 granted towards the road through Enniamore. It was reported that the money was all spent, and only 2½ miles of the road repaired. The people think their money ought not to be paid until spent, and he would like to know how much was spent and what the committee intended to do with the remainder of the road.

He also remarked that the Council should see that the approaches be raised above high water mark. The water generally rose 6 feet in the spring, and he feared that if something is not done the approaches will float off. The booms, too, should be fixed, as he felt that if they are not, the whole will go away in the breaking up of the ice.

The Warden was glad this had come up, as it would afford an opportunity of explaining.

The committee had expended $400 to $500 on that part of the road that was properly located, and they would spend the remainder as soon as Mr. McCarthy should locate the road properly. He further remarked that Mr. McCarthy should not say much until the job was completed; half done work should not be condemned. Then again Ennismore has not paid a cent yet. They had given debentures, but a note did not pay a debt, it only promised to pay, and this was the case with Ennismore.

Mr. McCarthy remarked that Ennismore had paid all that was demanded.

Mr. Coughlan supposed that Mr. McCarthy thought these debentures were enough without paying them as they became due.

Here some cross firing took place between the Reeves of Enniamore and Asphodel.

It was found, however, that the Clerk of Enniamore had neglected to place a rate to meet the debentures as they fell due, and hence the misunderstanding.

The County Council in the meantime has had to supply the money.

Those persons from the United States, whose presence amongst us only prevents their being in custody in their own country, may hereafter look out for themselves.—There is now an act that provides, that if any person brings into Canada, or has in his possession therein, any property stolen, or obtained by fraud or false pretenses, in any other country, in such manner that the stealing or obtaining it is like manner in Canada, would be by our laws, a felony or misdemeanor, then the bringing of such property here, or having it in possession with the knowledge of its being unlawfully obtained, shall be an offence of the same nature and punishable in the same manner as if the stealing or unlawful obtainance had taken place in Canada.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening.

Present—The Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Rutherford, Doherty, Stevenson, Helm, Kennedy, English, Morrow and Smith.

The minutes were read and signed.

The Clerk read a communication from the Town Clerk of Port Hope, in reference to their contract with the Gas Coy., as to the lamp posts;

From Mr. Blomfield, Agent of the English Land Company, in reference to aid to construct the Buckhorn road to Dysart;

From Silsbury & Co. Seneca, N. Y., in reference to Fire Engines. And also from Mr. Ashfield, Toronto, on the same subject.

The Street and Bridge Inspector, and Collector of Taxes, and Health Inspector, reported showing the taxes all collected but about $30.

The report also referred to the exceedingly healthy state of the Town, during the year, and to the fact that already owing to some dams, the ice was now up to the bridges over certain creeks; and reporting that if something be not done to prevent it, there will be floods, and consequent damage in the spring. He also reported the number of taverns, saloons and billiard tables licensed.

The report of Messrs. Rowe and Carlisle, on the levels of certain places towards finding a place for a reservoir for water works, was also read. The following is the report:—

TO THE MAYOR AND COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF PETERBORO.'

GENTLEMEN,—

We, the undersigned, whom you instructed to take the levels of the different heights of ground about Town, beg to state that we have examined several hills in the locality, and find the heights as follows: That is to say—

The hill near Mr. Hilliard's Saw Mill, is one hundred and seven feet above the level, at the intersection of George and Hunter Streets, and upwards of fifty higher than the highest building on George Street. The hill in Ashburnham, is one hundred and fifty-eight feet above the level at the same points as above stated, and fifty-one feet higher than Mr. Hilliard's hill. We find Smith Town hill at the North end of Bethune Street, to be eighty eight feet, and the high ground in the Court House yard seventy feet above the same point on George Street.

The top of the water in Mr. Hilliard's mill pond, is about twenty feet above the level at the same point at George and Hunter Street. And we also wish to state, that we have taken the level from the top of the water in Mr. Patterson's pond, and find it to be six feet lower than George Street at the above mentioned point. All of which is respectfully submitted.

ROBERT ROWE
DANID CARLILE

Peterboro, January 31st. 1870

A communication from Jas. Ryan and Cornelius McGrath, trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate School, was read.

The application of the Separate School Trustees for a share of $789, of Clergy Reserve moneys that was left to the credit of the Board of Trustees in Commercial Bank in the year 1856, 14 years ago. No claims was made for interest.

A communication from Mr. E. C. Hill, asking that the Music Hall be enlarged 24 feet, was read, and a plan of the proposed enlargement was placed before the Council. This was received, and is to be discussed in two weeks.

A communication from A Lockie, South Monaghan, was read, in reference to supplying plank for side-walks, &c. This was laid on the table.

On motion of Mr. Doherty, seconded by Mr. Helm, Messrs. Stevenson, Toole, Smith, Helm, Edmison and the Mover, were appointed a committee to enquire into the claim of the Separate School Trustees.

Mr. Blomfield was heard before the Council, and exhibited a very full map of the rear part of the County, showing the proposed line of the Buckhorn road.

Mr. Blomfield referred to the $1,500 formerly granted, but which was not paid. Also to the improved state of the road, in part by W. A. Scott, and also by M. Boyd, and the English Land Company. And he, Mr. B, thought that if the Town would guarantee the payment of the $1,500, as the County had spent their $1,500, this would be a strong argument to use with the Government to complete the road to the Dysart boundary, whence the English Company would complete it. He also remarked that if this were done, the distance to Haliburton would be about 57 miles, instead of 78 as at present; and that if not done, a road would be sought through Somerville, by Fenelon Falls, to Lindsay; but the people would prefer it by Peterboro, to the front.

On motion of Mr. O'Bierne, seconded by Mr. Smith, the following motion was passed:

Moved by Mr. O'Bierne, seconded by Mr. Smith,—That this Council are fully alive to the necessity of having leading roads constructed from the townships into the town, and regret their inability to remedy, at the present time, substantial assistance to the proposed prospect of the road from Dysart, but considering the prospect one which would result most advantageously to the interest of the town, the Council are decidedly of opinion that the amount asked for should be granted for the object proposed as soon as the road be constructed, and that at the first convenient opportunity such means should be taken as will put the Council in a position to supply the necessary funds.—Carried.

Mr. Stevenson explained that the Council, he believed, was willing to aid the road, but could not without an act of Parliament to that effect. He remarked that the reason the $1,500 were withheld, was the knowledge that the money was foolishly squandered, wasted, by those who were appointed to lay it out. He, Mr. S., was in favor of aiding to construct roads to the town, but the Town Council could do nothing. He moved a general resolution, promising aid to roads approved by the Council, but withdrew it in favour of Mr. O'Beirne's resolution.

Mr. O'Beirne spoke strongly in favour of aiding roads into town, and thought something definite should be done as soon as possible.

Mr. Toole was ready to move to pay the $1500 over, if a substantial guarantee were given by the Government and English Land Company, that the road would be completed, but he thought it foolish to spend money if that money was worse than thrown away as before.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Toole, the accounts for Returning Officers amounting to $42, was ordered to be paid, also that of Robert White for $6.

Mr. English, seconded by Mr. Morrow, moved that the Clerk be instructed to advertise for tenders for hemlock and pine, for bridges and sidewalks for the present year.

Mr. Carlisle being asked by Mr. O'Beirne, was not in favour of hemlock for sidewalks, but thought it was good in heavy plank for bridges.

Mr. Stevenson had made enquiry in Port Hope, and found they used hemlock principally for scantling, as it lasted longer than pine or cedar, but he was in favour of buying plank without tendering if possible. Mr. Shaw had plank that he would agree to deliver cheap.

It was finally agreed that the Inspector try for two weeks what he can purchase pine or hemlock for, and report to the Council.

On motion of Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, the Council agreed to offer a bonus of $100 for the best plan and estimate of water works, based on Mr. Rowe and Mr. Carlisle's distances and levels.

Mr. Stevenson remarked that if water could be obtained just under the Scobell property, on the Smith road, it would save a great deal of expense, if the water works should be constructed. He, however, did not believe that the Town was in a position or standing to undertake such an enterprise. He thought a steam fire engine would meet the wants of the town for years.

A By-law appointing assessors was read and passed. Messrs. Kennedy and Rowe are assessors, at a salary of $120 each.

The Council adjourned for two weeks.

Grammer and Union School.

The Board met on Tuesday evening. Present—Messrs. Dumble, Toole, Dunlop, Stevenson, Cameron, Gilmour, Coulter and Edwards.

Absent—Messrs. Cluxton, Rogers, Lundy and Dr. Burnham.

The South Ward is not represented except by Mr. Coulter. The returning officer made some mistake at the late election, and elected Mr. Coulter this year as well as last year. It was no doubt, the intention of those present to elect Mr. Helm, whose term of office expired.

At the selection of six out of the eight Trustees, Messrs. Dumble, Cluxton, Coulter, Lundy, Cameron and Edwards were chosen for the year.

Mr. Gilmour was re-appointed by the County Council.

The Board again appointed Dr. Burnham chairman. Mr. Dunlop was voted to the chair pro tem.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Toole, Mr. O'Beirne was re-appointed Secretary—Treasury, at the salary of $100 per annum.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Toole, Messrs. Coulter, Cameron and Stevenson were named Finance Committee.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE—Messrs. Toole, Stevenson and Lundy.

COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS—Messrs. Dumble, Edwards, Gilmour, Cluxton and the chairman.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Cameron, Messrs. E. Pearce and J. J. Hall, Esqs., were appointed auditors.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Dunlop, Mr. Stratton was re-appointed Local Superintendent for the year.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from the Principal was read, soliciting increase of salary.—This is to be discussed in two weeks.

A report by the Principal was then read showing the School to be in a very prosperous condition, and progressing favourably. Two or three years ago the amount received from government was not $900, now it is $1,344. There is also a corresponding increase in the attendance. It is also generally admitted that the School never was in a more prosperous and Satisfactory state.

On looking over the salaries, Mr. Stevenson remarked that every teacher, but Miss Beaty and Mrs. Flavelle, had received an increase of salary during the year.

Mr. Stevenson then moved, seconded by Mr. Toole,—That Miss Beatty be paid her salary in full during her sickness. Carried.

It was also agreed by general consent,—That all applications for increase of salary, be laid over for at least one week.—The present application to be an exception to this rule.

Mr. Dunlop, as one of a committee appointed to wait on the County Council, in reference to a site in the old burying ground, reported that their application had been rejected. He also remarked, that town influence, secretly used, had something to do in frustrating their application, as it was represented that the Town people did not want a school house built on this ground.

Mr. Gilmour, reported to the same effect.

Mr. Dumble urged that the building should be erected on their own lot, or some other be obtained in a suitable location.

Mr. Stevenson remarked that there was now no school in either the Centre or South ward, and thought that something should be done to get a school for those wards.

Messrs Edwards and Coulter, were named a special committee to endeavour to find terms of certain lots, and report in two weeks; also to write to the Government about the north part of the lot where the Drill Shed is.

On motion of Mr. Dumble, the Finance Statement of the year was received, and, as soon as audited, directed to be published.

The Board then adjourned for two weeks to meet in the Council Chambers.

The pupils of School Section number 12, Otonabee, presented their Teacher, Miss Britton, on re-opening the school this year, after the holidays, with a nice Album, a Satchel, and some other tokens of respect and appreciation of her labors amongst them. Miss Britton's industry in training those committed to her care does not seem to be forgotten.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

THE WEATHER is now very fine and steady.

AN EVENING WITH THE YOUNG FOLKS. We again invite attention to the above entertainment to come off this Thursday evening, at half-past seven o'clock.

MUSIC.—We would invite attention to the advertisement of Mr. McLelland in another column. He has just arrived from England, and brings the very highest testimonials with him.

NEW DOMINION MONTHLY.—The February number of this excellent family serial has been received. The reading matter is worthy of a place in every house.

LONDON SOCIETY.—The January number of London Society has been received from Messrs. Copp & Clark, Toronto. It can also be obtained at Mr. Kidds or Mr. Menzies' book stores.

THE COMMITTEE of the Protestant Home acknowledge with thanks the following donations for January:—Mrs. Romaine, jars; Mrs. Dunnet, tea; Mrs. Heather, from the Good Templars' social, ham and cakes; Mr. B. Green, 12 loaves of bread; Mr. White, beef and suet.

THE ADDINGTON "BEAVER" is the name of a new paper published in Newburgh County, Ontario. The Beaver is very neatly printed. Its political idiosyncrasies we cannot tell. It has its niche, however, and we hope it will fill it properly. Mr. Beaman, proprietor, has our best wishes for the success of his undertaking.

ORANGE INTELLIGENCE.—On Tuesday the election of officers for this County took place at Peterboro. W. H. Stephenson, Esq., of Norwood, was chosen County Master; J. B. McWilliams, Esq., D. C. M.; Rev. Mr. Pattyson, C. C.; John Smith, Esq., C. S.; John Armstrong, Esq., C. T.; Geo. Jonston, Esq., C. D. C.

READINGS.—Mrs. Douglass will give several readings in the Music Hall tomorrow and Saturday evenings,—two evenings only. She is favorably spoken of by the Globe, Leader, Telegraph and American papers. Her readings are most humorous, and will be found pleasing, and to many, if not to all, profitable.

Mr. Thos. White, delivered a lecture in the Music Hall, on Thursday evening last, on the "Last ten years of Canadian History." He commenced exactly 15 minutes after 8 o'clock, and finished seven to eight minuets before 9 o'clock, in all, not three quarters of an hour. There were evident signs and expressions, too, of disappointment, among the audience. There was nothing new in what was said, nor was there anything very original to enliven the dullness, except that he admitted (wha politican of that class never did before?) . at the government had done wrong in Red River affairs, in not paying over the three hundred thousand pounds, as agreed with the British Government. Those who represents the lecture as an hour and a half in delivery, must have been sitting on a bad seat, or their time, like their ideas, out of gear.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—I have noticed in your last issue a very rambling, "dreaming," and incoherent communication, over the signature of Mr. Henry Collins, ex-Collector of North Monaghan, in which he has labored hard to show himself witty at my expense. If inclined to employ his own weapons, I doubt not but they could be used with much better effect against himself. I shall, however, in the meantime, content myself with the following brief explanation:

Mr. Collins commences by stating that I got up the report, after the township accounts were audited, that he had not paid over all the taxes that he had collected. This I still repeat, and am prepared to prove, taking his own figures and those of the Treasurer's book. But Mr. Collins wishes to convey the impression that this was my own getting up. Well, suppose it was, had I not a perfect right, either as Township Clerk or as being a ratepayer, to examine into the correctness of the Township Finances; but instead of this being so, it was at his own request, and that of the Council, that I did so, under the following circumstances: In place of settling with the Treasurer, as he should have done, he came to the Council on the 27th February, when he asked me to examine the roll for final settlement, as he wished to get his bonds for his sureties. I refused doing so in such a hurried manner, but consented that I would before next meeting of the Council. He then produced a pass-book in which he said he had entered all sums paid as taxes, which had been closely examined by a well qualified person, and that he felt certain of its correctness. The Council acted thereon and returned the bonds, but with the express understanding that if anything was found wrong he would make it right. Upon examination I found a deficit of $20.90, taking Mr. Collins' own figures. This I afterwards increased by $2.00, dog tax, which I found he had crossed off the roll, but which I noticed he had taken credit for in his list of deductions, thus leaving a balance of $22.90. On this statement the Auditors reported on the 15th instant, that they found it correct. I sent him a copy of this on Saturday (the day I received it from the Auditors) by Councillor Robson, desiring him to drop it at the Toll Gate, which I find he did during the afternoon. He wishes it to be understood as a strong point against me, that he received it on Sabbath morning, and adds with evident gusto, "not very consistent with morality, I think." Well, well, Mr. Henry Collins' preaching morality!

Mr. Collins states what is untrue when he says that I notified him to settle a balance of $60. It is also untrue when he says that in my letter enclosing him a copy of the Auditor's Report, that I said a word "about interpreting dreams, or standing by consequences," as I merely said that I was directed to inclose him a copy of the Auditor's Report; and still further it is untrue when he states that the report of Auditors showed that there was any balance coming to him, much less a one of $17.80, but that it stated as follows: Amount on Collector's Roll, $3686.47; Collector paid by Cash and Debentures, $3672 57, showing a balance of $22.90 due by him to the municipality. So much for his veracity.

Whatever changes may have been made in the above during the past two weeks, by Mr. Collins making the discovery that the Treasurer had omitted to credit him with a certain order (which I think had been already done as will yet appear) I have nothing to say. I took the accounts as they stood, and the Auditor's certify that my statement was correct.

I cannot, in all this, see wherein I have been "sold," &c. &c., as Mr. Collins insinuates with such bombast. Had I conceived at the mistakes when I noticed them, I should have escaped the ire which he so lavishly showers on those who cross his path, or differ from him. I was requested to perform a certain duty, which I was not bound to do, and for doing so, I doing it correctly, thereby saving the municipality the sum of $12.90 (as this sum is yet unaccounted for, and must be added to the township funds) I am subjected to the coarse invective of one who, had he wished to do what was right, should rather have felt thankful for services rendered under such circumstances. In view of the above I think I may well ask Mr. Collins has he been dreaming? or worse ——? Your readers, and especially those of North Monaghan, can judge.

Mr. Collins showed unwise haste in rushing into print, for had it been found that there really was a balance in his favor, I would have used the same medium for saying so as had been employed in stating his indebtedness, but the opportunity was so tempting to have a rap at me for discovering his delinquencies, and his ecstasy so great to publish himself as "an interpreter of dreams," that he became jubilant with the immediate prospect of the anticipated reward, strutting about, clothed in scarlet, with a golden chain about his neck, and of being proclaimed, not third, but first ruler of the Township of North Monaghan, a consummation so long and so ardently wished for.

But, Mr. Editor, this matter cannot be settled by newspaper controversy; indeed it should never have been commenced; but in lieu thereof I propose the following method of doing so, and of accounting for the balance which I assert is due the municipality: Let Mr. Collins produce the pass-book already mentioned, in which he says he entered all sums paid as taxes, and if the Auditors do not find by it that he has entered therein $20.27 less than is marked on the Collector's Roll, opposite the name of the late Judge Boucher, and again taken credit for the same sum when returning the Roll to the Treasurer, which, with the $2 before stated as dog tax, similarly treated, makes within three cents of $22.90, thus exactly accounting for the deficiency stated as yet due, I shall forfeit the $20, which he so magnanimously says the Council should give me for certain services, and apply it to assist in defraying the expenses of the civic outfit.

In October I mentioned to Mr. Collins that I thought the mistake (?) was as above stated (which I believe he knew well) and said that with the book we could ourselves settle the matter in less than five minutes, but he very gruffly refused. His continuing to do so must, I consider, be looked upon as the strongest possible proof of his intended peculation.

Regretting at having trespassed so much on your valuable space, on a subject so entirely local, but into which I have been forced in self-defence,

I am, Mr. Editor,
Yours, &c.,
WM. WOOD,
Township Clerk.

FRENCH papers advise all young men who would marry rich to join the Papal Zouaves, and, according to their statements, the heiresses of the Eternal City have eyes only for these "valiant and gay defenders" of the Pope. The Princess of Santa Croce, whose illustrious family possesses the Duchy of Cherchiae and the Earldom of Torre, has married a private of the Zouaves and brought him a marriage portion of a million. The grand-daughter of Prince Baberini is, since a few days, the wife of a Zouave belonging to one of the most modest families of Belgium, and the young Countess of Falvacappa has followed their example by marrying a young lieutenant without name or fortune. A good many more such matches are said to have been contracted.

A Beauty of the Harem.—At Constantinople the Empress Eugenie saw in the harem of the Sultan a young Odalisque, who enarmed her so much by the angelic expression of her features, that she turned to the Sultan and asked him if he would permit her to take the young lady to Paris, if she were willing to go. The Sultan assented, but the young beauty preferred to stay where she was, at which, imitation, all the other ladies of the harem expressed great dissatisfaction, while the Sultan seemed rather pleased with this mark of her attachment.

A Farmer in Putnam County, Ind., has kept a pair of black snakes in his barn several years, and all kinds of vermin have since entirely disappeared.—His crib and bins are no more disturbed by rats and mice. They are better protection than a dozen cats, and are entirely harmless towards chickens and domestic animals. The snakes employed for this purpose are not the racers nor the spotted variety, but a short thick species, of jet black colour.

The discovery of an error of upwards of a million of dollars in the debt of Canada, has led to the supposition in the minds of some people, that the Quebec debt will be increased by half that amount. This, however, is not the case. The mistake only effects the public debt since Confederation, and nothing to do with the surplus of July 1, 1867, which Quebec and Ontario has to assumed.—Sherbrook Gazette.

A shooting affray was got up at Belleville lately. It seems that a party of young men called at the house of a certain gent and gave the signal used by his girl, which brought him to the door. Enraged at seeing the trick played upon him, he drew a revolver and wounded a young man named Donohue.—Granville Advocate.

The infant daughter of the Prince and Princess of Wales was christened Dec. 24 at Marlborough House. The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of London, and the infant Princess received the names of Maud Charlotte Mary Victoria.

The Lindsay Good Templars are still determinded on enjoying themselves. They have now planned a sleigh-ride out to Cambray to spend a social time with the fraternity in that place. The evening appointed is that of Friday, the 11th prox.

Since the famous Printers' strike in 1864, two of the Boston daily papers—the Traveller and Transcript—have employed girls as compositors.

The Montreal papers says that Hon. Mr. Galt, who is expected back from England this week, will go into opposition on the meeting of Parliament next month.

Rio de Janeiro, Feb. 25th, 1866,

Messrs. RAIMUNDO C. LEITE & Bro:

GENTLEMEN:—While a son of my friend Mr. Francisco de Mattos Pimenta (a large proprietor in the Cidade de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tosoco, who is thought a great deal of in Campos, but the fever, instead of diminishing, turned, continued, and typhoid, the boy (14 years old) could not speak, would not take the broths, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tosoco declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the Relief pure on the Chest, back and wrists; three (of Radway's) Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after meals, one dessert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments.

I remain, gentlemen

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

It has been said by a few unfortunate mortals who have striven in vain to gain position of honor and distinction, that they were not sufficiently appreciated. While such may sometimes be the case, it is generally to be observed that true deserving worth is cordially accepted and honored, whether applied to religion, politics, the arts, or invention. Next to religion, invention or discovery, has the highest position, for it wields a mighty influence; through its channels nations have overleaped, as if by magic, the bounds of a separation, and united by electric wires, can converse together at momentary will.

Indeed, the diversified efforts of man's genius in these respects, are a source of admiration and gratitude to the whole human race. In medicine, science has revealed during the last quarter of a century, many hidden truths, which had before been considered to be impossibilities. The malignity of pestilential disease is now in a great measure bereft of its terror and even the "insatiate archer," consumption, is arrested in his deadly march, and oftentimes overthrown. Undoubtedly the great reigning power in the treatment of this and other pulmonary diseases, is Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY; and the foregoing allusions are applicable to the memory of its illustrious discoverer. The proof of the efficacy of this great remedy is in its undying reputation. It has stood the test of time, and its fame as a curative of throat and lung complaints has extended to all climes.—Canada Christian Advocate.

At a Public Meeting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly; an immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel complaints, and all other diseases incident to this climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

THE ECUMENICAL COUNCIL lately called at Rome is an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large as-emblies of this nature convening representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be as harmonious and unanimous as the verdict in favor of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, for diseases of the lungs, blood, stomach, liver, &c For sale by all druggists.

DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO. We sometimes hear persons say, 'my horse is really out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;' they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and certify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us that his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell more rapidly and for higher prices. INVERTED TOE-NAIL is a very painful disease, generally the result of wearing tight shoes, and is usually accompanied with more or less inflammation, and, at times, ulceration. The great toe is the one usually attacked. At first, there is only a little uneasiness, which ceases when the shoe or boot is removed from the foot; after a time the part becomes tender or inflamed, and the corner or edge of the nail is found pressing deeply into the flesh, while the whole nail is narrow, and much arched across Ulceration eventually ensues, proud flesh appears, and the pain becomes very severe For the sloughing of the proud flesh, healing the ulceration, and eventually curing the toe, use Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative, according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, Broadway, N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

GREAT SUFFERING.—How many thousand ladies, both young and old, have passed through great suffering from that terrible demon, Neuralgia, some passing a sleepless night tossing about in great agony, but succeed in getting relief after a few hours of misery, only to be renewed again in a short time with the same unrelenting, excruciating pain Others have endured this terrible torture for weeks, both day and night, until exhausted with such continual suffering, and almost wishing for the angel of death to relieve them; but hope dawns: a cure has been discovered, a rapid and radical cure; Briggs' Allevantor is the remedy; can be tested, free, at No. 6 King St. West, Toronto; is sold by Druggists and Country Merchants everywhere. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors' No. 208 Broadway, New York

NEURALGIA may be distinguished from rheumatism by the intensity of the pain, its short continuance, and its liability to return on the slightest touch; in acute rheumatism there is fever, redness, heat in the part affected, and some swelling, all of which are absent in Neuralgia; in chronic rheumatism the pain is continuous, less severe, and often worse at night. From toothache, by the shortness of the paroxysm, the rapidity of its succession, and the frequent convulsive twichin s. To obtain immediate relief, use Dr. J. Briggs' Allevantor according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

In cases of Burns, Bruises, Frozen Limbs, it acts like a charm."

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"It has stood the test trial and has not been found wanting Its astonishing cures of Inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subsiding the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. A Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment" are on the wrapper.

THE SARSAPARILLA DIGGERS OF YUCATAN This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico. and still retain some of its peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co, employ a small army of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with narrow spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild banana furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own, [Boston Commercial.

PILES may be caused by anything that will irritate the lower bowels, prodncing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in past years the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight stays, sedentary habits, high living, heating, irritating food, &c. Dr J. Briggs' Unrivalled Pile Remedy, remarkable for its superior excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do not hesitate to recommend it in the highest terms. New Method of Washing Clothes
Without Labor.

"THE DOMINION"

Steam Washing Boiler.

THIS Washing Boiler operates upon purely scientific principles. It is self-acting, and dispenses entirely with labor and the wear of clothes. The hot suds and steam, by the action of fire, are driven up through the chambers, poured upon the clothes, and forced through the fabric with astonishing rapidity, cleansing it perfectly without rubbing. It has been thoroughly tested, and pronounced unequalled as a clothes washer by those who have used it. All fabrics, from the finest laces to the best blankets, can be washed perfectly and with ease without the washboard. For flannels it is invaluable, as the rubbing, rolling and pressing process must necessarily full them more or less. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention Washing will no longer be a hardship, and washing-day a terror and dread to housewives. The invention can be used in any boiler, and the low price of the article places it within the reach of every family.

☞ Ladies are requested to give it a trial, and if it don't give satisfaction, to return it.

The Boilers can be had at the stores of THOMAS LANNIN and JAMES STEVENSON and from the undersigned, who have purchased the right for the County of Peterborough.

Arabian Heave Remedy and Conditine Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions cuts equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

PEABODY.

Soft be thy slumbers on the realms of shade,
Radiant thy dreams in that divine repose,
O thou whose kind and loving heart hath made
Millions rejoice amid the phantom-woes
That brooded o'er their being. Like a rose
Which blossoms in the wilderness, thy name
Spreads fragrance o'er the barren waste of life,
And high above the Age's sordid strife
Is blazoned now unto immortals fame.
That fame shall be to man a glorious dower,
A heritage of thoughts most pure and bright,
A promise that shall prove a blissful power
To scatter o'er thy grave, like rays of light,
While Honor, Truth, and Virtue shall endure,
The blessings of the friendless and the poor.

B. Waterford Letter.

Found Out all About It.

A well-known citizen of Hartford, Conn, a few days ago, had taken a seat in the afternoon train for Providence, when a small, weasened-faced, elderly man, having the appearance of a well-to-do farmer, came into the car looking for a seat. The gentlemanly good-naturedly made room for him by his side, and the old man looked him over from head to foot.

"Going to Providence?" he said at length.

"No, sir," the stranger answered, politely; "I stop at Andover."

"I want to know! I belong out that way myself. Expect to stay long?"

"Only over night, sir."

A short pause.

"Did you calc'late to put up at the tavern?"

"No, sir; I expect to stop with Mr. Skinner."

"What, Job Skinner's! Deacon Job—lives in a little brown house on the old pike? Or mebbe it's his brother's? Was it Tim Skinner's—Square Tim's—where you was going?"

"Yes," said the gentleman, similing; "it was squire Tim's."

"Dew tell! if you are going' there to stop over night? Any connection of his'n?"

"Well, now, that's curus! The old man ain't got into trouble any nothin' has he?" lowering his voice; "ain't goin' to serve a writ onto him, be ye?"

"O, no nothing of the kind."

"Glad on't. No harm in askin." I s'pose. I reckon Skinner is a connection of yourn?"

"No," said the gentleman; then, seeing the amused expression on the faces of two or three acquaintances in the neighboring seats, he added, in a confidential tone:

"I am going to see squire Skinner's daughter."

"Law sakes! said the old man, his face quivering with curiosity. "That's it is it? I want to know! Goin' to see Mirady Skinner, be ye? Well, Mirady's a nice gal—higher hombly, and long favored, but smart to work, they say, and I guess you're about the right age for her, too. Kep' company together long?"

"I never saw her in my life, sir."

"How you talk! Somebody's gin her a recommend, I s'pose, and you're goin' clear out there to take a squint at her! Wa'nt, I must say there's as likely gals in Andover as Mirandy Skinner. I'm [illegible] family of grown up darters myself. Never was married a-fore, was ye?—don't see no wood on your bet."

"I have been married about fifteen years, sir. I have a wife and five children."

And then, as the long restrained mirth of the listeners to this dialogue best forth at the old man's open-mouthed astonishment, he hastened to explain. "I am a doctor, my good friend, and Squire Skinner called at my office this morning to request my professional services for his sick daughter."

"Wa'al now!" And the old bore waddled off into the next car.

Starting an Orchard.—C. Grove, of Middletown, Pa., wishes to start an orchard and asked: 'Would it be no advantage to plant seeds and grass on the top?' Mr. Fuller replied—"It is never worth while for a man to go back to the primitive ways. A railroad-engine is better than a yoke of oxen when a man is in a hurry.' Mr. Carpenter said—'It is very well known that the trees produced from seed grow very slowly unless transplanted. The best plan is to take them up and cut off the tap-roots. Then we get laterals and double growth in five years.

A country clergyman called on a poor parishioner, whom he found bitterly lamenting the loss of an only son, a boy about four or five years old. In the hope of consoling the afflicted woman, he remarked to her that one so young could not have committed any very grevious sin, and that, no doubt the child had gone to "Heaven." "Ah sir," said the simple hearted creature, "but Tommy was so shy, and they are all strangers there.

PERSECUTION IN IRELAND.

The "Pall Mall Gazette" says:—

"The circumstances concerning the death and burial of a baker named Carroll, who lived at Kilmallock, in Ireland, show that it is sometimes rather unpleasant to live among a warm hearted and enthusiastic people. The Limerick "Chronicle" states that on the 21st March, 1867, Carroll was seized by the Fenian leader Deasy, who commanded the attack on the police barrack, and threatened him with death if he did not ask for its surrender; while, on the other hand, the police, when he went to the barrack, threatened to shoot him if he did not retire from its precincts. For two hours poor Carroll was a target for the police and rebels. At the special commission held afterwards he deposed to those facts, and ever since became an object of detestation to the inhabitants of Killmallock and the adjoining country. No one would deal with him, he was called a traitor and a spy, and the result of this persecution so preyed on his mind as to throw him into a state of ill health, which terminated in his death last week.

The hatred followed the unfortunate man to the grave. His coffin had to be guarded by a body of the Irish constabulary with loaded rifles, from his residence to the graveyard, against a rabble hooting, shouting, and using the most horrible imprecations and expressions of contempt for the remains of the deceased. His friends and relatives were afraid to attend the funeral; his wife and brother with the clergy and police, formed the procession at burial. No one would even dig the grave; and the task had to be performed by Carroll's brother, who, with the assistance of one or two of the constabulary, had also to throw in the dirt over the coffin after the burial service had been read. We are often told that a more affectionate, hand-hearted people than the Irish does not exist on the face of the earth, and that it is our fault that we do not understand them; perhaps it is, but when we hear such stories as these, we cannot help thinking that we should the more speedily appreciate their kindly temperament if they would show a little less brutality and injustice in their dealings with each other.

A Leap for Death.—A poor fellow named Thomas Coyne, sentenced to the State Prison for life, to whom heart hope has been for six years a stranger, attempted to end his earthly existence on Tuesday morning by making a desperate plunge head foremost from the fourth corridor in the south wing to a solid granite pavement, nearly forty feet below. Miraculous as it may seem, he was in no way injured, and literally escaped without a bruise. A small wooden stool happened to stand on the spot where he fell, and his body, turning in the descent, precipitated upon it crushing it to splinters. The stool saved his life, for if, he had fallen upon the floor, every bone in his body must have been shattered. He was taken up in an unconscious condition and taken to the hospital where he revived and in a short time commenced to walk about, only complaining of a slight lameness in his legs. The prisoners were marching out in divisions at the time—about eleven in the morning. Coyne attempted to excuse himself by saying that he slipped off the edge of the corridor, but this is an absolute impossibility, as there are horizontal iron guards every two feet on the outer edge of the corridor from the floor to the ceiling. He has been low spirited for some days, and took this desperate method to rid himself of despair.—He is an Irishman by birth, and has always borne a good character in the prison. He was a sailor, and the crime for which he received a life sentence was the murder of a man with whom he had some trouble, and whom he followed here from New York for this purpose. He is thirty-five years of age, and has just completed the sixth year of his term. Having not a friend in the world, and with a future, almost a blank, it is no wonder that he cared nothing for life.—Boston Journal.

Cough Mixture.—Four drachms paregoric, with two drachms of sulphuric ether, and two drachms tincture of tou. Dose, a teaspoonful in warm water.

French Lip Salve.—Lard, sixteen ounces; white wax, two ounces nitre and alum in fine powder each half an ounce; alkanet to color.

An Improvement.—Some years since, Dr. Jewett, while traveling in the province of New Brunswick, had its attention directed by a fellow-passenger to a curious sign over the door of a liquor-shop. A rude painting of a beehive occupied a portion of it, and the following verse the remainder:—

"Within this hive we're all alive,
Good liquor makes us funny;
As you pass by, step in and try
The flavour of our honey."

The doctor proposed the following change, substituting for bee-hive the picture of a plucked pigeon or a muskrat skinned, with the following verse:—

"We've liquors here of every kind,
And sell them cheap, as you shall find,
They'll make you feel quite funny!
Perhaps they'll sprawl you on the floor;
If so, we'll kick you out the door,
After we've got your money."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this excellent medicine so justly acquired from its cures, many of which are truly remarkable, is sustained. Incontrovertible cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with the corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies that man has to contend with. Often, the mercurial or mineral taint of the organism renders it powerless to control, and invites the attack of existing or latent diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the system, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develops into one or other of its loathsome forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, internal cancers may be suddenly developed in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows itself in pestilent eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the necessity of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla in all families, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: Ery. St. Anthony's Fire, Pose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions or visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Heart Disease, &c., Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterine affections of the muscular and nervous system.

Syphilis or Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Ulceration and Scrofula, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia, Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as has this remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its extraordinary character and power to cure the various ailments of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most celestial remedy that can be given for inflicted consumptives, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed in all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers and great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Ill-smith, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it is nowise injurious nor painful. The number and importance of its cures in the prevailing districts, are literally beyond account, and well authenticated as none of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and which other remedies had failed to cure. Unacclimated persons, after residence in, or travelling through miasmatic localities, will be protected by using the AGUE CURE, and if they shall, Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy action.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy. Its sugar coating renders it agreeable even to children, while it is purely vegetable, and in no way dangerous in any quantity. Prepared by J. C. AYER & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by druggists the world.

PRICE, $1.00 PER BOTTLE.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!

Strong, Pure and Rich Blood — Increase of Flesh and Weight — Clear Skin and Beautiful Complexion, Secured to ALL.

RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

has made the most astonishing cures. So quick, so rapid are the changes the body undergoes under the influence of this truly WONDERFUL MEDICINE, that

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

Scrofula, Consumption, Syphilis, cured and badly treated Mercury, in the worst forms, Glandular Diseases, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth, Tumors, Boils in the Glands, and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous Discharges from the Ears, Erysipelas Diseases of the Kidneys, Bones, Muscles, and the worst forms of Skin Diseases, Erysipelas, Scald Head, Salt Rheum, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all Weakness and Painful Discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of RADWAY'S Sarsaparillian Resolvent, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it the existence of these terms of disease, its potent power to cure them.

Not only does the Sarsaparillian Resolvent expel all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional Skin and Syphilitic diseases, but it is the only positive remedy for Kidney, Bladder, Urinary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Strangury, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are Brick dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid desire, with pain, sparseness, and white bone dust deposits, and where there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the small of the back, and along the loins. In all these conditions Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent, aided by the application of Radway's Ready Relief to the Loins and Small of the Back, and the Rewards regulated with one or two of Radway's Regulating Pills per day, will soon make a permanent cure. In a few days the patient will be enabled to hold and discharge his water naturally without pain, and the Urine will be restored to its natural clear and amber or cherry color.

THE WASTES OF THE BODY

are supplied with new, healthy and vigorous blood, that furnishes sound structure. Those all suffering from WASTEFUL DISCHARGES, either MALE or FEMALE, of the Womb, Ulcers, or other system, whether Leucorrhœa, Sperm, or Ruptive discharges of every kind, or from violence of "Self-abuse," from the Genital Glands, or Venereal discharge, or Ulcers, or Sores, through the reparative process of Radway's Sarsaparillian, are arrested, and the ruptured organs healed

THE TRUE THEORY OF CURE.

Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies the system, through the blood, urine, gravel, and structure-making constituents, with Vegetable-making, Flesh-making, Heat or Calori, and Fat-making elements. All of its constituents are nourishing, purifying, and strengthening. Repairs, Heals, Resolves, and drives out of the body the products of Decay and Corruption. CONSUMPTION, WHITE SWELLING, DROPSY, SYPHILIS, CANCERS, TUMORS, &c., are all of a scrofulous diathesis, and as such are within the curative range of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent!

1. That Scrofula, by whatever name designated, is the result of deposits from the blood, induced or caused by Chronic inflammation. That these deposits take place when the blood is poor, weak, watery, and incapable of holding in solution its proper constituents, or from the presence of some virus or poison in the blood, as Mercury, Calomel, Corrosive Sublimate, which is the Corrosive Chloride of Mercury, or other agents given in medicines and which enter largely in the common advertised Sarsaparillas, NOT ABSORBED OR CHANGED FROM THEIR NATURAL CONDITION.

2. That unless the repairs or nutriments are greater than the wastes, the decomposition and decay will supervene, and the powers of life become exhausted.

3. That the dying body cannot be sustained on any treatment of medication that exhausts the system, or fails to nourish the blood, the only medium through which the vital forces are preserved, and on which the growth of the body depends.

4. That Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies a want never before possessed, or known to exist in medicine; that the true food principle in Chemical science, which has been brought to such a perfect system of cure, is exhibited as follows:

1. Its great power in assimilating the food in its first stage of distillation in the process of digestion, as chyme and chyle with the nourishing elements of blood, separating from these liquids refuse and inert qualities before they are taken up by the lacteals and are formed into blood. Here we see that by its wonderful power it charges the system with the very essence or principle that forms the vital powers of the body, and its chemical action on the blood is in primitive and complete condition, separated every atom of refuse material or element, out of which the virus of disease is formed.

2. That the blood thus prepared, and supplied with these nourishing properties, becomes strong, rich and healthy and holds in solution its proper constituents, through the Sarsaparillian Resolvent, and regulates the wastes of the body with sound and healthy structures. Such is the wonderful power the Sarsaparillian Resolvent exerts on the blood and juices of the system, that no virulent humors or poisons will exist by which deposits are made.

3. The rapidity which the Sarsaparillian enters the circulation and communicates its curative powers through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids, restores the constituent secretions of each respective organ, establishing functional harmony throughout the system, thus the action and power over the functions the liver secretes its natural or proper allotment of bile; the skin sweats; the kidneys urea; and the lungs carbon, so that this wonderful medicine not only establishes health in the sick body, but preserves the system in health.

As we have shown the principle on which a cure is formed, as well as the only possible theory of cure we claim that the happy effects of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent is unlimited, and that every one who uses it in a reasonable time, according to Directions, is properly within its specific range.

in this Medicine consists in the selected and harmonious ingredients containing curative and nutritious properties that supply the blood and general system with such elements which in a condition of disease and depravity, it is deficient of, together with the combination of the several ingredients that form the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

If the constitution of Ginger, was exhausted from the atmospheric air, life would become extinct. So, when the blood becomes exhausted of its vital constituents, it deposits its tubercles and diseased humors in the body, and the elements of decay and decomposition supervene. It is by a Sarsaparillian Resolvent is to the blood and general system what OXYGEN is to the atmospheric air; it supplies the life giving principles and enables the blood to hold in solution all its natural constituents.

DAILY CHANGES

take place for as the Sarsaparillian increases the smooth and parts of the blood, all deposits are dissolved, and worn particles are thrown into the [illegible] and [illegible] are attacked, and upon that are established [illegible] exhausted, expelled and [illegible] new and healthy blood is formed, and [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible]

Mason, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.

This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a [illegible] which gradually during the spring of 1867, confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoonee Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoonee Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshoonee Remedy; I believe it will cure you,

MARY ANN DOUGHTY.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.

A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoonee Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

FORBIDDEN FRUIT.

Forbidden now—and yet from childhood days,
Increasing with each year, our love had grown;
It seems but yesterday those downcast eyes
Were wont with looks of love to meet mine own.

I left her in a quiet country home,
Free from the taint of fashionable life—
A simple, truthful, simple-hearted girl,
Her promise of a loving, faithful wife.

A soldier's duty called me to the field—
For three long years war kept me from her side;
But ere we parted, clinging to my heart,
She told her love, and vowed to be my bride.

Through all the hardships of a long campaign
I cherished as my life that parting vow;
I little thought that, when we met again,
My love would greet me as she greets me now.

Alas! I find that beauty such as hers
Ambitious parents know could well be sold.
What was our love to them? An honest heart
Weighed a mere trifle when compared with gold.

She yielded to her mother's hard command—
Those charms have found the noble price they sought;
An aged lord with title-deeds and wealth,
Her beauty—not her loving heart—has bought.

In vain she coldly tries to shun my gaze;
I know she loves me still, although we part.
Poor girl! a coronet will scarce repay
The life-long sorrow of a broken heart.

Alas! the world of fashion oft can tell
Of perjured vows and honest love denied,
Of youth and beauty tied to feeble age,
To gratify a parent's selfish pride.

Matty and Maggy; Or Self and Self-Improvement.

A TALE OF ULSTER.

BY FRANCIS DAVIS, "THE BELFAST MAN."

CHAPTER V.

Four Summers and nigh as many Winters have unedged the memory of the events related in our last; and we could once more in the presence of Maggy M'Blain! But, is this the Maggy of our opening chapter? Truly it is, and truly it is not!

Maggy is a very altered girl. Maggy M'Blain is a lady!—a lady in the purest, in the noblest acceptation of the term. She is twenty years of age; she is a scholar; she is a child of genius—a poetess—an authoress the gifted authoress of a novel, exhibiting profound thought, exciting interest, and noble simplicity of recital. She is the authoress, besides, of a little volume of poetry—a sacred gush of as sacred song—purer than which never issued from human pen.

Maggy M'Blain is something, indeed, for a father—for a country to be proud of. But the country, indeed, knows little about her. Her father does, and the Rev. Mr. Montgomery does: for they know what her pen has accomplished; but the country does not.

It is quite true that the prose and poetic writings of "Harriet Heathbell" have made into the sanctum of every reader of cultivated taste, as well in the sister country as in this; but who knows anything further of Harriet Heathbell? No one beyond the two already mentioned; saving, mayhap, that reverence may have communicated the little secret to his worthy lady in some moment of tender abandonment; for ladies will wonder and inquire, and lords will assist—have assisted from Adam down, and borne the consequences of assisting—at such requisites.

Eh, well! and, perhaps, it is well that we are as we are. It is truly well that we are not worse than we are. Let us endeavor to prevent ourselves becoming so.

But how has this great change in Maggy M'Blain been accomplished? You shall hear. God provided the living material with power, and the living material made use of that power to improve itself—to develope what else God has given. Go, thou, reader, however humble thou mayest be, and do likewise; or most assuredly a day shall come when thou shalt answer as to the why and wherefore thou didst bury the the talent of thy Maker, instead of using it, and the good of those for whom it was given.

There is no gift or grace bestowed upon man, or upon women either, for merely individual advantage; not even the expression of a glance, the color of a cheek, or the mould of a feature. Each and all have a sphere of action or of influence in promoting love, delight, instruction, benevolence, usefulness, and moral beauty throughout our terrestrial economy. What a pity we seem to know so little of it, or, at least, to think of it so seldom. Even our deformities, physical or moral, are pregnant with a wholesome influence, extending far beyond the precinct of any individualism, or any imitation thereof, causing us frequently to wonder and exclaim—What, after all, may we safely dare to denominate really and indisputably evil.'

Maggy M'Blain had early given proofs not only of being of a thoughtful or studious nature, but of being possessed of a deeply sensitive heart. Her most intimate acquaintances, nevertheless, were not disposed to give her credit for feelings which, however intense they might be on occasions, were likely to injure either herself or others by the permanence of their character. If anger or sorrow to-day, it was to be love and joy to-morrow. Her's appeared to be a spirit extremes deep in its wail as the thundering waterfalls of her native river, or, in her joy and girlish amusement, lightly melodious, playful, and passing as the breezes that dipped in them. This opinion changed.

After her sister Matty became fully convinced of the death of Witherow Cameron, there was exhibited an entirely different phase in the character of Maggy—a capacity for concentrating every power and feeling of her soul to a given point, and of fixing them there immutably.

She had always loved her sister Matty, notwithstanding the somewhat unlovable nature of that damsel; but now she seemed to love her more than ever. She could scarcely endure her for a moment out of her presence. Indeed, her sympathy for Matilda's sorrow was of an extraordinary character, when it is considered that said sorrow did not at any time appear to be charged with deadly consequence. However this be, Maggy, for several weeks after the occurrence, spent her days among stolen tears or in silent communings with her sisters countenance, and her nights in sleeplessness; or, if she dozed, hysterical sobbings, frequently rendered terrifying to her father from their combination with other and still more malevolent symptoms of a permanent organic affection. Maggy had said was dying of, but it could do nothing. Her case was pronounced to be disease of the heart, in its most hopeless form.

This passed away, however. Maggy regained her healthy, but the light melody of the girlish heart did not return with it.—She now loved to be alone; and owing, probably, that her sister was no longer in danger, she sought her society as seldom as possible.

Out among the hills, gazing upon the heavens; by the sea-side, rambling the cliff and trenches of the country, or seated on the banks of Glenard, her self-fanted in a minute upon her knees; or, in her father's cottage, at her spinning wheel, lace-cushion, sewing, or knitting, combre and silent as her own shadow, might have been seen poor little Maggy for many months after her sister had grown hale and hearty.

REAL AND IDEAL.

Madeline York, and I, Sarah Nelson, were cousins. Madeline, as her name indicated, was romantic; and I, as mine indicates, was not. We were school-mates and room-mates, and the best of friends during the three "finishing" years we spent in Madam Sharpeyes' fashionable seminary. Oh! those three years! the many tears poor little Maddy's brown eyes shed during that period! She did not love to study very well, poor little thing, and she did love to read novels, which were the forbidden fruit of Madam Sharpeyes' domains. And this often brought her to grief.

But worse than all, she was fond of beaux and flirtation, and the beaux were fond of her—as they are apt to be of lively, pretty-faced girls. There was a college for young men within a stone's throw of our seminary, and, strange to say, in spite of Madam Sharpeyes and her well-trained "assistants," Maddy was on "nodding" terms with an alarming number of young collegians. And it often happened, when on rare occasions we were permitted to attend evening lectures, with the understanding that we "went down in little squads, and came back in little squads," that Maddy's "little squad" consisted of but two, and the second party was not a school-mate.

Of course this could not always escape detection, and Maddy had to be lectured and threatened with expulsion, and be "neared" and wearied into penitence, which never lasted longer than until the next opportunity presented itself. Now, don't think I am upholding Madeline's disobedience—I am sure she was a very naughty girl, and entreat all young ladies to avoid her example. I had the reputation of being a good scholar and a very decorous young lady in general. And the teachers often wondered that Miss York could be so unruly with Miss Nelson for a roommate. But as it is all gone by now, I will confidentially tell you that I helped Maddy in all her capers, and was quite half as bad myself, only I conducted affairs with caution and strategy.

Well, we got through the three years and came out "finished," could chatter French and sputter German, and—dance the cancan, or something like it, besides knowing a great deal. And Madeline was to go home to her father and mother, and I, having no father and mother since my recollection, was to go with her.

But just then, Aunt Sarah, both aunt and god-mother, wrote an urgent invitation for us to come down to the farm for a visit before going home. It was our last chance, we thought, before plunging into city life, so we went. And Aunt Sarah received us both with open arms. She was my aunt but not Maddie's, though she always called her so, and I believe to this day that aunt loved her better than she did me. She was such a little doll of a thing, and I was so very practical.

Somebody came in as we were sitting down to tea—a brown-faced, handsome young man, carrying a pail, and bowed very gracefully. And then he washed his brown hands and joined us at the table.

My new-found cousin proved quite an agreeable young gentleman; and to Maddy he was all the country Adonises and heroes of the countless novels she had read consolidated into one, and I knew her fate was settled. She was a romantic little thing, as I have intimated, had great faith in "affinities," and believed in "love in a cottage," and all that sort.

Well, so do I, if the cottage is paid for, and isn't mortgaged. But debts, and poverty, and drudgery, and misery, somehow, always gets the upper hand of love when the cottage is rented or mortgaged; and it comes down to "love in a hut," minus the love. So I told Madeline when she confided John's proposal to me.

"O, you mercenary creature!" she cried indignantly. "You are just like Lady Arethusa, who refused Lionel because he was poor. And he proved to be Lord Dunlap afterward, and then wasn't she sorry."

"But John won't prove to be any lord," I answered. "He will be John to the end of the chapter. And he is poor as Job's turkey, and rents part of Uncle William's farm, and always will be poor if he marries you now. Wait two or three years, and then he will be started, and it will do. But you will be wild to think of it yet."

However, my warning fell on deaf ears; she accepted John that evening, and set the wedding day in the autumn, with consent of "pa and ma." She told me of it in our room as we were preparing for bed. She had rolled her black hair in curl-papers, and was giving the last one a good good-night twist.

"Shall you curl your hair when you are Mrs. John, and mistress of a cottage?" I asked as I watched her.

She looked at me comically.

"What a question! of course I shall,—John says he likes to see me in curl papers, I look so jaunty."

I smiled silently thinking that John's approval might not be all that was needed. The next morning we saw John from our window, bringing a foaming pail of milk in each hand. "It looks just like pictures I have seen," Madeline cried, admiringly.—"Ah, Sarah! you can't see that after you go home, and just think! I shall see it every morning."

"Does John own a cow?" I asked quietly; but Madeline deigned no reply.

It was a very warm July day, and we took our sewing, after breakfast, and went down in the orchard. "Isn't this delightful?" said Maddy, lolling back on the grass. "Just see that article above us, the beauty. Oh! this blessed country life."

"How about the baking and churning, that aunt is doing this forenoon. I wonder if you would enjoy that as well?" I asked. But she was singing

"Up in the morning early,
Just at the break of day,
Straining the milk in the dairy,
Turning the cows away."

and didn't seem to hear my question.

After supper we went with John to hunt eggs. Maddy found a brimming nest-full, and was in ecstacies. "What a useful animal the hen is!" she cried, to which I responded laconically, "Fowl, you mean," and John laughed till he cried.

The next morning Madeline rose an hour earlier than usual; and I could not imagine what was the matter, till I found her in the pantry, covered with flour, under Aunt Sarah's guidance she was making biscuit for breakfast. She came out looking very rueful, and declared that 'cooking was a delightful occupation,' with a long glance at Johnjand a distant toss at me.

The next day we went home. "Pa and ma" objected to Madeline's marriage at first, but she painted the future in such glowing colors, and cried and pleaded, that she overlooked all lacks, and she was married in the fall.

Although Uncle Yorke was a well-to-do man, I could not be [illegible] as he had two young daughters of his own just approaching womanhood. She became a teacher in a distant city, and did not see Cousin Madeline for six years. Then I surprised her one summer day, or rather they said was Madeline. She lived in the same little house John rented six years before.—He had intended to build the next year; but the baby came, and Maddy was ailing all summer, and after having paid for help and doctor bills, it became impossible. He had never got ahead since; for there was another child now, and crops were poor, and he couldn't even finish off the little house they rented. This I found out little by little.

"Where are your cows, Maddy?" I asked, touching her plain bands of hair.

"Oh! dear," she laughed a little nervously, "I gave them up long ago. I used to be so tired at night I could not roll them up, even once a week, as I used to. And so I got in the habit of wearing it plain, and did not go back to curls."

John brought in the milk just then. "We have just bought two good cows," Maddy said; "we have had none for the past year now. These are good cows, but you have no idea what a work it is to take care of the milk. And these warm days my churning is dreadful hard."

I heard the cackling of hens that afternoon; and an old memory made me smile. "Do you still think the hen as useful an animal as ever?" I asked mischievously.

Madeline laughed in concert with John, but answered—"No indeed. They eat almost as much as they are worth, and then they pick all my currants, and scratch my flower-beds till they are spoiled. I tell John they are perfect pests."

We walked to the orchard one afternoon. "Do you lie out here in the shady nooks, Maddy?" I asked.

"No, indeed; I seldom get time to even walk here. It takes so much time to do the cooking for my family and all the farm help. It is one woman's work to feed those hungry men." We heard the baby crying and went back to the house.

Another thing, the worst of all it seemed to me, that I noticed, was John's indifference. They were so thoughtless of one another. That seemed to me their own fault. Trials and troubles should draw man and wife nearer, instead of dividing them. But the latter is so often the case. I have been wondering if my story has a moral. I do not think it has. I surely hope none will think it a warning against farmers or farming. It is simply a story of a romantic girl, who imagined that all that was written upon country life was true, and so plunged blindly on and found her dreams of "love in a cottage" to be just existence in a hut. And this is all.

Diseases induced by Tobacco.

A writer in the Spectator thinks tobacco has a property belonging to very few substances, which makes its use exceptionally dangerous—the property, when administered in an overdose, of effecting some permanent change probably in the spinal chord, which subdues the victim for ever after habit to injury from the smallest dose. Cases are quoted from Dr. Druben's work on tobacco. Mr. T., a lawyer, 30 years of age, of athletic frame, for five years had shown symptoms of a spinal affection, which had resisted all remedies. On the recommendation of Dr. Druben he gave up the use of tobacco, in which he had indulged to excess. The result was that "all the symptoms disappeared, as if by enchantment, and at the end of one month the cure was complete." One day, dining with the doctor, he indulged himself, contrary to the earnest remonstrance of the former, in a cigar. No sooner had he finished the second one than he felt that all his old sensations had returned. Warned by this decisive intimation, the gentleman henceforth entirely gave up his cigar, took tonics for a month, and has ever since enjoyed excellent health.

The second case was that of a person who felt his energies declining, lost his appetite, and only found comfort in smoking very strong cigars. He complained of acute pain in the region of his stomach every afternoon which only ceased at night; trembling of the limbs, palpitation and sometimes sickness. On his relinquishing the use of tobacco for one month, all the symptoms disappeared; but preferring the pleasure from tobacco to health, he resumed its use, and had in return a renewal of all his pains.

In the third case, the patient, aged 45 years, extremely sober and very regular in all his habits, was troubled by the premonitory symptoms of melancholy mania. He was perfectly aware of his hallucinations, but could not escape them. After two or three weeks medical treatment, during which he had no desire to use tobacco, these symptoms passed away, but they returned as soon as he resumed his cigar. Admonished by this experience, he renounced tobacco entirely and from that day has had no recurrence of the symptoms.

Other cases of a similar character are brought under the notice of physicians. The most determined devotee of tobacco, who takes an overdose, or uses a much larger quantity than usual, will suffer more or less severely, and not only at the time, but at intervals afterward.

The Way into a Woman's Heart.

A woman is a woman all over the world, whether she speaks Gaelic, French, Indian, or Chinese. There are various entrances to her heart, and if you have experience you have got a compass which will enable you to steer through one or the other of them into the inner harbour of it. Now our minister used to say that Eve in Hebrew meant talk, for Providence gave her the powers of elucidation on purpose to take charge of that department. Check, then, you see, is natural to them, talk to them therefore, as they like, and they will soon like to talk to you. If a woman were to put a Bramah lock on her heart, a skilful man would find his way into it, if he wanted to, I know.—That contrivance is set to a particular word; find the letters that compose it, and it opens at once. The moment I heard the Gaelic, I knew I had discovered the cypher—I tried it and succeeded. Tell you what, pilot, love and skull laugh at locks; for those that can't be opened can be picked. The mechanism of the human heart, when you thoroughly understand it, is like all other works of nature, very beautiful, very wonderful, but very simple. When it does not work well the fault is not in the machinery, but in the management.—Sam Slick.

Local and General.

INTELLIGENCE.

[illegible] ance in the profane, as vice—in a Mason [illegible] He remarked most truly. For the common street drunkard there may be a charitable palliation found, perhaps, in the circumstances of his education and the conditions of his surrounding life. He may be illiterate and unlettered in the common courtesies and social conduct of life. He may have been reared in a den of vice, and educated in the midst of debaucheries and drunkenness, and know no better life! But the Mason has no such excuse to palliate the censure of the virtuous. He is born in [illegible] surrounded by light and knowledge, and can [illegible] call his brother; and supported in well doing by [illegible] They guide his footsteps to a fountain of purity, and open before his eyes a halo of moral light. A thousand influences are brought to bear upon his conduct; a thousand [illegible] and in spite of all these he fall, it is like an angel of heaven, from pure and everlasting light into moral darkness and degradation, too great to mingle with the dust and ashes in which he prostrate.

WE WERE THINKING

Of the absurdity of many of the comparisons and figures found in poetry. For instance:

"Ah, I feel most happy like a big sunflower
That bends and bleats in the breeze."

What wonderful flora to show that the life of a big sunflower is not one of supreme wretchedness and woe? Admitting that happiness in [illegible] the color of a sunflower, is a big sunflower any more happy than a little one? We think not. As far as our own observations extend, the big sunflowers look much the more sorely of the two, and sensitive is not usually associated with the sunward tops.

We are told that this big sunflower—emblem of perfect and unalloyed bliss—"bends and blows in the breezes." If it [illegible] rather than the following

"And my heart's just as light as the wind that blows
And scatters the leaves of the trees."

There it is again: If anything is happy it must seem blow. We are a little suspicious of happiness that requires to be trumpeted in this manner.

"Come where my love lies dreaming."

A. Ward used to say to Shakspeare, he didn't think it would be right. He evidently misapprehended the writer's meaning. We can feel nothing but the utmost aversion for one who lies dreaming. What credit could she have for veracity in her waking hours?

Even Byron could write some absurd things. For instance, in [illegible] Thomas Moore:

"My boat is on the shore,
And my bark is on the sea."

Of what use is a boat on the shore, unless it is a stone boat? Queer way to announce that he had a bad cough by saying "my bark is on the sea." Why didn't he stay at home, and bark it out on dry land?

"Roll on, silver moon, guide the traveller on his way,
While the nightingale's song is in tune."

If the nightingale's song was out of tune, what then? Would the moon be justified in ceasing to roll on, leaving the confiding traveller or courier on his way with a lantern? No conscientious or reasonable moon would be guilty of such a thing.

"For never, never more will my true love
I'll stray
By the sweet silver light of the moon."

This a plain invitation that he has no further use for moonlight nights, and intends in the future to walk his girl in the dark. As they had evidently "strayed" in the moonlight, perhaps they had better try daylight for their rambles.

As a specimen of happy conclusion, we append the following in conclusion:

"My love is a rhinoceros,
A hump-backed camomile;
[illegible]
[illegible]

LONG-LIVED MEN.

Hufeland, the physiologist, tells us follows how the man who is likely to live long is characterized;

He has a proper and well proportioned stature, without, however, being too tall.—He is rather of the middle size and somewhat thick set. His complexion is not too florid; at any rate too much ruddiness in youth is seldom a sign of longevity. His hair approaches rather to the fair than to the black. His head is not too [illegible] skin is strong but not rough; he has large veins in the extremities; his shoulders [illegible] but rather the flat [illegible] not too long; his abdomen does not project; his hands are large but not deeply cleft; his foot is rather thick than long, and his

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1870.

THE GODLESS SCHOOL SYSTEM.

The good people of the United States are now having a lively time in the matter of religion or no religion in the public schools. The Roman Catholic portion of the Republic are agitating for schools for themselves, where religion can be taught in their way, and by their teachers. They are about to have a separate school controversy, and it remains to be seen how far the people of the United States will accede to their demands.

As this matter is settled by law in Canada, and hence not likely to come up again, at least for some time, we can afford to watch, quietly, the movements of the parties to the controversy on the other side of the line.

The careful observer, as he takes his notes on the state of religion in the schools of a country, will be able to satisfy himself as to the religious or the godless state of the schools, and as to which schools—separate or common—deserve either the one appelative or the other, and from their observations will they draw their conclusions. It is true, that what one calls religion another designates mockery, idolatry or hypocrisy. If the Roman Catholic thinks Protestantism no religion, wherever it is taught, he will assert the school a godless school. If Protestants think Catholicism impiety, they will believe that where Catholicism is taught, impiety, which is as bad as infidelity, is taught, and they will believe that those who attend such schools would be better, if that religion were not taught.

If these two systems could be got to work together on a basis, as far as held in common, then something might be done to teach the leading doctrines of the christian religion, but until they are brought to this, neither party can trust the other in matters of faith.

Now, they both believe in the existence of a God, of a Saviour, of a Holy Spirit. They both believe nine out of the ten commandments, at least. They both believe in the morality springing out of these nine commandments. We need not go on to enumerate more points of agreement, but we do say that if they would agree to have these things promulgated by the teachers, then there would be more amicableness in matters of common school education. Since they cannot agree, and are not likely to agree until the happy time when the lion shall lie down with the lamb, the best thing they can do is agree to differ, and make the best of their circumstances in a mixed community, so as, if possible, to live at peace with all men.

The agitation in the United States, however, will work for good to Canada. The bitterness that ensues will tend to produce a feeling other than kindness for the Fenian element across the border. Our cousins will never submit to anything like our separate school law, just or unjust. They legislate on more general terms than we have been accustomed to in Canada.

Come to the Right Mind at last.

The Midland Railway Company has reduced the lumber tariff. Lumber from Lindsay is now $1.50 per M.; from Peterboro' to Port Hope, now $1.40 per M.—These are movements in the right direction, but as far as Peterboro' is concerned they come too late. The cutting of 30,000,000 feet of lumber is now lost to Peterborough. Messrs. Ludgate & Co., and Campbell & Co., are now at Harwood, and their lumber goes to Cobourg. The pay of the men is not spent in Peterboro'.—The Midland Railway Company has lost the amount of freight of 20,000,000 feet, or about $30,000 last year, which, but for their narrow, unwise policy would now be in their coffers. The fact is, Peterboro built the branch to Millbrook, not a cent was spent in the branch by the contractors or builders of it, out of their own pockets; and ever since that branch was built the town and county of Peterboro has been at the mercy of the company. By throwing off the Cobourg people, we became more dependent, and finally, when in their power to do so, they compelled two of the largest mill owners to remove from amongst us.—We pointed out the result then, but to no effect. Our town contemporary did all that could be done to aid in ruining us, by supporting the insane policy of the Company. At last, however, it is seen that such work won't pay, and the tariff is reduced. If this had been done two years ago, the Harwood mills would be here now. $300 a day of wages would be paid and spent here. The Midland Railway Company would be pocketing $20,000 a year more than they now do. All who predicted this were enemies to the town, to the county, and to the Railway Company of course, but facts are stubborn things; now our predictions are fulfilled, let us hope that the past will afford some instruction for future action.

The Company are obliging enough in what they do. We hear no complaints against the managements of the road, &c., but the people of Peterboro complain that the town has suffered through the selfish policy of the company, and more, through unwise advice from those who ought to be friends to Peterboro interests.

The report of the company shows a large expenditure of $37,536.78 in 1869, but all of this was spent on the Lindsay road, none of it was spent to extend north of us, nor out of us, while Belleville is threatening to come right to our doors and take away our trade.

The people of Ottawa are [illegible] when they re[illegible] Coburg road. [illegible] entire [illegible] the people [illegible] When [illegible] people of [illegible] look after their own interests, and [illegible] others!

RED RIVER.

It is now reported that matters are quieting down in the North West. Riel is completely in the hands of the Clergy, and it is hinted that the whole was got up so as to threaten Ottawa enough in order that Mr. MacDougall is to be completely dropped, and a French Canadian sent as first Lieut.-Governor. At any rate the breach is growing between Mr. MacDougall and his late colleagues. A few days will show us the exact state of affairs, as the whole will be sifted as soon as the House meets. Dr. Schultz, who was in confinement at Fort Garry has made his escape. Cartier and Langevin are complicated in secretly urging the insurgents to rebellion so as to secure the country for the French and French half breeds. The whole thing, however, has been mismanaged. John A. & Co. have shown themselves unfit for their position. Who knows but that John A. was in his old humor while poor Willie was in Pembina, and even on his return to Ottawa. A kind of provisional parliament of 20 half breeds and 20 English and Scotch men have been chosen to manage affairs in the meantime. Good may yet come out of evil. If weak-kneed Reformers will take a lesson from Mr. McDougall and avoid all combinations, the lesson and its expenses will not be in vain.

A Dash for Catholic Support.

In the last Review we have a bold stroke to win the support of our Catholic fellow citizens, even at the cost of truth. A correspondent remarks, the Montreal Witness has, all along, been the steady friend of Father Chiniquy, even in adversity, as well as in prosperity, and the thrust at the Witness is only a bait to catch Catholic sympathy. Surely they will be able to see it in this light too. But the writer, who extends half hours by falsely putting one before half, could do a little fibbing against the Witness. But really, fellow Catholic countrymen, some men can make a bold bid in the public, and in private call their employes and your co-religionists dogs, with a hard adjective before it, at least so say they who profess to be in other's secrets. The Montreal Witness may be a naughty paper, and may have written hard things against Roman Catholics, but just turn to the Review immediately after the election, in which Col. Haultain defeated Mr. Peaty, and read as hard things as ever appeared in any paper.

SALT.

We notice in the Ontario Gazette, that the Peterboro' Salt Company has been incorporated, and we learn that the Company have so far advanced as to have erected the Derrick, and have a steam engine and the boring apparatus on the ground, viz. E½ 29 in 11th con. of Otonabee. They intend to commence boring next week. At a meeting of the Directors to day, Mr. Calcutt was elected President, and G. Burnham Secy. and Treasurer. A successful enterprise of this kind would be of immense advantage to the commerce of our Town, the Salt Works being within two miles of us.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening. All the members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications were read from James Connell, praying to be remunerated for damage and loss sustained by the overflowing of his shop and cellar, by the waters from the adjacent creek. From Mr. F. McAuliffe for same, and setting forth that the damage was caused by the bridge not being of capacity to permit all the water to pass through. These were referred to the Street and Bridge Committee, to report at next meeting.

The report of the Auditors was submitted and received, and ordered to be published in Abstract.

A By-law was passed, appointing D. McDonald Esq., Inspector of Licenses, and also fixing the amount to be paid for shop and tavern Licenses at $40 per annum.

Messrs. Bennett, Rogers and Calcutt, were appointed Street and Bridge Committee.

The Council adjourned to the first Monday of March.

A Sudden Death.

It becomes our painful duty to record to-day in another column, the decease of Mr. James Grant, of Smith. Mr. Grant arose on Friday morning in as good health as he had been for twelve months. Shortly after, and before being fully dressed, he began to vomit blood, this continued for about ten minutes only, until Mr. Grant expired. His decease was very unexpected; as for the past year he has enjoyed better health than usual, and was able to attend to all his business. On the morning of his death, he was preparing to come to Town with a load of pease. Truly may we say that in the midst of life we are in death. And this affords a solemn warning. Be ye ready. Mr. Grant leaves a wife and one child, to mourn their bereavement.—His remains were followed to their last resting place on Sunday, by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances. He was just in his 36th year.

The Commissioners of Crown Lands has given notice that lots 16 to 30 inclusive, in the 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th concessions of the Township of Anson (being the north-west corner of the said township) comprising on area of 12 square miles, will be offered for sale, as a timber limit, by public auction, at Peterborough, the 15th instant, at an upset price of $60 per square mile.

Co-PARTNERSHIPS.—There have all to be registered now, by Act of the Legislature. [illegible] Mr. Ro[illegible] Gr[illegible] hors[illegible] Co.

The social for the Protestant Home will take place on Friday evening, 14th inst. Tea from half-past six to eight o'clock, after which there will be singing and reading by various persons.

Parliament.—We are not aware that the Members of Parliament for the County have received a very large supply of Alphabets for the Bunk, but a direct application would satisfy any enquirer.

[illegible] this opportunity of stating that we believe our representatives have [illegible] of establishing an institution for the education of our young men in elocution and oratory, until after the approaching session of the Dominion Parliament at least.

We have good authority for stating that Mr. Carnegie has not resigned his seat in the Ontario Legislature. Our informant says he is only acting as temporary Editor of our Town contemporary, and that we may expect some new developments soon.

We are requested to announce that the Teachers' class under J. B. Dixon, M. A., will meet in the Union School, on Saturday next, at 10.30 a. m., when all those desirous of becoming permanent members are requested to attend.

The Canadian Illustrated News comes to us very much improved. The letter print is excellent, and the leggotypes very much improved. If Mr. Desbarats, the enterprising publisher, receives proper encouragement, Canada will be able to boast of at least one illustrated family newspaper. It is $4 a year.

There was a report last week that Pio Nono was dead. It is not so, he still lives, and directs affairs at Rome. The English people are anxious that their prelate should be the next Pope—and what if he did, did not a Beaket oppose a King, and so would Archbishop Manning, if a Pope oppose England, for sake of the Church.

A Fatalism Bridegroom.—A young man, a carriage maker of Cobourgh, lately wooed and won the consent of a young lady, daughter of a farmer of Nichol. The day was appointed for the consummation of their highest wishes. The minister and friends were invited and present, but the bridegroom never appeared. Is not this another warning to the fair, of all false young men to beware.

Births, deaths and marriages have still to be registered with the Clerk of each municipality, the only difference in the law is that there is now no fee to be paid for so doing, and forms have to be furnished to ministers and others who have to report, and these are kept by them, and afterwards certified to, and furnished to the registrar.

Presbyterian.—The anniversary of the Canada Presbyterian Church, Mr. Rogers' will be held on Sunday and Monday, 13th and 14th inst. The Revd. Mr. Smith of Galt, of whom so much has been read in connection with a late revival at Galt, will preach, and the Rev. Mr. Mitchell of Millbrook, will also be present and take part in the exercises. All denominations should hear these men.

The Anniversary Services of the Wesleyan Missions, are also to be held next Sunday and Monday. The Rev. L. Taylor, D. D. of Toronto, will preach in the Wesleyan Church in the morning of the Sabbath, and the Rev. S. S. Nelles, D. D. of Cobourg, in the evening. Those gentlemen will also address the meeting on Monday evening. We regret that the above services are arranged to be held on the same days. This we think has been an oversight. We are sure it would not otherwise have occurred, as both congregations are in perfect harmony.

Look Out.—Dame rumor says that John Sandfield McDonald intends dissolving the present parliament before another session. He thinks that his chances are better with the Country now than they would be after another session of mismanagement. He will find himself greatly mistaken. But the Grits should be on the alert, and not be caught napping.—The election will come a year sooner than they are aware of.

We are glad to learn that the Dominion directory proposed by Mr. Lovell, of Montreal, is to be completed. Owing to the [illegible] enterprise, it was thought it would have to be given up, but the enterprising publisher has decided to publish one for the Dominion, and one for each of the Provinces. They will be published in the fall of 1870, and will be corrected up to the time of going to press. We hope he may receive the remuneration such a work and labour deserves.

On Friday morning last, as a boy was pumping water for a horse belonging to the proprietor of this paper, the animal got away, and began playing. Getting on the street some boys attempted to turn him into his own yard, but instead he turned along the side of the Otonabee Mills pond, and a man coming down held up a basket to stop him, but turning aside he took the ice near the head gates, and was almost momentarily swept under, owing to the strong current caused by the mills being in operation at the time.

The Curse of Rum.—Another murder resulting from the use of rum took place recently in the liquor saloon of a New York Alderman, Anthony Miller, 398 Grand Street.

LAKEFIELD CORRESPONDENCE

PRESENTATION SOIREE.

[illegible] was held on the [illegible] by the [illegible] their kind [illegible] their [illegible] by the [illegible] of [illegible] thirty remaining after supplying between three and four hundred visitors. Tea was served in the carriage factory, in the same substantial manner which has, at all times, characterized the ladies of this vicinity.—About six, the appetites of the hungry ones were somewhat appeased. Then, all returned to the Church, which was thronged.

The number of speakers was somewhat limited, but to supply the deficiency, if any existed, ample provision was made in the soul-stirring music, by the choir from Warsaw, under the able leadership of Mr. Choate.

The first speaker was the Rev. Mr. Curtice, who gave a very earnest address, remarking that religion was making rapid progress, by various channels.

The second was T. M. Fairbairn, Esq. In the course of his remarks he somewhat refuted the former speaker's assertion, by stating that the world was growing worse; that religion was getting more formal; that people wore the garb of religion, because it was respectable, and in some cases influential; that there was less of that genuine, undefiled, soul-stirring, spiritual religion, that formerly existed. He also dwelt at considerable length on the coming of Christ in a bodily form, at his second appearance.

The Rev. Mr. Roger, whose old familiar voice again rang sweetly in the ears of the Lakefield people, gave a very impressive discourse on prayer. He also supported the first speaker in his remarks, quoting, as proof, the testimony of a gentleman who has a thorough knowledge of the state of religion in the British army, that it is much on the increase for the better.

After the usual vote of thanks, a Congregational Meeting and Soiree was announced to be held next day. The visitors seemed to enjoy themselves.

A heart-rendering occurrence took place on Thursday last, which resulted in the death of a little boy, about five years of age, youngest son of Mr. Josiah Hunter, Smith. It appears the mother was carrying an earthen tea-pot full of tea, the little fellow jostled against her, causing the bottom to fall out of the vessel, scattering the contents about the breast and stomach. The little sufferer only survived a short time.

The remains of Mrs. Quinn were conveyed to their last resting place, Lakefield Cemetery, on Monday last.

Penny Reading in Norwood.—The first of a contemplated series of Penny Readings, took place in the Town Hall, Norwood, on the 27th instant. The Programme consisted of Dialogues, Readings, Recitations and Songs. The actors were, Messrs. Bissett, Hamilton, Munson, Dixon and others. There was a bumper house, and the performance went off with eclat.—Com.

North Monaghan Council.

December 28, 1869.

The Council met at 10 o'clock. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Minutes of last meeting read and signed.

The committee appointed to examine the bridge at the south end of lot No. 9, in the 13th concession, made their report and recommended that an amount be granted to set bents upright, and to make any other repairs that may be deemed necessary.

SHEEP KILLED BY DOGS.

Mr. Chamberlain informed the Council that he had four sheep killed by dogs in September, which were valued at $3 each, and asked compensation for them.—order given $6. Mr. Edwards, that he had two lambs killed on the night of the 17th September, valued at $6, less 50 cents for skins—order for $5.70.

On application of E. Burnham, Esq., $4 was granted to Mrs. Glynn as charity.

The sum of $34.63, interest on taxes against lot 14, in the 11th concession, was remitted to Mr. Bradburn.

Orders for salaries, &c., were left with the Clerk for distribution.

Council adjourned sine die.

January 17th, 1870.

The members of the new Council, met in conformity with the statute, when J. W. Gilmour, Esq., and Councillors Tully, Laing, Birney and Robson, made and subscribed to the necessary declarations and qualifications of office.

James Edwards and William Coulter, Esqs., were appointed Auditors of Township accounts, and Mr. Wm. Wood, Township Clerk.

An order was given in favor of Richard Waters, for $4, for cleaning and putting up stove pipes in the Town Hall.

The Auditor's second report was received and read.

Council adjourned to the 5th February.

February 5th, 1870.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment. All the members present. The Reeve in the chair. Several applications for office were received.

BY-LAWS.

A By-law appointing the following township officers was passed:—

Mr. Geo. Campbell, Assessor; Mr. Jno. McIntosh, Collector; Mr. John Dobbin, Treasurer; Mr. Joseph Bennett, Inspt. Taverns.

A By-law limiting the number of tavern licences, and charging $20 for a certificate of licence for present year, received two readings.

Mr. Collins produced his papers and vouchers before the Council, wishing for a final settlement. It is necessary here to state that in addition to $318.97, which the auditors reported as due on the Assessment Roll when auditing the township accounts, an additional sum of $22.90 was since found to be due thereon, as stated in their 2nd report of the 15th ult. But Mr. Collins had also made the discovery that the Treasurer had not credited him a certain order, which he gave him, and said that he was prepared to take oath before the Reeve that such was the case. The Treasurer had the order which was duly received, but could remember nothing of the circumstances of which Mr. Collins appeared so positive. The result was that he took Mr. Collins word for it. By this admission, Mr. Collins was entitled to receive $40, the amount of the order, but the sum of $22.90 due, was deducted thereon and entered in favour of the municipality, and the balance $17.10 paid over to him.

SHEEP KILLED BY DOGS.

[illegible] Memorial, [illegible] Lewis Shaw, [illegible] Orders for [illegible] Councillors Birmingham [illegible] were appointed a Committee to examine and report on the amount of Compensation to be awarded on which sheep could be claimed for the several road divisions in the township [illegible] such.

On the motion of Mr. [illegible] Clerk was directed to write to Messrs. Malcolm, Nethercott and W. A. Laing, to ascertain if they have fulfilled their agreement, with respect to opening certain roads for the timber thereon; and if not yet done, to urge their immediate completion, with the view of having same inspected either by a Committee of Council or a Commission.

The Reeve was instructed to procure one barrel of flour as charity for Patrick Keefe.

A communication was received from T. B. Clementi, Esq., P. L. S., stating the terms on which he could furnish a large map of the township, with the park lots and their sub-divisions marked thereon.

The Council adjourned to the 26th inst. at 10 o'clock, a. m., then to meet for the appointment of Path Masters, Pound Keepers and Fence Viewers, and the discharge of other township business.—COM.

The Montreal "Witness" and the "Review."

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—In last week's Review, among editorial items, appears the following:—"The Montreal Witness, &c."

It is a pity to see a person occupying the important position of an editor so ruthlessly attack another and blast his fair fame. What adds to the regret is that the accusations are as false as they are foul.

The Witness has ever been a fast friend to Father Chiniquy, not only when "his star was in the ascendant," but when scarcely a paper in the country would advocate his cause.

The Montreal Witness is one of the last papers in the Dominion to be charged with "being only a fair-weather friend." It has invariably stood nobly forward in every good cause in fair weather and in foul, and had the editor known John Dougall as well as scores in Peterboro do, he would not dared to have uttered so base a calumny. Ignorance can not or should not be urged as a plea for villifying character. Before such a grave accusation is made the proof must surely be at hand, and till it is produced I will not believe the charge. Will the Review please supply it; otherwise I, for one, will believe he has falsely accused his Montreal cotemporary.

Yours, &c.,

A Reader of the "Witness."

Peterboro, 5th Feb., 1870.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I am sorry to trouble you again, but after Mr. Wood's letter of the 3rd inst., I ask a little more indulgence; and as he has spoken so many hard things against me, I feel in duty bound, to myself, and for the credit of my family, to make a reply to some of these and others. I shall leave the public to judge, as I am certain that many of them will not be believed, and I am certain Mr. Wood believes no such things himself as he has mentioned, especially in the sentence in which he refers to speculation; therefore I think he had to resort to bombast, after using all the logic, rhetoric and eloquence he is in possession of. He says in his letter, that I wished to convey the impression that this was his own getting up. I still say the same, and more than that, for after he had made all these different reports to the Council, they (the Council,) directed him to do the very work he had already done; and this the Council or the Clerk will not deny. This is putting the cart before the horse with a vengeance. And the grounds on which I refused to settle with Mr. Wood, was this: I knew the first duty of the Council every year after organizing was to appoint two Auditors; and the law plainly says no member of the Council, no Clerk or Treasurer, that was, or is acting as such, and no one having a contract, or having any employment in the municipality, can be Auditor, much less corrector of the accounts after the Auditors; and I told the Council that the Clerk was disqualified for correcting the accounts if they were wrong, simply because he was Clerk, and if anything was wrong, the Auditors would be the persons to put them right, or else to have it settled by arbitrators. But the Council thought I ought to settle with the Clerk, as they appeared to think he was right. But I well knew from the first that I had paid too much to the Treasurer, and therefore I knew he was wrong. But, sir, they pressed the matter, and at last published it to the world, that I was due the municipality $22,90, and Mr. Wood asserts more than once or twice in his letter that he is prepared to prove it. So on Saturday, the 5th inst., I attended the Council meeting to give him a chance to prove it, and the old adage the proof of the pudding is the eating thereof,—I presented my claim, and after they had gone over the accounts a great many times, and after I was bold enough to tell them that the blind never received their sight without a miracle having been performed, and I expected never would, I told them, I however should not be put off. They must push their claim or pay mine. So the mist cleared away, and the Treasurer paid over the $17,10 claimed by me, after which I was pronounced not only an interpreter of dreams, but also a worker of miracles. Actions speak louder than words. I think this verifies the truth of my statement, and there was not so much bombast after all. I cannot therefore, help believing that the Clerk is sold again. Then Mr. Editor, no one will be more surprised than yourself to see these hard names pronounced on the by Mr. Wood, after all he has done with his pen to exalt me before the public, as a man of ability, as a Councillor, and as Chairman of public meetings &c; and none of your readers will forget that during the canvass of the last general election for the county members, how he exalted me as if he would really put the scarlet robe upon me and the gold chain. But I think the purport of his letter this time, appears to put upon me the purple robe and the crown of thorns, But, sir, to end all disputes in this matter, I shall appeal to the Auditors who are the only proper persons to decide the case, and I ask these gentlemen kindly to give their decision in this matter, and I pledge my word that I will be satisfied with the same. And I am sure that no one will ever dare to say these two gentlemen, Messrs. Edwards and Coulter, are not qualified to discharge this important duty. If the above is complied with, you will be kind enough to publish their verdict, let that be what it may. With regard to the Clerk

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

It has been said by a few unfortunate mortals who have striven in vain to gain position of honor and distinction, that they were not sufficiently appreciated. While such may sometimes be the case, it is generally to be observed that true deserving worth is cordially accepted and honored, whether applied to religion, politics, the arts, or invention. Next to religion, invention or discovery, has the highest position, for it wields a mighty influence; through its channels nations have overleaped, as it by magic, the bounds of its operation, and united by electric wires, can converse together at momentary will.

Indeed, the diversified efforts of mankind in these respects, are a source of admiration and gratitude to the whole human race. In medicine, science has revealed during the last quarter of a century, many hidden truths, which had before been considered to be impenetrable. The malignity of pestilential disease is now in a great measure bereft of its terror and even the "insatiate archer," consumption, is arrested in his deadly march, and oftentimes overthrown. Undoubtedly the great rallying power in the treatment of this and other pulmonary diseases, is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry; and the foregoing allusions are applicable to the memory of its illustrious discoverer. The proof of the efficacy of this great remedy is in its undying popularity. It has stood the test of time, and in fame as a curative of throat and lung complaints has extended to all climes.—Canada Christian Advocate.

At a Public Meeting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly; an immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel complaints, and all other diseases incident to a climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

The Circumcision of Christ, lately called at Rome in an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large assemblies of this nature containing representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be as harmonious and unanimous as the verdict in favor of the Great Dominoness Remedy, for diseases of the lungs, blood, stomach, liver, &c. For sale by all druggists.

Don't Know What to Do. We sometimes hear persons say, 'my horse so sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;' they appear to be ignorant of the fact, that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us that his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell many rapidly and for higher prices. The article is "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy." Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hood &c. is on each package. Dyspepsia is one of the most frequent diseases with which the physician meets; it is found in every country, at every season of the year, and among all classes of society, and in more persons of a maturity of middle age, young persons being as a rule, exempt from it. It usually commences gradually, and in a very insidious manner, producing, more or less, distress, and in many instances rendering life a burden. Dr. J. Briggs' Alleyantor, used according to directions for Dyspepsia, has been proved to be a very superior remedy, and those who use it will not be disappointed in the result. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Dr. J. Briggs' Throat and Lung Healers is pleasant to take and unsurpassed for its efficacy in curing Coughs, Bronchitis, Consumption, &c. Sold by Druggists.

Ayer's Warner.—The great public remedy says now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried, and preeminence (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a pure, harmless, and eminently salutary combination, and if taken in season will invariably cure colds, coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affections. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical.

To those who suffer from Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, &c., try Dr. J. Briggs' Curative. If used liberally as directed, relief is immediate, and cure certain. Sold by Druggists.

Rice on Jamieson, Feb. 20th, 1869.

Mesers. RADCLIFFE & Co. Lowell & Rice:

Gentlemen,—Whilst one of my friend Mr. Napoleon de Blond Plantain (a Belgian proprietor in the Orlando de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tibodeau, who he thought a great deal of in Canada, but the fever defied all of Dr. Tibodeau, Dr. Lemieux, and Dr. Sproule, the boy (14 years old) could not speak, would not take the bowels, and it required a great deal of exercise to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tibodeau declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's advertisements, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; Sixteen with the Pills upon on the Chest, back and wrists; three (of Radway's) Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after breakfast, our desert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of Dr. Radway & Co's preparations.

I remain, gentlemen

Your very obedient servant,

JOAQUIM PIERRE FALCAO, Merchant.

Consumptives, try Dr. J. Briggs' Throat and Lung Healer. It will relieve and cure you.—For all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, nothing can surpass its beneficial effects. Sold by Druggists.

INVERTED TOE-NAIL is a very painful disease, generally the result of wearing tight shoes, and is usually accompanied with more or less inflammation, and, at times, ulceration. The great toe is the one usually attacked. At first, there is only a little uneasiness; which ceases when the shoe or boot is removed from the foot; after a time the part becomes tender or inflamed, and the corner or edge of the nail is found pressing deeply into the flesh, while the whole nail is narrow, and much arched across. Ulceration eventually ensues, proud flesh appears, and the pain becomes very severe. For the sloughing of the proud flesh, healing the ulceration, and eventually curing the toe, use Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative, according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, Broadway, N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Am me! I heed not as the passers-by
Mark my pale cheek and sunken eye;
I feel no joy, as the golden ray
Of the glorious sun lights up the day!

My dear sick friend, to restore to your cheek
Its healthy rose color, Briggs' Lung Healer seek;
Use as directed, and soon you will see,
From Consumption, Bronchitis, you are entirely free.

GREAT SUFFERING.—How many thousand ladies, both young and old, have passed through great suffering from that terrible demon, Neuralgia, some passing a sleepless night tossing about in great agony, but succeed in getting relief after a few hours of misery, only to be renewed again in a short time with the same unrelenting, excruciating pain. Others have endured this terrible torture for weeks, both day and night, until exhausted with such continual suffering, and almost wishing for the angel of death to relieve them; but hope dawns: a cure has been discovered, a rapid and radical cure; Briggs' Allevantor is the remedy; can be tested, free, at No. 6 King St. West, Toronto; is sold by Druggists and Country Merchants everywhere. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors' No. 208 Broadway, New York

NEURALGIA may be distinguished from rheumatism by the intensity of the pain, its short continuance, and its liability to return on the slightest touch; in acute rheumatism there is fever, redness, heat in the part affected, and some swelling, all of which are absent in Neuralgia; in chronic rheumatism the pain is continuous, less severe, and often worse at night. From backache, by the shortness of the paroxysms, the rapidity of its succession, and the frequent convulsive twitchings. To obtain immediate relief, use Dr. J. Briggs' Allevantor according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

For twenty-four years has Dr. Barnes' still Relieved much pain; but thousands suffer still. His skilful hands have eased the twinging pain, Restored the foot to shape and health again. His curative tea thousand have applied, How now pronounce the name of Barnes with pride.

He sent with deep delight, in many a face, That he has proved a blessing to his race! All he says, is but to follow still The course assigned to Providential will; "The laborer is worthy of his hire;" A living price is all he would desire; And all who close to profit by his art, Will find him master over every part.

Briggs' Curative, the only reliable and most efficacious Remedy in the world for the speedy cure of Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, No. 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King Street West Toronto.

Dr. J. Barnes' Allevator, for the cure of Catarrh, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., is unrivalled. In a thorough trial of its virtues, all will acknowledge its superiority. Sold by Druggist.

Dr. Barnes took of every substance known,
That ever healed, or stilled a groan,
And soon composed by skill alone,
His own unrivalled Curative.

The people said, at last was found
A cure for every sore or wound;
They have used it, and are whole and sound,
And all their pain have left them.

Afflicted with corns, bunions, or bruise,
Thousands of sufferers heard the news,
The thing was found that met their views;
They bought and used the Curative.

No sooner was the sore part dressed
The pain was eased that spoilt their rest;
With tears of gratitude they blest
The man who made the Curative.

All signs of soreness soon went by,
Whether in hand, or foot, or eye,
Let every sufferer likewise try
Dr. Barnes' Modern Curative.

Briggs' Curative, the only reliable and most, efficacious Remedy for the cure of Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors. Offices, No. 208 Broadway, New York, and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto Canada.

A CLERGYMAN writing to a friend says, "My voyage to Europe is indefinitely postponed. I have discovered the 'fountain of health' on this side of the Atlantic. Three bottles of the Peruvian Syrup have rescued me from the Stage of the Road Dyspepsia." Dyspeptics should drink from this fountain.

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak of terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW" after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

THE SARSAPARILLA DISTRICT OF YUCATAN.—This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico, and still retain some of its peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co. employ a small force of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with sorrey spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild tangles furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own. [Boston Commercial.

PILLS may be ceased by anything that will irritate the lower bowels, producing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in pe[illegible] ours the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight [illegible], sedentary habits, high living, heating, irritating food, &c. Dr. J. Briggs' Ha[illegible] for excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do and hesitate to recommend it to the highest terms. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

New Method of Washing Clothes

Without Labor.

"THE DOMINION"

Steam Washing Boiler.

THIS Washing Boiler operates upon purely scientific principles. It is self-acting, and dispenses entirely with labor and the wear of clothes. The hot suds and steam, by the action of fire, are driven up through the clothes, poured upon the clothes, and forced through the fabric with astonishing rapidity, cleansing it perfectly without rubbing. It has been thoroughly tested, and pronounced unequalled as a clothes washer by those who have used it. All fabrics, from the finest laces to the best blankets, can be washed perfectly and with ease without the washboard. For flannels it is invaluable, as the rubbing, rolling and pressing process must necessarily full them more or less. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Washing will no longer be a hardship, and washing-day a terror and dread as heretofore. The invention can be used in any boiler, and the low price of the article places it within the reach of every family.

☞ Ladies are requested to give it a trial, and if it don't give satisfaction, to return it.

The Boilers can be had at the stores of THOMAS LAWLIN and JAMES STEVENSON and from the undersigned, who have purchased the right for the County of Peterborough.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy and Conditine Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions case equalizing the circulation of the blood, and preventing the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

THE GREAT FEMALE REMEDY,

JOB MOSES' PERIODICAL PILLS.

THIS well known medicine is no imposition, but a sure and safe remedy for Female Difficulties and Obstructions, from any cause whatever; and although a powerful remedy, it contains nothing hurtful to the constitution.

To Married Ladies it is peculiarly suited. It will, in a short time, bring on the monthly period

THE SWALLOW.

My pretty swallow, wanderer from afar,
Why fly away from me, so ill in fear,
Come quiet settle 'neath my window bar.
And for a time my lonely heart to cheer.

Do not retire, it is my heart imploring,
I am a traveller also, like to thee,
When storms arise, and rain in torrents pouring,
Thou wilt find shelter, and secure wilt be.

Perhaps thy heart, like mine, some loved ones cherish,
Skimming through the air, thy mate to find,
I also wander through the world and perish.
If I compose not my sad troubled mind.

Our destinies alike, then seek my shelter,
For I will ever be a friend to thee,
Quit the busy world, its filthy delts,
And in retirement my companion be.

When pensive sadness clouds thy pretty brow,
We will in harmony commune together,
Return again and comfort me, as now.
Thou art safe here, from all inclement weather.

Thou hast, perhaps, seen trouble, like to me,
Some enemy has driven thee from home,
I, too, have cause from dearest home to flee,
And o'er a naked world in fear to roam.

Then 'neath my window let thy wings repose,
'Tis quiet I am in search of for my health,
On that account this happy spot I choose,
Rather than wander midst the halls of wealth.

Commence thy nest, and if thou wantest wool
To warm thy little ones when brought to life,
I will procure some for my heart is full
Of sympathy with thee in worldly strife.

I have a mother who will care for me,
And keep me warm within the downy cot,
Therefore, I bestow my thought on thee,
Like my fond parent whom I ne'er forgot.

Look from thy nest upon the fertile vale
Of sunny France, delighted to behold,
Thou mayest have hope like me, that yonder dale
Will bring thy young ones happiness oft told.

Not go to me, I'm a wanderer like thee,
And have more enemies my pet, than thou,
Yet I still hope that I shall quiet be,
Although a pang disturbs my breast e'en now.

My country is disturbed—bold tyrants frown
On those who cherish home with deepest love;
If the avenging Angel puts them down,
All's well—if not like thee, I have the Heaven above.

GEO. COVENTRY.

Cobourg, Dec. 14, 1869.

A PRETTY WIDOW.

A widow, plump and gushing,
Is certainly a prize,
I like to see her blushing,
And saying with her eyes,
"Behold my great attraction!—
Of wedlock I have hopes,
And I'll give satisfaction,
Because—I know the ropes!"

ODDS AND ENDS.

A promise is a just debt which should always be paid, for honor and honesty are its security.

Waves that are harmless. The waves of Ladies' handkerchiefs.

What a difference it makes whether you put Dr. before or after a man's name.

'I don't admire ladies' calls,' as the husband said when his wife boxed his ears.

A conscript being told that it was sweet to die for his country, excused himself on the ground that he never did like sweet things.

In describing a new organ, a country editor says, "The swell died away in delicious suffocation, like one singing a sweet song under the bedclothes."

An old bachelor who bears his lonely state with much equanimity, says: It is better to be laughed at for not being married, than being unable to laugh because you are.

'Papa,' said Mr. Brown's youngest son, 'can I go to the circus?' 'No my boy,' affectionately replied Mr. Brown; 'but if you are a good boy I will take you to see your grandmother's grave this afternoon.'

People who are always talking sentiment have usually not very deep feelings; the less water you have in your kettle the sooner it will boil.

Our rainy days are not the only ones for which we should prepare. Our wants are as numerous in sunshine as in gloomy; therefore, frugality is an unfailing friend.

The pleasure we feel in the scene of Nature is at once so lively and so delicate, that it is very difficult to communicate it to the mind of another, though nothing is more generally attempted.

It is the privilege and glory of genius to appropriate to itself whatever is noble and true. The region of thought is thus made a common ground for all, and one master-mind becomes a reservoir for the present and future times.

Passing in huge city to and fro—what mark we? Noise, and motion; earnest faces that glance by us, and are gone, never, perhaps to meet us more. Yet each passing figure of humanity has a spirit, a will, and a purpose, thereby made part of the city's might. In all the seeming confusion—the strange feet that press our path, the strange voices that meet our ear—there is purpose and order. The flow of life in the roaring street may differ each day, yet is, in main amount and character, the same—differing in its parts, but resulting from the will of each.

A newspaper article has been going the rounds of the press, headed, 'Where is your boy at night?' A brilliant wretch suggests the propriety of another article, inquiring, 'Where is the old man at night?'

'John,' said a pious uncle to his nephew, who was paying his first visit to the city, 'John, we're in the habit of saying something before we eat.' 'All right,' said John! 'Go ahead! You can't turn my stomach!'

'Do you call that a veal cutlet?' exclaimed an exasperated guest to a waiter at a hotel; 'Why it's an insult to every true calf in country!' 'I beg your pardon,' replied the alarmed waiter, 'but I didn't mean to insult you!'

'My dear,' inquired a young wife of her husband, on his return from business, 'have you seen the beautiful set of walnut furniture which the Smiths have bought?—'Ahem! no, my love, but I have seen the bill, and it quite satisfies me.'

A man was run over by an ox-cart in Wilmington, Delaware, and for this brought the driver of the team before a justice.—Justice dismissed the case, it being common law that any man slow enough to be run over by an ox-team is too slow to sue.

Allen's Pocket Piece.

In the pocket book of the Hon. Stephen Allen, who was drowned on board the H. Clay, was found a printed slip, apparently cut from a newspaper of which the following is a copy. It is worthy to be engraved on every young man's heart:—

Make few promises.
Always speak the truth.
Never speak evil to any one.
Live up to your engagements.
Be just before you are generous.
Never play at any game of chance.
Drink no intoxicating liquors.
Good character is above all things else.
Keep your own secrets if your have any.
Never borrow if you can possibly help it.
Keep yourself innocent, if you would be happy.
Do not marry until you are able to support a wife.
When you speak to a person, look him in the face.
Make no haste to be rich, if you would prosper.
Ever live (misfortune excepted) within your income.
Save when you are young to spend when you are old.
Avoid temptation, through fear you may not withstand it.
Never run in debt unless you see a way to get out again.
Small and steady gains give competency with a tranquil mind.
Good company and good conversation are the sinews of virtue.
Your character cannot be essentially injured except by your own acts.
If any one speaks evil of you, let your life be so that none will believe him.
When you retire to bed think over what you have been doing during the day.
Never be idle; if your hands cannot be employed usefully, attend to the cultivation of the mind.
Read over the above maxims, carefully and thoughtfully, at least once every week.

HOUSEKEEPING.—The woman who is able to systemize, economize and carry on smoothly the work of an ordinary family, illustrates higher sagacity than is called for by seven-eighths of the tasks done by men. Men take one trade and work at it, a mother's and housekeeper's require a touch from all trades. A man has his work hours and definite tasks, a woman has work at all hours and incessant confusion of tasks. Let any man do a woman's work for a single day—wash and dress the children, having provided the clothes the day before; see that breakfast is under way to suit a fault-finding husband; the dishwater heating, and a luncheon prepared for the school goers; the beds made after proper airing; the systematic sweeping of the house at least once a week, with cakes, and pies, interlaced judiciously, pickles and preserves and cellar stores to be laid in, and not forgotten in their seasons, children's manners to be attended to, company to be entertained, her own person to be tidied up to please his eye, the tired him to be welcomed by the no less tired her, and the home cheerful, the children to be helped about their lessons, reminded not to forget their Sunday School lesson; the shopping and marketing to be done for the household, repairs to be attended to, and matters in general to be kept straight around home. Meanwhile, 'Pope mustn't be troubled or hindred about his work, because his work brings in the money.' but man's work does not tax the head, and heart, and hands, as woman's work does.

WHAT DO YOU READ.

There is nothing that makes so much difference in the out-come of boys and girls as the books they read. Of all the boys and girls that we have known, we never knew one to succeed in life who spent his time when young, in reading exciting stories. We do not say you may not read stories. But we do say, that if you want to be of any use in the world, you ought not to let all your reading be story reading. And what is more, you ought to read nothing but good stories.

But how can we tell whether it is good or not? There are very many books that have a weak moral, or a religious side, that are yet good for nothing. They are too exciting, and breathe a bad air. How shall we know the good ones?

A book that makes us feel brave, strong for our work, is good. If any writer makes us feel, not that we would like to do better, but that we will do better, we may trust such an author. But if a book gives us a feeling that if our life is dull, that we would like to be somewhere else than where God has put us, that book does us harm.

THE POPE VS. SECRET SOCIETIES.—The Pope has issued a bull against the Fenians, in Ireland and America. He denounces them, with Masons and members of other secret societies, beyond the pale of the church. He says their revolutionary designs and secret meetings are dangerous to the peace of society, the welfare of the church, and the personal interests of its members. He expresses the belief that the great body of the Fenians are led away by designing men. The bull has occasioned much excitement in Ireland, and meetings are to be held in Cork and other places to consider the matter.

Success grows out of struggles to overcome difficulties. If there were none, there would be no success. If there were nothing to struggle and compete for, there would be nothing achieved. There is a hill before us, which all active spirits endeavor to mount; they run, they toil, they struggle, they rise. But, lo! there, at the bottom of the hill, remain a host of others, who are satisfied with declaiming against the "evils of competition." As if there were no admixture of good in it, which there unquestionably is.

DIFFICULTY.—What is difficulty? Only a word indicating the degree of strength requisite for accomplishing particular objects a mere notice of the necessity for exertion; a bug-bear to children and fools; only a mere stimulus to men.—Warren.

A DRUNKARD RECLAIMED.—A man in Ohio some years ago was a very hard drinker, but the Sons of Temperance got hold of him, and made a Temperance man of him. He was soon elected to the position of Conductor and served in that capacity several terms. He was always very particular to have a clean white regalia.—Soon after he joined the Division he also joined the Church, and became very zealous in the good work of saving souls, particularly drunkard's. At last he was taken sick, and just before he died some friends who were near his bed-side calling him by name, asked him how it was with him?—His answer was "all correct on the right, all correct on the left," AND THEN DIED.

A MOTHER KILLS ONE OF HER CHILDREN BY RUM.—Friday the 26th of November, a woman in South Yonkers, N. Y. gave her three boys whiskey, which stupified them and on Sunday one of them died.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Family Medicine.

Prepared from extracts of vegetable substances, each of which is universally recognized by everybody as safe and reliable. Yet how even the best of these are changed, and their virtues destroyed, by the combinations which ignorant pretenders are obliged to make in order to obtain a more manageable form than the crude drugs afford, and the more offensive they are to the taste, the more they are disguised, usually, than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it carried them, almost by magic, through a severe course of medicine, with less nausea than is produced by a dose of common Cathartic Pills. Every year it is better known, and the public confidence in it is more firmly established. Every year proves more conclusively its power over the diseases for which it is recommended. Every year we are receiving assurances from druggists and physicians in all parts of the country, that it is far more reliable than any other cathartic they can procure. Every year we are compelled to prepare more and more of it, to supply the wants of those who have used it and cannot do without it. Every year we are manufacturing it more perfectly than before, and making it, as we know, more effectual than ever to cure the complaints it is designed to remove. In short, we spare no pains to make the best Pill possible, and the people have found it out. They know they can rely upon it, and that it is never false through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of its remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cases are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and constitutions in all climates, containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. But, being coated, preserving their virtues in any climate, and purely vegetable, no one should hesitate to take them when they need a cathartic medicine, for no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the vital functions to purify the blood and give it health and vigor. They remove the foul matter which clogs the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by sympathy whatever they derange, which disorganization is the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Loss of Appetite, Jaundice, Biliousness, and Foul Stomach, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Dysentery, or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the morbid matter which causes it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pains in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

HAIR DRESSING,

CAUTION.—All genuine has the name "Peruvian Syrup," (NOT "Peruvian Bark,") blown in the glass. A 32-page pamphlet sent free. J. P. DINSMORE, Proprietor, 35 Dey St., New York. Sold by all Druggists.

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious stimulants exploded. All useless material discarded. The active principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form HABITUAL CONSTIPATION CURED. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL.—Those who have no hair may have it.—Those woo have plenty, may preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HUNT'S KEPHAIR HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry JACOBS' RHEUMATIC LIQUID. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever invented is capable of more extended application. It has hundreds of imitators, but not one RIVAL. Beware of Counterfeits.

THE TRUE THEORY OF PURGATION AIMED TO THE

Liver, Kidneys, Skin, STOMACH & BOWELS.

DR. RADWAY'S PERFECT

PURGATIVE PILLS,

Perfectly Tasteless,

ELEGANTLY COATED.

Dr. Radway has compiled a sum of the most essential discoveries in Physiology, in the combination of vegetable substances, for the purpose of a PURGATIVE APERIENT OR PHYSIC, a LIBERANT, ALTERATIVE PILL that can be taken or administered with Radwayan safety of securing THOROUGH EVACUATION OF ALL DEPRAVED AND DERANGED humors of the human body, and thus safe to use in the most malignant of simple fevers. In cases where the mucous membranes of the internal viscera are suffering from Ulceration, Inflammation, or Irritation

LIVER,

Gastric, Biary, Pancreatic Complaints,

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS

supply the only Vegetable substitute for

CALOMEL or MERCURY.

In RADWAY'S PILLS you have one medicine that will remove quicker, more thorough and better results than will be given in from three or more different prescriptions of the medical practitioner. As a proof of this—You are seized with a chill or attack! Doctor prescribes Jones Pills or Calomel; next comes Dewpit Aloetic Pill or Perrigo to work off the effects of the Blue Pill: this prescribes pectoral to next given, or a gentle aperient, whereas ONE DOSE OF RADWAY'S PILLS will do all the work that the three or more prescriptions are given for, without running any risk from mercurializing or subverting the system.

RADWAY'S PILLS.

In RADWAY'S PILLS the true principle of purgation is secured—not alone to the effect of dispelling the fecces and excrementa from the bowels, but those humors that are obscured or stopped in their passage through the Liver, Kidneys, Lungs, and all excreting and secreting functions; for if these organs—secretions, excretions belonging to the skin, liver, lungs, kidneys, are interrupted in their course, they become products of decay and corruption, and must be purged from the living body through their proper channels: hence the purgative qualities of RADWAY'S PILLS extend to the secretions of the SKIN, KIDNEYS, LIVER, &c.; whereas not one of the advertised Pills claim to act beyond the bowels.

How to Take Radway's Pills.

THEIR DAILY USE.

In doses of one or two pills, by all persons of a full habit of body, subject to giddiness, rush of blood to the head, palpitation of the heart, and all those rushes to the skin, will not only keep the blood from becoming congested or clogged up in the blood vessels, but will equalize its circulation, and prevent sudden attacks of apoplexy, disease of the heart, congestion. Persons who will take one of these pills every day will not suffer from Headache, Giddiness, Hysterics, Fainting Spells, Pains around the Heart, and a hundred other disagreeable symptoms.

DYSPEPSIA.

One of RADWAY'S PILLS, two or three hours before dinner, taken daily, will keep the system free from DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, COSTIVENESS, &c.

Bear in Mind,

RADWAY'S PILLS are the only purgative that will secure an alterative, diuretic, sudorific, aperient and tonic influence.

They are the only vegetable substitutes for Calomel or Mercury.

They are elegantly Coated with Gum, perfectly Tasteless, and free from Smell.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

POISONED BLOOD.

When the blood becomes poisoned by the presence of an excess of BILE, UREA, CARBONIC ACID, and the excrementitious excretions of the SKIN—SORES, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, SPOTS, ULCERS, and HUMORS of all kinds break out on the surface.

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent,

When the blood is in this condition, should be taken alternately with RADWAY'S PILLS. The indication of Cure is to free the blood from the presence of these poisons, and restore the functions of the Liver, Skin, Lungs, Kidneys, Bowels, to their healthy duties. This effected, which RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT, aided with Radway's Pills, will soon secure—a Cure will be the result.

A BAD SKIN—Spots, Morphew, Sores, Pimples, Blotches, Pustules, Tetters, are caused by impurities of the Blood. Checked Perspiration, Sluggish Circulation of the blood in the excreting vessels of the Skin. One or two doses of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT will rid the skin from these visitants, and insure all a beautiful, clear complexion

UTERINE TROUBLES.—Prolapsus Uteri, Falling of the Womb, Ulcers, Tumors, Sores, cured by SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

Ladies suffering from Chronic Leucorrhœa, Weakness or Irritation of the Bladder and Urinary Passage, Infirmity of Passing Urine, &c., will be relieved by a few doses of RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT, and cured by a few bottles.

PARALYSIS CURED.

DERBYVILLE, Harrison Co., Ohio. May 13th, 1868.

Messrs. RADWAY & Co.,

Gentlemen.—The RESOLVENT has effected a cure in a very severe case, that of a Mrs. Leonard Johnston in this neighbourhood. She was confined to her bed and had lost the use of her legs:—four bottles of the RESOLVENT has restored her, and last Sunday she was able to attend church, the demand for the RESOLVENT has increased, and we deem it advisable to order in time.

Yours truly, R. PITTS & SON.

SARSAPARILLIAN.

So quick is RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN or RENOVATING RESOLVENT in entering into the circulation, that it may be detected in the urine, sweat, and blood in ten minutes after it has been taken.

A Remedy so quick in entering into the circulation and communicating its curative properties as RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN supplies a want that has ever existed.

RADWAY'S Sarsaparillian or Renovating Resolvent furnishes positive evidence of its Purifying and Fruitful efficacy in curing persons considered Impotent and Barren, who have since married and had children.

STOP THE WASTE OF LIFE!

RADWAY'S Sarsaparillian Resolvent will stop the waste of the life-fluid that in so many persons follows a discharge of water through the urethra. It is a positive cure for Spermatorrhœa, Nightly Emissions, &c.

SYPHILOID ULCERS.

Sores of all kinds, Tumors, Cancers, Sore Heads, Sores on the Tongue, in the Mouth, in the Glands of the Throat, cured by Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

IMPOTENCY.

The best evidence we have of the powerful Purifying, Tonic, and Fruitful properties of Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent is that it has cured persons who were verging on Imbecility and Insanity through Self-Abuse, who considered themselves of the sexual field, and were cured by the Resolvent, when prepared under the old process in 1856, who have married and have children now living. A few bottles will restore the vigor of life.

VIGOR OF LIFE RESTORED.

Persons who, from self-abuse, disease, or injuries, suffer from paralysis or weakness in the secreting vessels of the genital organs, will be cured by Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvents.

SARSAPARILLIAN,

PAREIRA BRAVA.

Two of the Wonderful Ingredients that enter into the composition of RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN or RENOVATING RESOLVENT.

There are some thirty or more different species of Sarsaparillas, and it requires great care and knowledge in selecting the proper kinds; so with Pareira Brava. This great remedial agent is to be found in Guayaquil, Para, Honduras, Mexico, and there are some twenty species of this root. Dr. Radway uses only one kind, that which grows in Brazil. He employs, through his agents, some half experienced and intelligent men in gathering, preparing, packing and shipping these roots to the United States. No ignorant savages or Aborigines are employed in gathering vegetables, roots, plants, &c., for the Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT is sold at $1 per Bottle, or 6 Bottles for $5, by Druggists and Medicine Dealers, and at DR. RADWAY'S Medicine Warehouse, 439 St. Paul Street, Montreal.

To Messrs. CHAMBERLAIN & BELL, Conway P.O County of Leeds, Ontario, Canada.
Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th, 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.
Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.
I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

I AM GOING, MOTHER.

Come hither, gentle mother,
And take this hand in thine,
I'm going to that country
Where other seasons shine:

The stars were beaming brightly,
And hushed was every strain,
And played the silvery moonbeams
Upon the crystal pane—

When in the tranquil lustre
Stood sprite robed in white,
And on each shining forehead
Was set a crown of light,

Fair looked each snowy bosom
O'erhung with golden curls;
And round the holy raiment
There beam'd a fringe of pearls.

And sang they of the summer
That brings not Winter's shade,
Of love that knows not sorrow,
And flowers that never fade.

Oh! mother, when thy counsel
Shall cease to be my guide,
And all of earthly treasure
Is gently put aside—

Ne'er let the tear-drop glisten,
Nor mourn the absent one—
The breeze is ever sighing,
"God's holy will be done."

There runs through every Eden
A stream of mortal woes—
The sturdy tree is dying,
And death awaits the rose.

Around a simple structure
Let speed-well gather root—
Place by my head the king-cob,
And daisy at the foot.

And let the weeping willow
Wave o'er the sacred spot—
With lily of the valley,
And sweet forget-me-not.

Selections.

The Trials of a Fascinating Man.

I am not a handsome man; I never made any pretensions to beauty; my features are not regular, my nose is decidedly ugly, and my moustache anything but elegant, being about the color of a well-baked apple pie; yet spite of all these advantages—disadvantages I mean—the girls will have it that I am a perfect lady-killer. I believe I have been regularly through all the ordinary inflictions which accompany such a reputation, besides some extraordinary ones. I have received scores of anonymous love-letters, and no end of nick-nacks and trinkets, embroidered with 'remember me,' and 'dinna forget,' and 'forget-me-not,' and occasionally 'souvenir,' and 'pensez a moi.' I have been sonnetised all over, from my hair (which is coarse, and in color first cousin to my moustache), through all the regular gradations of 'brow,' 'eyes,' lips,' and 'whiskers,' down to my very 'feet.'

My letter-box is always filled to overflowing; little tinted perfumed billets-doux are stuck under the street door, and thrown mysteriously down the area steps. Last year some half-dozen were miraculously placed on my dressing-table; and one I found nestled under my pillow. These are all ordinary enough annoyances. Any handsome man (but I am not handsome, that is the worst of it) can count up scores of such petty grievances as these, but I have been martyrised in a few ways which I don't think fall to the lot even of all the Adonises of society. I appeal to you, gentlemen, what man amongst you was ever obliged to shave off a most beautiful and luxuriant crop of whiskers, just because ladies would persist in teasing, in the most bewitching way in the world, for 'just one little curl, it would never be missed from such a superabundance, to keep as a memento.' How would you feel if you should go into a friends house to look at his three month's heir and congratulate his lady, to have her sit down very close by your side on the sofa, and put the little darling in your arms, and tell you in the presence of her husband, and in the tenderest manner in the world, that she has named the sweet little cherub after you, 'for the sake of old memories,' lifting up a blue eye, that almost sparkles with a tear, so bewitchingly to your face? Would it be delightful, do you think, to be stopped in the street by an unknown man, a jealous husband, confronted with your own photograph—a very handsomely finished one designed for your sister, but mysteriously purloined from your bureau-drawer—and inquired of if you are the original of that picture, which he had found pressed to his wife's cheek after she had wept herself to sleep, and threatened with a public horse-whipping if you did not cease your machinations against his domestic peace; when all the time you were as innocent of any knowledge of him or his wife as a babe unborn? All this have I endured, and more.

For the sake of the charitable, if there are any among the softer sex, which from the depths of my martyrdom I almost begin to doubt, I make the following sketch of some of my dilemmas; hoping that they, more reasonable and more merciful than I have found the majority of the sex to be, will hereafter pause before they allow their indiscretion to bring such a series of misfortunes upon any of the brotherhood.

'Alphonse,' said my sister Julia, one evening after we had been talking over the above desperate state of affairs, 'it is very evident that you are a dangerous man to be allowed loose in a community of young ladies like this. Why, the havoc you are making is perfectly terrific, and some means must be devised of putting an end to it.—There are no two ways about it, my dear brother, you must get married.'

'Now, Julia, it is useless talking,' I replied. 'I am willing to do anything reasonable; but the fact is, I have always entertained some old-fashioned notions about love as requisite for matrimony, and really I don't fancy being hurried into anything desperate, either through charity to the lady population about me, or from that stronger instinct of self-preservation—though, to tell the truth, the bore is getting rather intolerable.'

'But why, Alphonse, amongst the scores of young ladies with whom you are acquainted, cannot you select one whom you can really love? I am sure you are not unreasonable in your demands for a wife.'

'No. I don't think I am,' I replied; but I confess I have a desire to marry a rational woman, and I never yet saw one whom the first thrill of love didn't seem to possess with some strange infatuation, not to say insanity. Besides, though I am a constitutionally indolent man, yet I have always had an idea of doing my own courting, and most of my young lady acquaintances—certainly all those whom I might otherwise have fancied—have left me little room for the exercise of my powers in that direction.'

'Well, the truth of the matter is, Alphonse, you are so good-natured and so obliging that young ladies are apt to forget themselves when under the influence of your fascinations, and to repose such confidence in you as no wearer of the two-pronged garment was ever made to return. But I am going to put a stop to all such. My friend Araminta Douglass is coming here next week. I have known her [illegible] and intimately, and if you do not find her an exception to all your previously-formed ideas of our sex, and moreover a woman incapable of inspiring a genuine affection, I shall be very much disappointed.'

'Very well,' said I, 'if the young lady can really win me, I have no objection to marry her myself.'

'She will not win you,' replied Julia, emphatically; 'but I hope you may be so fortunate as to win her.'

The appointed day arrived, and with it Miss Araminta Douglass. She was a tall, well-made woman, with the air of a Juno, and her flashing eye and imperious carriage gave one the idea of a creature formed to command rather than to win the admiration of all beholders. Besides, I knew her to be highly educated and accomplished, and, if the truth must be told, for the first day or two I stood a good deal in awe of her, and, being naturally a modest man, I felt a slight degree of trepidation about making any positive advances toward her; but Julia, who has all the tact of her sex, contrived that we should be left much alone together, so that at the end of the first week of Miss Douglass's visit I began to feel more at ease in her presence. She was a splendid woman; the stately grace and dignity of all her movements charmed me; and the elegance of her manners and her wonderful conversational powers awoke my highest admiration; and her amiability completely won my heart. My courtship was not without its trials; but of these I do not purpose to speak. Suffice it, that after various embarassing delays and periods of the most torturing suspense, I at last acknowledged the passion which her charms had inspired, and received, if not a positive acceptance, yet sufficient encouragement to make me the happiest of men.

This latter event occurred during a visit at Beech Lawn, the elegant country seat of Miss Douglass's parents. Of course I could not think of returning to town without taking with me the minature of my idol; and in compliance with my request, Araminta presented me with a lovely photograph, which she had had taken while in town, on the conditions of an exchange. Now I had no miniature of myself, but in my desk was a most exquisite medallion locket, elegantly enamelled and set with gems; and as there was a very good artist in the next town, I concluded to have a miniature taken and set in the locket.

The artist succeeded admirably, and the likeness was sent home on the afternoon previous to my departure. I intended to present it to Araminta that evening, but before I had an opportunity of doing so, one of those little incidents which have been the bane of my life must needs occur.

There happened to be at that time a dressmaker employed in the family, a pale-faced, light-haired young person, of whom Araminta had always spoken with respect, as the daughter of an honest and well-to-do farmer. I am an early riser, and often in my promenades up and down the lawn I had met this young maiden, and once or twice she had joined me in my walk, and pointed out to me the various beauties of the place. By some chance, I found that she was quite poetical in her tastes, and, having from long pereience acquired a secret horror, of all sentimental young ladies, I thereafter quietly avoided her.

On that unfortunate evening, however, as I was walking in the garden, awaiting Araminta's return from a shopping expedition to the market-town, I happened to spy, in passing a little summer-house, Miss Barlow sitting within in an attitude of despondency, and sobbing violently. My sympathies were instantly aroused, but, fearing to be intrusive, I was about to withdraw from the vicinity, when she raised her head, and, seeing me, exclaimed, 'Oh! Mr. Hathaway, I am overwhelmed with shame at being discovered in such a state as this; but, indeed, Sir, my heart is breaking.'

I apologised for my intrusion, assured her it was entirely accidental, but suggested that, as Providence had led me to the spot, perhaps it was intended that I should in some way comfort her in her distress.

'Oh, it is hopeless, it is impossible!' she cried, at the some time moving along to give me room to seat myself beside her.

In spite of an intuitive feeling that I might be getting myself into a scrape, I accepted the offered privilege, and—what man with human heart in his bosom could have done less?—stole an arm gently around her waist.

'Tell me, my dear Miss Barlow,' I said, is there no way in which I can be instrumental in alleviating your distress? I assure you it would give me a great deal of pleasure to serve you.'

Still she sobbed in such an agony of sorrow that my heart really bled for the poor thing. 'Have you heard unpleasant tidings from home?' I ventured to inquire.

'Oh no, Sir,' was the reply—'my distress is all here,' laying her hand pathetically upon her heart.

I felt the cold chills starting through my veins. I could not speak.

'Oh, Mr. Hathaway,' she exclaimed, laying her head upon my shoulder, and bursting into a fresh flood of tears, 'is it possible that you have never till this moment suspected the terrible secret which is hurrying me to the grave?'

I fairly trembled in my boots; fortunately, however, I heard the roll of carriage wheels, and knew that Araminta had returned. As she would pass directly by the Summer-house on her way up the lawn, it was necessary to terminate this interesting scene. Therefore, hastily pressing the hand which had in some way, for which I was not responsible, found its way into mine, I said something about my sympathy for her, and my sincere hope that she might yet be happy, and withdrew as quickly as possible, not, however, until Araminta had discovered my presence in the Summer-house, and Miss Barlow's tears. She was a woman of sense, however, and said nothing.

Dinner was waiting for us, and when we had arose from the table, tea was served in the drawing-room, so that it was nearly ten o'clock before I was left alone with Araminta. Then I excused myself from the room, and went to my own apartment in search of the locket, which I had left lying on my dressing table. What was my astonishment to find it missing! I searched long and vainly, and at last concluded that some of the servants must have taken it. But what was I to do? I had promised Araminta to leave my likeness with her, and I disliked exceedingly to mention my loss to her, knowing the disagreeable suspicion which would be likely to follow. A moment's thought decided me. The artist had undertaken to make a duplicate of the portrait for my sister. This I would have set in as handsome a locket as I could find in his assortment, and present it to Araminta in the morning. Banishing my vexation, therefore, as best I might, I returned to the drawing-room, and informed Miss Douglass that I had sat for a likeness for her, but it would not be finished until morning, when I hoped for the pleasure of presenting it to her.

The best case which I could procure proved to be a very common one, but I consoled myself with thinking that as soon as I returned to town I could replace it with something more choice and elegant.

Araminta accepted the gift very graciously, and I left in the best possible spirits.—Judge of my surprise, therefore, when on the following week I received a note couched in these terms, and accompanied by my letters and miniature:—

'Sir,—Previous to my acquaintance with you, I had been informed of your character as an experienced and most unprincipled flirt. My high respect for your talent, and, I may add, the frankness and apparent sincerity of your conversation, served, however, to dissipate in a great measure the prejudice thereby imparted, though, as you will know, it was long before I could feel entirely [illegible] your addresses. Recent developments, however, have not only confirmed my old suspicions, but laid open to my view a blacker phase of your character than any I had ever pictured. Your own conscience will, doubtless, suggest the circumstances to which I have referred. Sir, I am no longer blinded by your insidious wiles, and this opportunity of expressing to you the scorn and execration in which I hold a man of your character affords me the highest pleasure. With unfeigned thankfulness I return to you your letters and portrait, and demand my own. Do not have the baseness to undertake one word of defence of your infamous conduct, as it will avail you nothing, but rather sink you in a still deeper pit of infamy.

'In the utmost indignation, I am Sir, your undeceived victim,

'ARAMINTA DOUGLASS.'

Now wasn't that an edifying letter to be received by a man, not only entirely innocent of every charge therein contained, but also entirely ignorant of these terrible 'circumstances,' to which such pointed allusion was made? At first I stamped with rage, but bluttering and all other exhibitions of temper were utterly useless. Any effort at an explanation by letter would evidently be equally futile; there were only two methods of procedure left me. I could either abandon the whole thing, and suffer the case to go by default; or I could confront the irate Juno in person (that is, if I could gain access to her indignant presence), and demand the proof of her allegations. This latter, a due regard for my reputation as an honest man, decided me to do.

I left town by the first train for Beech Lawn. Arrived, I sent up my card, and was refused an audience, just as I had anticipated. It was time to be resolute, so I wrote on the back of the card:—

'Miss Douglass, I am as innocent of the charges you have preferred against me as any man living, and you have no right to deny me the opportunity of exculpating myself. Therefore, allow me to inform you that the letters and photograph in my possession will never be given up until I have justice at your hands. If you do not wish to see me yourself, you can refer me to your father, but I do not choose to apply to him till I am certain of being treated as a gentleman should be.'

This message, after a little delay, brought me an invitation to enter the library, where I found Mr. Douglass. I stated my errand at once, and, after a patient hearing, he conceded my right to an explanation. It seemed that Miss Douglass had acted entirely upon impulse, and without consulting her parents; and her father, therefore, summoned her at once to his presence, and required the proof of the charges which she had preferred.

Araminta was still undaunted. Looking at me with a fixed, indignant gaze, she asked, 'Does Mr. Hathaway pretend to deny that, during his late visit visit here, he met frequently by stealth, once at least in the arbor at the foot of the garden walk, where I myself saw him in conversation with her, Miss Susan Barlow, my dressmaker? That he succeeded in winning her youthful affections, and presented to her on that very occasion his miniature set in an elegant locket? He dare not deny it, for the locket I have myself seen.'

Had a mine exploded beneath my feet, I could not have been more astonished. Quickly regaining my self-possession, however, I rehearsed as delicately as possible the circumstance of my acquaintances with Miss Barlow, and the loss of the locket. Araminta was still sceptial, however, and I was obliged to suggest that Miss Barlow should be summonded to deny, if she could, the truth of my statements. She was engaged in the upper room sewing, and Mr. Douglass instantly sent a message to her. She came down, covered with blushes and trepidation, and a few moments' cross-questioning completely sustained me, I was sorry for the pain which I was obliged to inflict upon the poor girl, but what could I do? Araminta, however, evidently could not forget that the poor, self-immolated victim was one of her own sex, and I think it would have gone hard with me still but for the ludicrous scene which terminated the examination, and in which I certainly bore the last enviable part.

The only point left was to gain possession of the locket, and upon this I was determined. Upon demanding it of Miss Barlow, however, she burst into tears, and declared it was no longer in her possession.

'Have you lost it?' I asked.

'It was taken from me, Sir.'

'Do you know by whom?'

'Yes sir. Rose has it?'

'Who was Rose?' I asked.

'Do you mean the cook?' asked Miss Douglass, indignantly.

'Yes Ma'am; Rose in kitchen. I showed it to her one day, and she said Mr. Hathaway was the nicest young man she ever saw, and that the woman who got him for a husband would be happier than a queen. She did'nt seem to like my having his picture; and the next day she got it away from me, and she won't give it up.'

It was to much; even the gravity of old Mr. Douglass was not proof against this last development—he roarded with laughter. Rose was Kitty Clover in the flesh. Araminta was more vexed than amused.

'Send for Rose,' said Mr. Douglass. Let's have it all out while we are about it.'

The bell was rung, and Rose called.

'Well, Rose,' said her master, with as much gravity as he could command,' it appears that you have been stealing. Miss Barlow here charge you with having taken from her a valuable gold locket, set with jewels. Are you aware that the offence is criminal and would send you to prison?'

'I did't go for to steal it, Sir,' said Rose, pentantly, 'indeed I did'nt; but it had a handsome picter in it that I liked to look at it,' looking out from under eyebrows at me, 'and I just kept it a few days. Miss Barlow says she is goin' to have him for a husband, and I think she might let me have his picter.'

Fancy my feelings!

'Well,' said Mr. Douglass, 'the locket does not belong to either of you, and must be instantly restored to its proper owner. Rose, produce it once.'

Rose looked sheepish for a moment, and then commenced fumbling among the folds of her dress, and soon produced the locket from her bosom, and stood with it in her hands waiting for some one to take it.

'You can lay it on the table,' said I.

'Mr. Douglass roared. Araminta blushed, and the two girls looked defiance at each other from under lowering brows. My state of mind, as a modest man, in the midst of such a scene, is more easily imagined than described.

As for Miss Douglass could command herself sufficiently, I dispensed both with her dressmaker, and I returned from the field on which I had won such questionable laurels. I took my dinner as the hotel, and returned post haste to town. The next week I received a letter from Araminta written in rather a different temper from her last, which I answered in person. Her father would not refrain from sundry sly hints about 'quiet waters,' 'dangerous fascinations,' &c., but farther than this there was no allusion made to my last visit.

One month ago I became a Benedict, and if there is another pure, unprotected son of Adam, whose experiences have been any way similar to mine, I advise him to go and do likewise, for it is the only remedy of which the case allows.

In regard to the Bible Societies we publish the following interesting particulars:—

The object of this British and Foreign Bible Society is the circulation of the Bible, without note or comment, throughout all the nations of the earth, in their own languages. Its constitution is so framed as to admit of the cordial co-operation of all christians; and it is heartily supported by the wrest and good men among them, from the Queen on the throne to the humblest subject in her empire.

The number of branches in Great Britain is about 4,000, in the Colonies about 1,000; of which 450 are Canada members nearly 600.—The Upper Canada Bible Society is by far the best auxiliary in the British Empire.

The number of [illegible] circulated by the Parent Society amount to over 26 millions, in 175 different languages; besides thirty millions more which it has helped to circulate by means of [illegible] auxiliaries. The annual issues of scriptures by the Parent Society is about two and a half millions of copies; and its annual income is from £170,000 to 200,000 sterling.

The Upper Canada Bible Society issues about 50,000 copies of the Scriptures yearly.—The annual income for all purposes is nearly $10,000. During the thirty-seven years of its operations it has circulated nearly 370,000 copies of the Bible and Testament.

There are two auxiliaries connected with the U. C. Society, viz., the London and the Kingston. The Number of branches throughout the country is nearly 400. In addition to the labors of its agents and of colporteurs employed by various branches, the U. C. Society regularly employs four Colporteurs to labor chiefly in newly settled townships where no branches have yet been organized. It also aids in the work of circulating the Scriptures among the Ottawa lumbermen, and in the destitute settlements of the Province.

Farm Machinery and Thrift Farms.

We find the following excellent address in the Canada Farmer:—

"Thousands of dollars in time and products are annually lost by our small farmers by the lack of machinery to do their work in proper time. It has been generally thought that it will not pay a farmer who farms only on a small scale, say fifty acres, to invest money in expensive labor-saving implements, such as reapers, mowers, threshing-machines, &c. But this is a mistake, as a man who has a large farm, requiring all his time and attention to look after, and also a large number of la

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1870.

Red River matters are likely to be settled without blood, Riel is willing to listen to the Canadian Authorities.

The Dominion Parliament met on Tuesday. There is nothing to record yet, except that Mr. McDougall has chosen a Seat among the opposition. Sir A. J. Galt, will also be in opposition.

We did not learn whether John A. was sober or not when the Governor General delivered the speech from the throne. We may expect some warm discussions during the Session.

Our members left on Monday, to be present, to take part in the discussion on the address.

Mr. Read also left on the evening train, likely for Ottawa. Mr. Carnegie did not; he is now engaged on the Board of Audit, and also as writer, they say, for a contemporary.

THE SILVER DIFFICULTY.

Our new Finance Minister has initiated a plan to get rid of the superabundance of silver throughout the country, caused by the recent American civil war. He proposes that a proclamation be issued, that on a certain day to be therein named, American silver shall be a legal tender in sums not exceeding $10, at a much lower rate than its intrinsic value, viz: 50 cents at 40 cents, 25 cents at 20 cents, 10 cents at 8 cents, and 5 cents at 4. The proclamation appears in last Saturday's Gazette, fixing the time on the 15th April, but the rates at which the silver is to pass current has yet to be determined by the Government. Mr. Hincks also proposes that the government shall buy up three millions of dollars of the coin at 5 per cent discount on the first million, 5½ on the second, and 6 on the third million—asafe operation, verily. And in order the more effectually to get rid of the "nuisance," he proposes to have the government append a fine to the breach of the law, fixing the value of the silver, by any one paying American silver at a greater or higher rate than is therein named. It is obvious that if the above is carried out, silver will soon disappear from circulation. The scheme, however, does not meet with popular favor; already boards of trade have entered protests against it, as being of too harsh and sweeping a character; and in common with others we sincerely hope that the government will not carry out this ill advised measure of one of its members. To us it has always appeared silly to call an abundance of silver too much—perhaps a "nuisance." It would be better, especially for tradesmen, that there should be less of it; and if it is found to be so injurious to each city, town or village in the Province do as Toronto has done: receive it in payment at 4 per cent discount, and it will soon come to be right. To carry out the Finance Minister's scheme will entail a very serious loss upon some, with a result anything but beneficial to the country at large.

Hints on Choosing School Sites.

SELECTED FROM THE JOURNAL OF EDUCATION.

No steps shall be taken by the Trustees for procuring a School Site, or for changing an established School Site without calling a meeting of the Assessed Householders and Freeholders of the section to consider the matter.

In case of a difference of opinion between a majority of the Trustees and a majority of the Assessed Householders, and Freeholders present at the meeting, each party shall choose an Arbitrator, but the Arbitrators must be chosen at the meeting.

The Trustees are the proper parties to call school meetings, but the Local Superintendent may call a school meeting for any legal purpose.

Subsequent meetings may be called to reconsider the decisions of former meetings, if deemed desirable by the Trustees. If the people desire a subsequent meeting, and the Trustees refuse to call one, the Local Superintendent may call it if requested. In all cases the notices require to be posted in at least three public places in the Section, six clear days before the day of the meeting.

The Trustees need not consult the people in reference to cost, size, style, or time of building; they are legally the sole judges of those things.

Trustees can enlarge a building or a School Site without calling a meeting to consider the matter.

The only way of settling a dispute between a majority of the Trustees, and a majority of the Assessed Householders and Freeholders in reference to change of Site, is by Arbitration.

If a subsequent meeting be called to reconsider the decisions of a former meeting, at which Arbitrators had been appointed. If the last meeting necessitates Arbitration, either the former (chosen) Arbitrators or new ones must again be chosen.

If a majority of the Householders and Freeholders at a meeting differ from the Trustees in regard to Site, and are in favor of the existing established Site, they need not choose an Arbitrator, and their refusing to do so, compels the Trustees to consider the existing Site as the only legal one. By the people refusing to appoint an Arbitrator, no arbitration can be held. And by analogy, if the Trustees refuse to name an Arbitrator, the people have no redress until the election of new Trustees, when they might refuse to elect a man who would not carry out their wishes.

If Arbitrators be legally chosen, any two of them can act, and their award will be legal.

The Arbitrators are not bound to confine their choice to one or any number of places named by the Trustees and the people.—They are untrammeld in their choice, provided the Site be obtainable.

An award is not binding until made and published, that is, until put in writing, signed by at least two of the Arbitrators, and a copy placed in the hands of the Trustees. The proper Trustees to serve it upon, is the Secretary-Treasurer, if a Trustee, or on the Chairman.

After giving the award to the Trustees, these same Arbitrators can not act again unless reappointed.

The following declaration from the Journal for January 1870, deserves attention:

"After publication of an award, no public meeting can set it aside for at least one year, and even then, not without good ground being shown for doing so—or provided there is no contract existing, arising out of or consequent upon the award, but the Trustees should without unreasonable delay proceed to give effect to the award."

This last opinion is of doubtful authority we think. The people surely have the right of calling meetings for all purposes concerning their interests, as inhabitants of a School Section. And surely the expressed opinion of the last meeting either confirms or rescinds the decision of any previous meeting, but they are always subject to the consequences of any legal contract entered into by their Trustees.

Trustees and the people should choose dry healthy localities for their School houses, and in case of erecting new buildings, be careful to consider the health of the children and teacher, by giving them space enough, good ventilation, and neat buildings and surroundings. All these things have their effect on the health, habits and tastes of the rising generation.—It is better to have a house four feet too large, than one too small—the difference of cost is nothing.

PRESBYTERIAN ANNIVERSARY.

On Sunday and Monday the usual anniversary services in connection with the Canada presbyterian Church (Mr. Roger's) were held.

On Sabbath the Rev. Mr. Smith, of Galt, preached both morning and evening. The discourses were excellent, breathing all through the spirit of the love of his Maker, and of his sincerity. This is the Mr. Smith that was subjected to such trouble for encouraging one Russel, an evangelist, in revival services in his (Mr. S's) church. Mr. Russell, it would appear, dropped some few words not according to the ideas of orthodoxy held by a few; and because after this Mr. Smith aided and encouraged the services, which resulted in the bringing in of over 200 souls, he was accused before the session, the Presbytery and Synod, but in each case acquitted. His discourses and addresses here were earnest and faithful expositions of the plan of salvation.

On Monday evening the

ANNIVERSARY SOIREE

Was held, and was a decided success. The sum realized during the two days amounts to $190, about five dollars more than last year. This sum would have been augmented but that the Wesleyan Missionary meetings were held the same days, through inadvertance.

After the tea addresses were given by several reverend gentlemen present. Rev. Mr. McDonnel first addressed the meeting on the subject of "compensation, or the principle that was lacking in one way was made up in some other way"; and instanced the fact that tall men sought for small companions, talkative women for quiet men, and vice versa. Impulsive Peter kept the society of the more staid John.—He remarked that clever, studious men were rarely industrious, shrewed or plodding, and they intuitively sought for industrious, plodding companions, so that their counterpart might be found in the companion. He referred to the fact that warm climates tended to enervate the frame and produce languor, and that cold climates necessitates work and industry; hence the industry of the Anglo-Saxons, who were compelled to be industrious to maintain an existence. Machinery, now doing almost all that men formerly had to do, would also result in the same way, he thought; and instanced the fact that running in one line of acts tended to unfit men for a different mode of living. He referred to the different forms of church polity, as the despostic,—or Rome, the constitutional, or Episcopalian, the Republican or Presbyterian, and the democratic or congregational; each of which he thought might have its advantages, and follow the same law of compensation,—what was not in one was made up in the other.

Mr. Macdonnell then referred to the advantages and disadvantages of wealth, and inclined to the opinion that it was better to be born poor and work our way upward, as giving the great impetus to action, and hence to industry in every undertaking, religious or otherwise. He then beautifully referred to the law of compensation as set forth in the plan of salvation. Man had nothing, Christ was rich; man was lost, Christ came to save him; that every human want had its counterpart in Christ Jesus, the Savior of the world.

Rev. Mr. Smith followed. Mr. Smith's address was an earnest appeals to duty.—The duty of all was to work, for his own salvation and then for the salvation of the world; to try and bring peace and comfort to the hearts and homes of his fellowmen. The work of saving sinners he considered a great work, and required all the energy, ardor and industry that could be bestowed. They should give of their substance—willingly—of their power and their influence in the world; of their spiritual influence, of their household influence and their family influence, for the religious education of all, and for an example to others to follow in their footsteps. He made some beautiful reference to the power a christian can wield even over infidels and scoffers at religion, and forcibly warned christian that they should not be like Hezekiah when foreign ambassadors visited him; he showed them his wealth and greatness, but nothing of the religion of Jehovah.

Mr. Smith closed with a very earnest address the church, to the old, to the youth, to children, to be sure and work for Christ, by their example and by their liberality; and as showing what a church can do, remarked that Mr. Hall's church, New York, consisting of 500 members, gave more money, for religious purposes, in a year, than did the whole 600 congregations of Presbyterians in Ireland. Mr. Hall's church contributed in a year £15,500: the 600 congregations in Ireland £15,000.

The Rev. Mr. Dyall followed Mr. Smith in an earnest appeal to all to work for Jesus, to live for Christ, and love Christ. There was work for all, and enough for all to do.

Mr. Mitchell, of Millbrook, also continued the appeal to the hearts of the people, and remarked that the work required was the very work for which man was best adapted; but he thought that the gold dollar, small as it was, tended to darken counsel, and shut out light from the soul. He also appealed to the young people to be in earnest for Christ.

Rev. Mr. Roger then remarked that the anniversary, in a pecuniary sense, had been a success, and the addresses were also a success, and called for the thanks of the meeting for the speakers, which were earnestly given.

Rev. Mr. Butcher closed with the benediction.

During the intervals, the choir, under Mr. Millar, delighted the people with some beautiful music. We may safely say that rarely have we heard such lovely strains of sacred melody, as we heard on Monday evening. We venture to assert that in none of the cities can anything be found to surpass the singing of the choir of the Canada Presbyterian Church on Monday evening.

Wesleyan Missionary Meetings.

The missionary services in connection with the Wesleyan Methodist Church, held on Sunday and Monday, were very successful.

On Sunday Dr. L. Taylor preached in the morning, from the words, "And on His head were many crowns." The discourse was very fluent, and delivered in Mr. Taylor's usual eloquent style.

In the evening Dr. Nelles, of Victoria College, preached a most masterly discourse from the words, "He that winneth souls is wise." The whole discourse was full of the Saviour, and must have left an impression on the minds of not a few.

Monday evening's services were also well attended, and the addresses delivered by the same gentlemen excellent; both bore on the tendencies of the present age. Dr. Nelles repudiated the idea that Mediævalism was on the increase, or that material advancement was a hindrance to religious progress. Dr. Taylor set forth the same views, but referred more particularly to the tendencies of the writings of Dickens, Mill, Emmerson, Carlyle and others, decidedly opposed to religious progress, and of these he placed Dickens in the front as tending to oppose the progress of religious truth. Both addresses were well received.

The collection amounted to $80, being somewhat of an advance on last year's collection; besides the above sum the contribution of the Wesleyan Sabbath School, for the same purpose was about $56. It is a very pleasing sign that at all the religious meetings, the collections are on the increase, notwithstanding the cry of low prices and dull times.

OBITUARY.

DR. JOHN MCNABB, one of the oldest and most respected of our citizens, has been removed from our midst, very suddenly, since our last issue. He was in his usually good health on Friday, and more than usually cheerful and happy, but taking unwell on Saturday morning, died on Sunday, about 3 o'clock, p. m., at the age of 68 years.

Dr. McNabb was born in the year 1802, in Lachine, L. C., of Scotch parents, but we are unable to state at what period the parents settled there.

The subject of this sketch received the early part of his education in his native village, but afterwards removing to Montreal, he attended lectures in the Scholæ Medicinæ, about two years, during the years 1820 and 1821.

His father must at that time have been in favourable circumstances, as he sent his son to Edinburgh to complete his education, and there after regular attendance on lectures, he received his Diploma from the Royal College of Surgeons, on the 4th of August 1824. He returned to Canada at least as early as 1827, for in that year he took out license to practise in Lower Canada, and practised in Montreal and vicinity for several years. He afterwards removed to Cotean du Lac, where he practised for some years. About the close of the rebellion he settled in Cobourg, and took out license for Upper Canada, but shortly after went to Trenton. He also practised his profession in Keene, Otonabee, for a season. But in 1844, he took up his permanent residence in Peterboro, where he resided till his decease.

Dr. McNabb was kind and agreeable in his manner, not very communicative, even to his intimate friends. He was respected by all who knew him, and a very worthy citizen. He held the appointment of Jail Surgeon by appointment of successive county councils up to the time of his death. He was remarkably kind to the poor, and was ever ready to attend them professionally, even when he well knew he would receive no remuneration. He was devoid of ostentation in his acts of charity.

He leaves but one surviving brother, Mr. Alexander McNabb, Crown Land Agent, Saugeen. One brother and his two sisters have been dead some years. He also leaves one son, R. A. McNabb, Esq., and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Stewart, to survive him. His remains were interred on Wednesday in the Little Lake Cemetery, and a large concourse of friends and acquaintances followed them to their last resting place.

A MONUMENT TO HIS MEMORY.

We understand that it is the intention of his numerous friends to erect a monument to his memory. A subscription list will be found in each of the Drug Stores, where all desirous of aiding can subscribe, so that the committee can proceed with as little delay as possible.

EDITORIAL ITEMS.

MECHANICS INSTITUTE.—Remember Mr. Campbell's lecture to-night, under the auspices of the Mechanics Institute.

We learn that Dr. Nellis of Victoria College, will lecture here on the 3rd. of March. Subject,—"Popular Falacies." This will be a rich treat.

MONTREAL HOUSE.—We invite attention to the advertisements of Mr. Dunnet, Montreal House, in to-days issue. Mr. Dunnet is about to leave Peterboro, to commence business in Belleville, and in consequence offers bargains for a month.

The weather has been steady, and delightful for the last two or three weeks.—The suns rays have manifested their increasing power of late, but it may reasonably be feared, that the present delightful weather will be succeeded by storms, perhaps at a more inconvenient season.

There was no meeting of the Council on Monday evening, owing to the religious meetings held in the Presbyterian and Methodist Churches. It is a good sign to find our Councillors so religious that they prefer going to church meetings rather than meetings of Council. There is hope for us yet.

SUDDEN DEATH.—We regret to have to chronicle the death of Mr. George Paul, so well known in the Township of Smith.—He had sold his farm and was as far as Port Hope on his way to the Western States, when he took ill and died, after about one day's sickness. This is a severe stroke to his wife, who is thus left in an unsettled state, with a family of very small children.

BAPTIST.—On Wednesday last, the members of Rev. Mr. Dyall's Church, Lakefield, and vicinity, waited on him at the Parsonage, with a fresh supply of almost every thing necessary for family use—meat, flour, butter, cheese, a nice clock, and other articles too numerous to mention, but just as useful during Canadian winter. This is the second donation to Mr. Dyall this winter, and it tends very much to show the liberality of the people, among wh om his lot is cast.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The Superintendent of this School, J. W. Gilmour, Esq., will exhibit his Model of the Tabernacle, on Friday evening, in the Baptist Church. It is indeed a most interesting subject, and the model is well worth being seen. We believe it is the intention of the Teachers to take up a voluntary collection to aid in liquidating a small debt on the Sabbath School, and the friends of Sabbath Schools should aid them a little in this way.

SABBATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.—The annual Convention of Sabbath School Teachers, is advertized for 15th and 16th of March, next. Delegates are expected from all the Sabbath Schools in the County. Several Revd. gentlemen, from a distance, and the resident ministers will be present and take part in the meeting. All interested in the progress of Sabbath Schools, should avail themselves of the opportunity to be present, and lend their encouragement. We are requested to state that delegates will be provided for during the days of convention.

WESLEYAN SOCIAL.—Another of these interesting meetings will be held on Tuesday evening, 22nd inst., at the Wesleyan School Room, Peterborough. Every one pleased with the erection of the handsome parsonage built by the Wesleyans, should attend this Social, and by their presence and quarters assist in paying for the building. No one will miss the trifle paid for the ticket, but the sum realized materially assists the trustees in meeting their large expenditure. We understand that preparations are made to give a rich treat to those who attend.

The trial for the ejectment of the sisters of the late Rev. Mr. Bell off the lands of Sir John Young, in Ireland, took place about a month since. From the short hand report of the trial given in the "Belfast News Letter" no blame can be attached to Sir John or his Agent, Mr. Thomas Chambers. Sir John had given directions to use the Misses Bell kindly, and to grant them an annuity, although they had no just claim on the land. A decree was granted to eject them, but execution stayed until Sir John Young could be communicated with. For the benefit of those interested in the contests over the land tenure system of Ireland we will try and give the points of the trial next week.

HOW TO FIND OUT YOUNG ROGUES.—About a year ago, a confectioner of this town lost a quantity of candies under suspicious circumstances, but at the time made very little ado. Lately, however, another haul had been made, and believing that a third might be attempted, he procured a strong emetic, worked it up with some candies, and left the whole in a rather tempting position. The bait was successful. Ere long the "sweeties" were removed by an unknown hand, but results were looked for patiently. The emetic proved too strong for the participants, and they not knowing the cause believed that death was in the "sweeties" sent for the Doctor and obtained some quiescents, to their great relief; and to the satisfaction of the confectioner, the rogue was discovered and morally convicted.

LAKEFIELD.

WESLEYAN SOCIAL.

On Friday evening, our Wesleyan friends had a very successful social, to aid in providing funds to furnish the parsonage lately erected. The building is a very handsome, substantial one—brick—and cost about $1,200. It is very pleasantly situated, and convenient to the church. The desire of our Methodist friends to furnish their minister's dwelling, so as to prevent undue expenses every appointment of conference, is praiseworthy, and you will be pleased to learn that the social was successful for the end intended. There was a large attendance of the members of their own church, and also a great many from other Protestant churches. The evening was pleasantly spent, and after a splendid tea, there were short addresses by the chairman, John Moore, Esq., and the Rev. Mr. Sloane, intervals being filled up with good music by the Lakefield choir, and friendly intercourse. The amount required was fully realized.

For the Examiner.

Lines on the Sudden Death of a Neighbor.

Friend, what art thou? or what ash I?
Just children of a day;
The place or time when we shall die,
May not be far away.

When first we draw our infant breath
We are journeying to the grave:
Unknown, unseen wild breakers—Death—
Engulf us 'neath its wave.

The tender bud droops premature,
An infant grave to fill;
A few, to frail old age endure,
Ere death has laid them still.

In middle age, death often calls
The weak, the strong likewise;
Amidst bright hopes our neighbor falls,
At thirty-six he dies.

Death might seem distant to his view,
Long life, bright shadows throw;
Remorseless Death, his weapon drew,
And laid that strong man low.

In usual health, that morn, he rose,
And kindled up the fire;
He felt the shock, his blood upthrows,
And suddenly expires.

No last farewell could he impart
To his beloved wife,
Or press that infant to his heart,
Ere he resigned his life;

Nor grasp his aged parent's hands
To bid the last adieu;
His quivering frame no power commands,
Death chained each member grew.

No sister's, brother's words so kind,
His dying hour to cheer;
Death snapped the chord which friendship bound,
Before they could appear.

Alas! ten minutes changed the scene
From health to death's last sleep;
His rudy face grows pale, serene,
While friends around do weep.

Bereaved friends, your grief restrain,
His gain may ease your loss;
There is a balm for grief and pain,
Just underneath the Cross.

Yes, he is gone from all he loved,
And those who loved him dear;
Beneath the sod he lies unmoved
By all that passes here.

His death proclaims our fleeting breath,
And clearly proves to all,
In midst of life we are in death;
Who knows the next to fall?

While we our onward course pursue,
O'er life's uncertain road,
At every stage, those words we view,
PREPARE TO MEET THY GOD.

WILLIAM TELFORD.

Smith, Feb. 16, 1870.

From the Back Townships.

WESLEYAN SOIREE, MINDEN.

The Wesleyans of Minden Village and surrounding neighbourhood, turned out in large numbers on Friday evening last, to enjoy a social public entertainment, managed in spirited style by the leading members of their body, residing at the Village. The church of the Presbyterian's was very kindly placed at their disposal. The tables were burdened by cakes and other rich edibles of suprising appearance, both for workmanship and quantity. All present must have been perfectly satisfied and gratified. The resident ministers were there at the invitation of the Rev. Mr. Stinson, and so were the Rev. Messrs. Williams and Hardy from the front. Repeated applause from the audience, numbering 260, testified pleasure as they listened to the speakers who endeavored to put forth pleasant topics in taking works, chief amid which was the subject of a Wesleyan parsonage in lieu of the present rented house; for to raise the last year's rent was the main intent of this grand tea meeting. The new topic was well received, so that we may predict that the next soiree will be to pay a debt on the new house.

On this occasion the Minden choir made their debut, and did admirably. Success attend every right and worthy effort of our back woods people. "Hope on, Hope ever!"—COM.

DYSART.

On Tuesday last, at 8 o'clock, a. m., the dwelling of C. A. Wastell, Esq., of Bellevue, Dysart, was burnt to the ground.—The fire, when first discovered, had too much hold on the roof to be subdued, for, on Mr. Wastell returning from the lake, whence he had hurried for water, some of the rafters fell in, and he had to fly to the rescue of Mrs. Wastell and four little ones of tender age, one a mere babe, and it not dressed for the day. All had to be hurried to the barn for shelter and were there wrapt in a few blankets, &c., the only things, including a bed, that could be saved.

Mr. W. lives in a Bay of the Kushogawiganog, so that no neighbour could readily see his distress. But painful to relate, a carter with his team was passing within two hundred yards of the house, saw the fire, must have heard the call for help, yet would not render assistance, but inhumanly went on his way, coolly telling of what he saw when miles off. This loss of Mr. Wastell and family evokes profound sympathy throughout the township, he being so well known both for urbanity and activity for the public weal in his immediate locality.

NARROW ESCAPE.

The new parsonage at Minden, the residence of the Rev. Mr. Burt, narrowly escaped destruction by fire on the 4th inst. Just as the family, including the Rev. Mr. Hoskens, of Fenelon, were commencing breakfast the crackling of fire was heard, and Mrs. Burt gave the alarm. With a hired man engaged for the day on the spot, two lines of persons were directly formed, one within, conveying water to the inside of the roof of which four square feet was thoroughly on fire, the other without, including the visiting clergyman, and son and daughters of the household. A biting frost caused the exposure to be great for all were of course in an undress—but all did bravely. The neighbours must have been at breakfast too, for not a person could be reached by voice or sight for many minutes. At last a neighbour man appeared, then the cry "fire" arrested his attention, and he, wife and daughter were present in no time, yet with this extra help the fire seemed scarcely baffled. Then the axe was used from inside and the burning sheeting and shingles slid off, and hope seemed to dawn; but there was no well, and the water was expended. Then snow was had recourse too, but was so hard to be handled. A child was despatched for aid, not being clothed fit for the journey, made little progress. Two women, neighbours, now appeared and with womanly presence of mind brought buckets and water too. Rev. Mr. Hoskens was then despatched to the Village for help. Hope was nearly gone, and the [illegible] the house began to remove the chief articles of furniture, however the women again fetched a supply of water (from about an eighth of a mile distant) and the fire was conquered after running along the "ridge board" for sixteen feet, and destroying rafters and sheeting, &c., for eight square feet.

The Villagers, with buckets, turned out famously, but when within half a mile they saw the devouring element was defeated, and so only a few came on to the spot.

Thus Providentially the new parsonage and effects were saved. The parties suffered from frost. One woman had her foot badly frozen. The fourth little daughter of Mr. Burt suffered in her hands, and all on the roof more or less suffered, including the man within who endured the heat and next the cold. On Sunday last, thanks to Almighty God were fitly rendered by the congregation, for the preservation of their parsonage.—COM.

A communication has been received from Mr. WM. WOOD, but too late for insertion this week, as we did not receive it till 9 o'clock this morning.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

SIR,—Mr. Collins, through your paper, has appealed to us, as the auditors of the Township of North Monaghan, to settle a dispute between himself and Mr. Wood and the Township Council.

We think it would be folly to attempt doing what has already been done according to his own letter.

Mr. Collins, as collector for 1868, paid over to the Treasurer of the Municipalty, $17.10 more than he received taxes of or should have paid, and he informs the public in your columns that the said Treasurer has paid him back the sum so over paid.—As to the claims of Mr. Collins, of being an interpreter of dreams, or a worker of miracles, we do not deem ourselves called upon to pass an opinion. We do, however, say that the sum of $17.10 was due to Mr. Collins, and now that he is repaid that amount, the matter, with all its acerbity, should drop.

Respectfully yours,

J. EDWARDS.
WM. COULTER.

Peterborough, Feb. 15, 1870.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

SIR,—You will oblige me by inserting the following contradictions to charges made against me in a fly sheet, over the signatures of the four Councillors of North Monaghan; although I believe them not to be the dictator. And as an accomplice of some low order has undertaken to be the cats-paw for the Council, in order to calumniate one before the public, and evidently appears to be one well qualified for the task in supplying fictions for facts.—As to the charge of having the desire of seeing my name in print, I disclaim the charge, and refer the scribblers to their own assertions, which appear in print, under the cognomen of Councillors. As to the charge of not getting admission into the local papers, the proprietor of the Review can prove to be false. Again, they charge me with nothing short of a downright falsehood, for me to say that they did not authorize me to publish my supposed guilt, without as yet showing any regret for their proceedings which they waged against me. In reply, the issues of the Examiner under date of May 26th, 1868, and Review Nov. 27th, 1868, can testify to the truth recorded therein, of the minutes of Council. Again, they rejoice however, to know, they say, that I am almost alone in my opinion; well! well! Taking for granted it is so with them, I think when their fictions are tested with the truth, their rejoicing will give them but little consolation. On the tip-toe of their tirade they accuse me of charging the sum of $424.44 against the ratepayers of the Municipality, and has it not been detected, would certainly have been lost to the Township. Taking their own figures, they say the Auditors Report shows $3,699.47 charged on the roll, whereas only $3,276.66 is carried against the Collector. Wonderful logic indeed! for none are so blind as those that cannot see; they blunder again on their first count; for it appears on their sheet, that they have not the ability to take a few dollars and cents from a few dollars and cents, without making a bungle of 47 cents, as it happened by accident it might as well have been hundreds, and what may we expect from them when they are not on their guard.—On the testimony of the Collector, the receipts of monies paid into the Treasury corresponds with the Auditor's report, and that not any such error is in existence, and as Messrs. Edwards & Coulter have examined the Roll, and corroborate the statement of the Collector, on good authority I believe this scheme to be the production of my pretended friend in order to make some new discovery, in like manner as Columbus did, so that his name may go down to posterity.

He then comes from the Township of Smith to North Monaghan, in order to ferret out something at the expense of his friend: calls at the Collector's, requests a perusal of the Roll, made the discovery of $424.44, requests the Collector to keep it secret, as the Auditors would discover it when they went over the Roll. He then went to another member of the Council and told the wonderful discovery there, &c. Now, Sir, what did he discover? just what does not exist; for behold it was not a dream but something worse. They then charged me with the loss of the Tavern licenses to the Township. In reply, it is a well known fact that the Council had no By-law in force to collect the tavern licenses nor yet in the previous year of 1867 when the present incumbent was Clerk. The judge's decision is sufficient. The tale has yet to be told of the amount of loss the township has sustained. So much for the worthies. Again, they charge me of not assisting them in municipal matters, and conspiring against them. In reply; it is not the duty of the Clerk to make the minutes of Council, but to record them, and that without note or comment; and in conspiring against them it was quite otherwise. For every error committed by them they blamed me of doing, and even denied their own resolutions, till confronted by the original one of their own hand writing.—Again, they charge me of making an attack on the Assessor. Such attack was not made; for what I referred to was the loud sounding trumpet of the Council, which is the Clerk. For I was informed by one of the Council that he was not authorized to publish the efficient services of the Assessor; nor is it the first time he has been reproved both by Reeve and Councillors for interfering with the Council in the discharge of their duties. In reference to the fine of $6.13 being imposed on me by either township or county councils. The charge is false. What I did say was this. I paid the fine on account of the council interfering and leading me astray, and on account of obeying them paid the fine to save further costs, as no such fine should have been paid, but an appeal to a higher court; as the three councillors that interfered were wholly to blame in the case. But this caps the climax of the scribe's flattery. Oh! how pathetic he appears to be on the voter's lists. Tell it not in Monaghan, publish it not in the streets of Peterborough, that the now celebrated Clerk of North Monaghan, did actually in the year 1867 pervert the Statutes of the Province in extending the franchise to all rated for any amount of real property, without requiring any indemnity to save himself harmless, and further signed certificates to the juror's lists, citing the statutes which had been repealed for years. Yet this is the man who appears to be worth $20 extra, although a non-resident held in preference to any resident in the township.

Now, Sir, I think I have shewn clearly the untenable assertions which their sheet contains, and void of one essential element, that is the truth, with only one exception. They say they are prepared to prove; have they proved anything as yet? No; nor neither can they, for the truth is not on their behalf; nor can I perceive what induced the the four councillors to endorse such a document of falsehood, or how any pretended friend could undertake to pervert the truth into falsehood, and appear to have acted so in concealing his name and in my opinion lying the truth.

Yours, &c.,
JOHN TULLY,
Ex Clerk, N. M.

R. R. R. IN BRAZIL.

We refer the reader to the following test many in favor of Dr. RADWAY'S REMEDIES, from gentlemen of high character in Brazil. Persons doubting the genuineness of the same are requested to write to the parties, also to the U. S. Consul at Rio, as to the correctness of the statements and status of the writers. For every word not true the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid:

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 22d, 1860.

MESSRS. RAYMOND C. LEITE & BRO.:

GENTLEMEN:—In answer to your favor of 20th instant, asking my opinion in regards to the efficacy of Dr. RADWAY & Co.'s preparations. I am happy to say that I consider the Relief and Pills the best remedies ever known, and so from such an opinion I am obliged to prove it, which I will do willingly viz: I suffered so much from "colic" that when I was attacked it pained me so much that I preferred death to such sufferings, I took everything that was recommended, but it was of no use; at last I took 4 of Radway's Pills, after which the pains were very moderate, and then I thought that I was cured, but the pains were still violent (which I attribute to the negligence in my part in not following it up as directed,) that I was obliged to give in to my friend's request to take sum "Relief," which he gave he gave me in a dose of one tablespoon in a tumbler of water. In the interval of three minutes I felt relieved immediately, and fifteen minutes after the pain ceased. It is three months since I had an attack, and should I feel any symptoms of it I take the "Relief," I will do all in my power to convince the doubters of the good results of these medicaments, so that they may prescribe them.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,
LUIZ JOSE DA SILVA CAMPOS.

DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO. We sometimes hear persons say, 'my horse is sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;' they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us that his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell more rapidly and for higher prices. The article is 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy.' Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. CONSUMPTIVES, try Dr. J. Briggs' Throat and Lung Healer. It will relieve and cure you.—For all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, nothing can surpass its beneficial effects. Sold by Druggists.

At a Public Meeting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly; an immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel complaints, and all other diseases incident to the climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

THE ŒCUMENICAL COUNCIL lately called at Rome is an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large assemblies of this nature convening representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be as harmonious and unanimous as the verdict in favor of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, for diseases of the lungs, blood, stomach, liver, &c. For sale by all druggists.

INVERTED TOE-NAIL is a very painful disease, generally the result of wearing tight shoes, and is usually accompanied with more or less inflammation, and, at times, ulceration. The great toe is the one usually attacked. At first, there is only a little uneasiness, which ceases when the shoe or boot is removed from the foot; after a time the part becomes tender or inflamed, and the corner or edge of the nail is found pressing deeply into the flesh, while the whole nail is narrow, and much arched across. Ulceration eventually ensues, proud flesh appears, and the pain becomes very severe. For the sloughing of the proud flesh, healing the ulceration, and eventually curing the toe, use Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative, according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

Ah me! I heed not as the passers-by
Mark my pale cheek and sunken eye;
I feel no joy, as the golden ray

GREAT SUFFERING.—How many thousand ladies, both young and old, have passed through great suffering from that terrible demon, Neuralgia, some passing a sleepless night tossing about in great agony, but succeed in getting relief after a few hours of misery, only to be renewed again in a short time with the same unrelenting, excruciating pain. Others have endured this terrible torture for weeks, both day and night, until exhausted with such continual suffering, and almost wishing for the angel of death to relieve them; but hope dawns: a cure has been discovered, a rapid and radical cure; Briggs' Allevantor is the remedy; can be tested, free, at No. 6 King St West Toronto; is sold by Druggists and Country Merchants everywhere. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors' No. 208 Broadway, New York

NEURALGIA may be distinguished from rheumatism by the intensity of the pain, its short continuance, and its liability to return on the slightest touch; in acute rheumatism there is fever, redness, heat in the part affected, and some swelling, all of which are absent in Neuralgia; in chronic rheumatism the pain is continuous, less severe, and often worse at night. From toothache, by the shortness of the paroxysm, the rapidity of its succession, and the frequent convulsive twitches. To obtain immediate relief, use Dr. J. Briggs' Allevantor according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors. 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St West, Toronto.

For twenty-four years has Dr. BRIGGS' still Relieved much pain; but thousands suffer still. His skilful hands have eased the twingeling pain, restored the foot to shape and health again. His curative ten thousand have supplied, How now pronounce the name of BRIGGS with pride.

He sees with deep delight, in many a face,
That he has proved a blessing to his race!
All he asks, is but to follow still
The course assigned to Providential will;
"The laborer is worthy of his hire;"
A living price is all he would desire;
And all who close to profit by his art,
Will find him master over every part.

DR. J. BRIGGS' Allevator, for the cure of Catarrh, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., is unrivalled. In a thorough trial of its virtues, all will acknowledge its superiority. Sold by Druggist.

Dr. Briggs took of every substance known,
That ever healed, or stilled a groan,
And soon composed by skill alone,
His own unrivalled Curative.

The people said, at last was found
A cure for every sore or wound;
They have used it, and are whole and sound,
And all their pain have left them.

Afflicted with corns, bunions, or bruise,
Thousands of sufferers heard the news,
The thing was found that met their views;
They bought and used the Curative.

No sooner was the cure part dressed
The pain was eased that spoilt their rest;
With tears of gratitude they blest
The man who made the Curative.

All signs of soreness soon went by,
Whether in hand, or foot, or eye,
Let every sufferer likewise try
Dr. Briggs' Modern Curative.

STOP AND SEE!

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Kneastown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Conseron, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Papanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well. Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

Price of Remedy in large pints $1.00.

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak of terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW" after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

DR. A. TRASK'S
MAGNETIC OINTMENT!
CURES CROUP OR RATTLES.

Dr. Dingham, of Utica, New York, says:—"I have used Dr. A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment in my practice a number of years, and can say with pleasure I deem it one of the greatest discoveries of the age for the cure of Inflammation of the Lungs, Inflammation of the Bowels, Inflammatory Rheumatism, and in Child Bed Fever, it operates with perfect success. In cases of Burns, Bruises, Frozen Limbs, it acts like a charm."

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"It has stood the test trial and has not been found wanting. Its astonishing cures of Inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subsiding the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A. W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. A Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment" are on the wrapper.

THE SARSAPARILLA DROPS OF YUCATAN.—This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico and still retain some of the peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co, employ a small army of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with narrow spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild banana furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own. [Boston Commercial.

PILES may be caused by anything that will irritate the lower bowels, producing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in past years the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight stays, sedentary habits, high living, heating, irritating food, &c. Dr. J. Briggs' Unrivalled Pile Remedy, remarkable for its superior excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do not hesitate to recommend it in the highest terms. Sold by Druggists and country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto. ¶

New Method of Washing Clothes
Without Labor.

"THE DOMINION"
Steam Washing Boiler.

THIS Washing Boiler operates upon purely scientific principles. It is self-acting, and dispenses entirely with labor and the wear of clothes. The hot suds and steam, by the action of fire, are driven up through the clothes, poured upon the clothes, and forced through the fabric with astonishing rapidity, cleansing it perfectly without rubbing. It has been thoroughly tested, and pronounced unequalled as a clothes washer by those who have used it. All fabrics, from the finest laces to the best blankets, can be washed perfectly and with ease without the washboard. For flannels it is invaluable, as the rubbing, rolling and pressing process must necessarily full them more or less. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Washing will no longer be a hardship, and washing-day a terror and dread to housewives. The invention can be used in any boiler, and the low price of the article places it within the reach of every family.

☞ Ladies are requested to give it a trial, and if it don't give satisfaction, to return it.

The Boilers can be had at the stores of THOMAS LANNIN and JAMES STEVENSON and from the undersigned, who have purchased the right for the County of Peterborough.

DARLEY'S
Arabian Heave Remedy and Conditive Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

THE LOVE KNOT.

Tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied her raven ringlets in:
But not alone in the silken snare
Did she catch her lovely floating hair:
For, tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied a young man's heart within.

They were strolling together up the hill,
Where the wind comes blowing merry and chill;
And it blew the curls a frolicsome race,
All over the happy peach-coloured face,
Till, nodding and laughing, she tied them in,
Under her beautiful, dimpled chin.

And it blew a colour, bright as the bloom
Of the prettiest fuschia's tossing plume,
All over the cheeks of the prettiest girl
That ever imprisoned a romping curl,
Oh, in tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied a young man's heart within.

Steeper and steeper grew the hill:
Madder, merrier, chillier still
The Western wind blew down, and played
The wildest tricks with the little maid,
As, tying her bonnet under her chin,
She tied a young man's heart within.

O, Western Wind! do you think it was fair
To play such tricks with her floating hair?
To gladly, gleefully do your best
To blow her against the young man's breast,
Where he so gladly tckled her in,
And kissed her mouth and dimpled chin?

"I say, why do you not admire my daughter?" asked a proud mother of a gentleman. "Because," he replied, "I am no judge of paintings." "But surely," replied the lady, not in the least disconcerted by this rude reflection, "you never saw an angel that was not painted."

A gentleman called to see a lady, and was told that she was out, although he saw the lady's head reflected in a mirror placed opposite the open door. One hour after he met the lady at the house of a friend, and observed, "I called at your house just now, but had not the pleasure of seeing you." "I am very sorry, but I had to go out in great haste," was the reply.—"In such great haste, madam," said he, "that I suppose you left your head behind you, as I saw it in the glass." "It is very possible," she replied, "for I am so absent."

Permanent Improvements.

Multitudes of farmers and their families are satisfied with their present home but many others want to move. They are looking West or South, and are ready to take a good offer and clear out. The result of this is, that they do not half take care of their farms they are on, and if they sell at all, they will not get half the price they might. We say then, wherever you are, make the surroundings as attractive as possible. Make permanent improvements, good buildings, good fences, walls, etc., lay underdrains, reclaim swamps, and in short, work as if you was going to live in one place all your life, and your children after you. So you will have the comfort as you go along, of seeing everything improving, and such investments are safe and usually pay a good interest if not annually, they certainly increase the value of the farm. But do not let any work upon the farm, nor the material welfare of yourself and family lead to the neglect of the moral and intellectual.

The Rights of the Ratcatcher.

BY RED DUNTLINE.

What are his rights? Let them be told:
To arm the murderer's hand;
To make the midnight robber bold;
To light the incendiary brand;
To start the starving orphan's tears;
To raise afresh the widow's curse;
To shade the sunset of man's years,
And even make the vilest worse.
To lead the nation's youth astray;
To tempt to kill and to destroy;
On human wretchedness to prey;
To cancel every human joy;
To blast each strong, vigorous tree,
Which rears aloft its manly crest;
To blacken every destiny,
Which but for him might have been blest.
His rights! The very fiends of hell
Have rights as good as his to claim!
His rights! No tongue or pen can tell
One half his wrongs or paint his shame.
His rights! It makes grim Satan sneer,
The special pleading of his friends,
In their profound debates to hear,
While working out his fiendish ends.
By all the glories of the past—
By all our sires have ever done
To make the nation great at last—
The purest, freest 'neath the sun—
Awake, ye people! up and arm,
And battle in this holy cause!
Dispel the Rum-fiend's cursed charm,
And call aloud for temperance laws!

Injuries to the Horse's Foot.

The foot is frequently injured by a horse picking up a nail in travelling, or a piece of glass or other hard body entering the sole or frog, and penetrating to the sensitive parts. The danger to be apprehended from these injuries will greatly depend on the situation of the puncture. If penetrating deeply, and close to the coffin joint, it is often attended with very serious results. Acute inflammatory action takes place in this joint, and thus gives rise to severe constitutional symptoms. Whenever the sensative structures are injured the horse shows lameness, which gradually increases, and matter soon forms, causing great pain. These symptoms may be produced without the substance, being lodged in the sensitive parts, and they also frequently follow in cases where the nail or other offending body has been removed, and the sole not thaned properly. Therefore, in all such injuries, it is advisable to remove the shoe and thin sole around the injured part. If matter has formed, it must have free exit, or sinuses will form, which frequently prove incurable. Poultices should be applied until the pain and fever are completely subdued. When proud flesh sprouts up, mild caustics should be applied, such as the chloride of antimony. In all cases where the sole becomes undermined or detached, the knife must be freely used. The after treatment consists in shoeing properly, and using a leather sole, with stuffing, to protect the injured and weakened parts.

The Waist of the Period.

Our old friend, Tight-lacing, has again made his appearance. Beaten back, for a time, probably more by fashion than by the spread of knowledge, has not been killed, but has only receded apparently for a better spring, for his victims are as numerous and pitiable as ever. The folly is one which has to be formerly found mainly in the drawing-room, but now it also fills the street. It is lamentable to observe at every turn a woman, young or old, who move forward in a stooping position, unable even to walk upright in consequence of the constraint upon the muscles of the back. If the evils of tight-lacing were confined to the distorted appearance which it never fails to produce, we might regret indeed to see the female form divine so defaced, but it would scarcely be in our province to comment upon it. But, as medical practitioners, we see its effects every day in the train of nervous and dyspeptic symptoms by which it is constantly indicated, and in the still more grave and eternal mischief of permanent character which is often caused by it. Until some little physiological knowledge is made a part of female education and is considered an "accomplishment," we suppose it is of little use to protest against the cruel injury to health which women thus inflict upon themselves. The matter is one that is "worse than crime—it is folly," for beauty is destroyed by the very process which is intended to increase it.—London Lancet.

OLD TREES.

The oldest tree known by naturalists, is the Great Dragon tree of Orotova, Teneriffe, which was blown down by a hurricane a few months since. It was a stately tree, seventy or eighty feet high, as early as A. D. 1602, and so old and remarkable a tree as to excite particular care and notice for its preservation. When it was destroyed, it was believed to be no less than 5000 years old. On the banks of the Senegal river, Africa, there are, or were in 1848, trees growing, sixty or eighty feet high and some thirteen feet in diameter, which are estimated by Adanson, the French naturalist, to be over 5000 years old. They are known as the Baobab or Adansonia. The English yew is another very long-lived tree. There are numbers of these trees in England and Scotland, which are believed to be from 1,400 to 3,000 years old. A cyprus tree in Oaxaca, Mexico, which forty years ago measured one hundred and twenty feet height, one hundred and seventeen in circumference, and which sheltered Fernando Cortes and his followers under its wide-spreading boughs about the year 1520, is supposed to be now 5,000 years old. And in California there are mammoth cypruses which stretch their heads up 300 or 400 feet, and which are believed to be some 3,000 years old. There are many other trees, in different parts of the world—single trees, famous in history, and groups of trees, as locusts, and oaks, and limes, and elms, and pines, nut trees, etc., which are either absolutely known, or believed to be along from 350, 440, 516, 570, 720, 800, 1,000, and so on up to 3,000 or more years old.

HINT ON COLTS.—Remember that the early part of the life of a colt determines in a great measure whether at maturity the animal will be highly valuable or worthless. Observe carefully and early how a colt carries his feet—his fore feet in particular. If he inclines to carry them too near the ground, turn him into a pasture which has a very rough surface. In this way he will get into the habit of raising his feet high. If he inclines to point his toes down so as to make him likely to trip, he ought to be shod early, and the shoes be made thick before and thin behind, to give him a habit of raising his toes. By all means use kindness and gentleness towards a colt so that he may become docile, fearless, and put confidence in his master.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but effectual purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its compositions. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Lowness and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaints and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

HEALTH! BEAUTY!!

Strong, Pure and Rich Blood — Increase of Flesh and Weight — Clear Skin and Beautiful Complexion, Secured to ALL.

RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

has made the most astonishing cures. So quick, so rapid are the changes the body undergoes under the influence of this truly WONDERFUL MEDICINE, that

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

Scrofula, Consumption, Syphilis, Chronic, Inherited and hereditary Diseases, in its many forms, Glandular diseases, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth, Tumors, Boils in the Stomach, and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous Diseases, from the Worst Erysipelas, Humors, Pimples, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tetters, Cancer, in the Womb, and all Womb Complaints, and Painful Discharges, Fright Diseases, Loss of Sperm and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of Radway's Sarsaparilla Resolvent, and a few days use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease, the potent power to cure them.

Not only does the Sarsaparillian Resolvent expel all known impurities, but in the cure of Chronic Sore Throat, Constitutional Syphilis and Syphilitic diseases, but it is the only positive remedy for Kidney Complaints, Urinary, and Womb discases, Bowel, Bladder, Dropsy, Stone in the Bladder, Retention of Urine, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are Brick dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with Substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid desire, with pain or soreness, and while these feelings exist, and where there is a prickling, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back, and along the Loins, in all these conditions Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent, aided by the application of Radway's Ready Relief to the Kidneys and Small of the Back, and the Bowels regulated with one or two of Radway's Regulating Pills per day, will soon make a complete cure. In a few days, the patient will be enabled to hold and discharge his water naturally without pain, and the Urine will be restored to its natural clear, and amber or sherry colour.

THE WASTES OF THE BODY

are supplied with new healthy and vigorous blood, that furnishes sound, strong nerves. Thus those depositions from WEAKENED DISCHARGES, either MALE or FEMALE, of the Womb, Uterus, or other organs, whether Leucorrhœa, Sperma, or Involuntary discharges of every kind, or from violence of "self-abuse," from the Genital Glands, or Venereal discharges, or Ulcers, or Sores, through the reparative process of Radway's Sarsaparillian are arrested, and the ruptured organs healed.

THE TRUE THEORY OF CURE.

Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies the system, through the blood, urine, sweat, and structure-making constituents, with Tissue-making, Flesh-making, Heat or Caloric, and Fat-making elements. All of its compounding, purifying, and strengthening. Purifies, Heals, Restores, and drives out of the System the Diseases of Decay and Consumption, ULCERATION, WHITE SWELLING, DROPSY, SYPHILIS, CANCERS, TUMORS, &c., are all of a scrofulous diathesis, and as such are within the curative range of the Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

1. That Scrofula, by whatever name designated, is the result of deposits from the blood, induced or caused by Chronic inflammations. That these deposits take place when the blood is poor, weak, watery, and incapable of holding in solution its proper constituents, or from the presence of some virus or poison in the blood, as Mercury, Calomel, Corrosive Sublimate, which is the Corrosive Chloride of Mercury, or other agents given in medicine, and which enter largely in the composition of Sarsaparillas, NOT ABSORBED OR CHANGED FROM THEIR NATURAL CONDITION.

2. That unless the deposits or nutriments are greater than the waste, that decomposition and decay will supervene, and the powers of life become exhausted.

3. That the dying body cannot be rebuilded on any treatment of medication that exhausts the system, or fails to nourish the blood, that is the fluid through which the vital forces are preserved, and on which the growth of the body depends.

4. That Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent supplies a want never before attained or known to exist in medicine; that this new vital principle in Chemical science, when first brought to such a perfect system of action as is obtained as follows:

1. Its great power in assimilating the food in its first stage of distillation in the process of digestion, as chyme and chyle with the nourishing elements of blood, separating from these liquids future and inert qualities before they are taken up by the lacteals and are formed into blood. Proven as we see that by its wonderful power it charges the system with the very essence or principle that forms the vital powers of the body, and its chemical action on the blood in its primitive and complete condition, separates every atom of refuse material or element, out of which the virus of disease is formed.

2. That the Blood thus prepared, and supplied with these nourishing properties, becomes somewhat rich and healthy and holds in solution its proper constituents, through the nourishment Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent imparts to the body with vital and healthy structure. Such is the transforming power the Sarsaparillian Resolvent exerts on the blood and juices of the system, that no virulent humors or poisons will exist by which deposits are made.

3. The rapidity which the Sarsaparillian carries out the circulation, and consequently its extensive powers through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids, secures the compliment conditions of each respective organs, establishing a healthy action throughout the system; through its action and power over the Secretions, the Liver receives its natural or proper allotment of bile; the Skin sweat; the Kidneys urea; and the Lungs carbonic acid, so that this wonderful medicine not only establishes health in the sick body, but preserves the system in health.

As we have shown the principle on which disease is formed, as well as the only possible theory of cure, we claim that the range of cure of Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent is unlimited, and that every disease that is of a Chronic, Scrofulous or Organic Diathesis, is properly within its special range.

in this Medicine consists in the combination of ingredients containing curative and nourishing properties that supply the blood and general system with such constituents which, in a condition of disease and depravity, it is deficient of, together with the combination of the several ingredients that form the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

If the compliment of OXYGEN, so exhausted from the atmospheric air, life would become extinct. So, when the blood becomes exhausted of its vital constituents, it deposits its tubercles and diseased humors in the body, and the elements of decay and decomposition supervene. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent is to the blood and general system what OXYGEN is to the atmospheric air; it supplies the life principle, and enables the blood to hold in solution all its natural constituents.

DAILY CHANGES

take place, for as the Sarsaparillian increases the strength and purity of the blood, all deposits are diminished, and where there are tubercles formed in the lungs, the further deposits are arrested, and those that are established or forming dislodged, expelled, exhausted or the portion of the diseased lung scattered, and the consumptive, scrofulous subject receives good, if not sound, health.

BLIND LADY CURED.

Gravel, Dyspepsia, Sore Legs, Bleeding from the Lungs, Cured.

Mr. GEORGE MORTIMER, a commercial traveller, in Canada West, writes us, under date of April 17, 1870, from Woodstock:

"The SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT is in great demand, and working wonders. Mr. HOAG, of Strasfordville, merchant, told me of a case where a woman WAS BLIND, but, by the use of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT, can now see to read. She would give a certificate, but does not wish to be bothered with people writing. Hundreds call to see her. The cure is regarded as wonderful.

"Messrs. WHITE & SCOTT, principal druggists here, inform me of a person of note—high social standing—who for years was afflicted with DYSPEPSIA and GRAVEL, who has been entirely cured by RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT."

Mr. HOAG reports another case of Chronic Sore Leg, that resisted all other advertised medicines, cured by a few bottles of SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

"Mr. JONATHAN FERGUSON, of Widder Station, cured by one bottle, of Bleeding from the Lungs, Nights Sweats, Threatened Consumption.

"In every town I visit I hear of wonderful cures by the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT. For every kind of Humor, Sore, Skin Eruptions, and all weakening discharges, the people need it, and become cured: so with Fits, Scrofula, White Swelling, Sore Heads and Eyes, Nose and Mouth, all kinds of Sores, this wonderful remedy acts so powerfully on the blood that all who take it become strong, clear, and healthy. "Commercial Traveller."

To Messrs. CHAMBERLAIN & SILLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.
Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.
Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.
I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Who would not be beautiful? Who would not add to their beauty? What gives that marble purity and distingue appearance we observe upon the stage, and in the city belle? It is no longer a secret. They use Hagan's Magnolia Balm. Its continued use removes tan, freckles, pimples and roughness, from the face and hands, and leaves the complexion smooth, transparent, blooming and ravishing. Unlike many cosmetics, it contains no material injurious to the skin. Any Druggists will order it for you, if not on hand, at 50 cts. per bottle.

THE RUM MANIAC.
A SOLILOQUY.

"Say, Doctor, may I not have rum,
To quench this burning thirst within?
Here on this cursed bed I lie,
And cannot get one drop of gin.
I ask not health, not even life—
Life! what a curse its been to me!
I'd rather sink in deepest hell,
Than drink again in misery."

"But Doctor, may I not have rum?
One drop alone is all I crave,
Grant this small boon—I ask no more—
Then I'll defy—yes, o'en the grave:
Then without fear, I'll fold my arms,
And bid the monster strike his dart;
To hate me from this world of woe,
And claim his own—this ruined heart."

"A thousand curses on his head,
Who gave me first the poisoned bowl;
Who taught me first the bane to drink,
Drink—death and ruin to my soul.
My soul! oh cruel horrid thought,
Full well I know thy certain fate
With what instruction, honor shrieks;
My spirit from that awful state."

"Lost—lost—I know for ever lost,
To me no ray of hope can come;
My fate is sealed: my doom is hell,
But give me rum: I must have rum."

"But Doctor, don't you see him there?
In that dark corner, low he sits,
See! how he shoots his firey tongue;
And at me firey brimstone spits."

"Go chase him out—look here he comes,
Now on my bed, he wants to stay;
He shant be there—O, God! oh God!!
Go away I say! go away! go away!!
Quick, chain me fast, and tie me down,
There now—he clasps me in his arms;
Down—down the window—close it tight;
Say, don't you here my wild alarms?"

Say, don't you see this demon fierce!
Does no one hear? will no one come?
Oh save me—save me—I will give—
But rum! I must have—will have rum."

* * * * * *

"One loud and piercing shriek was heard,
One groan rang out upon the air!
One sound, and one alone came forth,
The Victim's cry of wild despair."

LAURA.

"Don't tell Laura for the world," said a hoarse, frightened voice behind the screens of a liquor saloon.

I paused, steadied my tottering steps, looked and listened. Unable to move from the spot or utter a sound, I stood and saw what made my blood run cold, warned as I was with the fiery furnace of hell.

"Don't tell Laura," repeated the same voice, which to my horror I recognized as belonging to my own brother. Between him and the saloon proprietor lay the murdered form of Laura's husband, and Laura was the sweet young girl of womanly beauty and tender affection, who in the years gone by had loved Burton, my brother. One thing separated them forever He would not sign a pledge to leave off moderate drinking, though she plead with him day and night, with heartache and tears. "You ask too much, Laura," he said, and went out from the presence of an angel with a fiend in his bosom.

Walter Martin, a man of virtue, integrity and temperance, became Laura's husband; and on this spring morning he had been upon the street on business. Returning, he overtook Burton by the saloon, and urged him to enter. He would go however, and not wishing to leave him to battle alone with temptation, Walter said he would wait for him outside the door He waited a long time, till fearing a longer delay, he opened the door wide, saying, "Come Burton, come; Laura is waiting for me."

Giles Freppend, the saloon keeper, enraged at having his infernal abode exposed by the still open door, in the heat of drunken passion flew upon Walter, and dragged him in and shut the door,

He made a manly resistance. Burton's bloodshot eyes saw a knife gleaming in the air and Walter Martin lay dead at his feet. Consternation seized him.

Then I heard a groan, and with my ear to the screen that first agonized cry, "Don't tell Laura." He must have spoken to the boy behind the bar, for Freppend would not publish his own crime. "Ha! ha!" he laughed in his brutal way. "reckon she'll wonder why he don't come home. But why do you stand here like fools? Lately the fellow has money here with him. We will hide the body, and at the peril of your lives do you or Jack ever disclose this deed."

"Stay," said Burton, "you will not rifle the pockets of a dead man, and he your friend."

"None of that," angrily retorted Freppend. Pocket-book and love tokens were taken from Walter's pocket, an old carpet was roughly thrown around the still bleeding body.

When I had power to move, I shouted "murder," and called for help. A policeman near by paid no attention to me, thinking it a mere drunken whim of mine. I approached him, and in a few whispered words told the shocking story. He saw my white, earnest face and believed me. No time was to be lost. We spread the alarm, and soon the murderer was seized and rendered helpless.

Tenderly we laid out the body of the slaughtered man, composed the limbs, and smoothed back from his brow the locks that Laura loved to twine around her fingers.

O that day! It seemed as though the anguish of ages was condensed in that day of suffering Freppend cursed and swore.—Burton groaned and cried aloud—now in vehement tones that Walter might be restored, then sank down in grief and remorse "It will kill Laura, I know it will, and I did it. I wish I had never been born.—Don't tell Laura I did it," he said, so mournfully that even my hard heart was moved, and I told him he did not do the awful deed. "I know I didn't plunge the knife," he said," but I brought Walter in there. He told me not to go in; but I went. I wish ten thousand times I hadn't; but it is too late. Poor Laura! O that this day could be taken back."

I wished the same; and more than that, I would have given worlds to have striken from the records of time one half hour back in early life, when I offered the tempting cup to my brother, just once. I felt in a measure guilty of this awful crime. No one knew the pangs I suffered, and another was added when they said I must tell Laura.—I tried to fortify myself for the sad task.

As I approached the house, she ran down the steps and hastily asked, "Have you seen anything of my husband?"

What should I say? A mist gathered before my eyes, and I gasped "Yes."

"Where is he?" she asked. "What has happened? Is he hurt?"

"Worse than that," I said, following her into the house.

"They have'nt made him drunk, have they?" she said, her voice trembling violently, while every semblance of color fled from her face.

"Worse than that," she repeated. "Tell me quick, tell me all. I cannot endure suspense. Tell me."

"I cannot I cannot' I answered.', "Ask; Burton, he will tell you; I hear his step in the hall.

He came in, his pale, haggard face telling plainly of his remorse and agony. He knelt at her feet, and told her the sad story of his temptation and Walter's death.

She heard it all, then said faintly, "O Burton, when you cruiley dashed in pieces my hopes of happiness, I didn't think you would come again so soon to break my heart. Leave me now. No, wait. Sign that pledge; then go ont into the world and with your trust in God for help, keep it, you said once I asked too much. I, ask the same now. If you hesitate, look at the anguish you have brought upon the innocent. If you refuse, your last hope is gone forever."

Blinded by tears of repentance and grief, he signed the pledge. Beneath his name I wrote my own.

The body of Walter Martin was brought in, and then it was that Laura's tears fell like rain upon the marble brow, and closed lips that never again would speak loving words to her, or say "Laura is waiting for me."

This all seemed to me like a terrible dream—yes, a terrible dream, too terrible to be real; and I tried to awake as from a horrible nightmare, but the stern facts forced themselves upon me, and I was convinced of the fearful reality.

The funeral service was the most solemn occasion I ever attended. Poor Laura, so desolate and alone, seemed supported by unseen hands, and her spirit sustained by the heavenly grace that "is sufficient." Not a tear coursed down her pale cheeks; not a sigh escaped her as she took the last look upon the noble form of the cherished one she loved so well. She followed passively the hearse to the grave, saw the clods fall, and hear the minister say, "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes." Through the solemn service she remained apparently unmoved.

As she had lately moved to the city, and had no relatives near, I went home with her. She laid aside her bonnet and folded her shawl. She wandered all over the house, into every apartment, and then came into the room where I was sitting

"My light is gone out,' she said, and whispered something about Walter, Burton and me.

I spoke to her, but she heeded not; friends came in, but she saw them not. It was so touching to hear her faintly murmur, "Walter, my light is out. It is dark here; can't you bring me a light?"

I watched by her side for hours. Late in the evening she pointed upward, a serene smile played over her beautiful countenance, and she said, "A light, Walter; I see a light. Jesus says come. I'm—coming—to the—light." The smile lingered on the sweet face, the arms were folded over the still breast, and Laura was with Walter, where the light of eternal glory beams from the throne of God.

She was decked with roses, and laid away in the quiet tomb by the side of her husband. We strewed the graves with flowers, and wet them with tears. Never could we forget those two beautiful lives, sacrificed by intemperance.

From that hour I became a changed man, a temperance worker a and christian. My brothen Burton kept his pledge faithfully. When the temptation seemed to strong to be resisted, he thought of this terrible day, prayed for help, and help always came.

Through the mist of years I looked back to see what became of Freppend. He had his trial. He plead as his excuse his license to sell intoxicating drinks, and that he was intoxicated, and didn't know what he was doing. The law dealt with him far to lightly, and he afterwards again engaged in his soul-destroying traffic, till he was called to render his account to the final Judge.

Power of Parting Admonition

Mr. Wendell Philips tells the following: "As a mother stood by the garden-gate of a sunny morning, she said, 'Edward, they tell me—for I never saw the ocean—that the great temptation of the seaman's life is drink. Promise me before you quit your mothers house, you will never drink.' And he said (for he told me the story) 'I gave her the promise, and I went the broad globe over—Calcutta, the Mediterranean, San Francisco, the Cape of Good Hope, the North Pole and the South—I saw them all in forty years, and I never saw a glass filled with sparkling liquor that mother's form by the garden-gate on the green hillside of Vermont, did not rise before me; and to day, at sixty, my lips are innocent of the taste of liquor.' Was not that the sweet evidence of the power of a single word? Yes that was not half.

"For," said he, there came yesterday into my counting-room a man of forty, and and asked me; "Do you know me?" 'No' "Well said he, 'I was once brought drunk into your presence on shipboard. You were a passenger. The captain kicked me aside, you took me to your berth, and kept me there until I had slept off the intoxication. You then asked me if I had a mother. I said I never knew a word from her lips' You told me of yours at the garden-gate, and to day I am master of one of the finest packets in New York, and I come to ask you to come and see me."

How far that little candle throws its beams—that mother's words on the green hill side of Vermont! O God be thanked for the power of a single word.

A Good Wife.

The following sentences from Archbishop Seeker's 'Wedding Ring' are worth reading twice:—

Hasts thou a soft heart?—it is of God's breaking. Haste thou a sweet wife?—she is of God's making. The Hebrews have a saying, 'He is not a man that hath not a woman.' Though man alone may be good, yet it is not good that man should be alone. 'Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above.' A wife, though she is not a perfect she is a good gift, a beam darted from the Sun of mercy. How happy are those marriages where Christ is at the wedding! Let none but those who have found favor in God's eyes find favour in yours.

Husbands should spread a mantle of charity over their wives infirmities. Do not put out the candle because of the snuff.—Husbands and Wives should provoke one another to love; and they should love one another, notwithstanding provocations.—The tree of love should grow up in the midst of the family, as the tree of life grew in the garden of Eden. Good servants are a great blessing; good children a great blessing; but a good wife is the greatest blessing and such a help let him seek for for that lacks one; let him delight in that enjoys one

In Its True Light.

A laboring man, coming out of a gin-shop in London a few yew years ago, saw a carriage and a pair of horses standing near the door and two women, richly dressed came out of the building, the lower story of which was occupied as a dram shop, and were handed into the carriage by the proprietor of this "gin place." The laborer stepped back into the bar-rooom, and asked the owner, "Whose is that establishment?"—The man of gin replied, "It is mine, and my wife and daughter have gone out to ride." The laboring man bowed his head for a moment, and then looked up and said, with an energy that made the man of gin think his customer had a sudden attack of delirium; "I see it! I see it!" "See what?" "See where my wages for years have gone. I helped to pay for that carriage, and for the silks and laces and jewelry for your family; the money that I have earned, that I should have used to furnish my wife and children with a good home, good food and clothes, I have paid to you, and with my wages and the wages of other laboring men, you have supported your family in elegance and luxury. Hereafter my wife and children shall have the benefit of my labor, and I will endeavor to persuade my fellow workmen to do as I intend, with the help of heaven, to do hereafter, give up entirely the use of intoxicating liquors, and care for my own and remove them into a comfortable home, as soon as possible, save my wages; and you, man of gin, must then work or starve. I see it! I see it! The curse, and the remedy—the poison and the antidote."

Trifles.

Human judgment of events and incidents stands entirely outside the boundary of "cause and effect." The occurrence which marks the epoch of to-day perhaps as the thrilling of a whole life-time may have had its origin or birth of "cause" in the century preceding. The thought, the word, the act, of some human being in the remote ages put in motion a set of circumstances which are drifting on through time, and touching, colliding, overwhelming, and creating new chains of circumstances evermore. The thought which is breathed or acted in the living present may by its asymptotical relation to the unborn future may give shape and character to some mortal life now embosomed in the silence of coming years. As no particle of matter is lost or destroyed but merely changed by chemical processes, so human acts or human thoughts, which is father of the acts, are imperishable in their influence on human souls, or rather semi-divine souls. How vast then is thought! How eternal are acts? How important then that thoughts and acts, however thrifling, be governed by the eternal principles of right.

Pray With Your Children.

A young mother made it her daily practice to carry her little ones in supplication to the throne of grace, and yet complained of a want of faith and definiteness in asking for them the special influences of the Holy Spirit.

'Do you pray for each child seperate'y, and by name?' inquired the pastor.

'No, that has never been my habit,' was the reply.

'I think it of much importance, as a help to our faith, and to the clearness and intensity of our desires on their behalf. You pray with them, I trust, as well as for them?

'Sometimes I do, but not often.'

'Let me persuade you, then, to take your little son and daughter each separately to the place of prayer, and kneeling with them before the Lord, tell Him the name, the daily history, the special want of each, and see if your heart is not open to plead for them as you have never done before.'

Tears were in the eyes of the young mother, as she said with trembling lips, 'I'll try.'

As evening came she had not forgotten her promise, but as she saw that Sarah, her daughter, was unusually peevish, she thought it best to take her little son first to her chamber. Willie was a bright and pleasant boy of five years; and when his mother whispered her wish to pray with him, he gladly put his hand in hers and knelt by her side. As he heard his name mentioned before the Lord, a tender hush fell upon his young spirit, and he clasped his mother's fingers more tightly as each petition for his special need was breathed into his Father to Heaven. And did not the clinging of that little hand warm her heart to new and more fervent desire as she poured forth her supplication to the Hearer and Answerer of prayer!

When the mother and child rose from their knees, Willie's face was like a rainbow, smiling through tears.

'Mamma, mamma,' said he, 'I am glad you told Jesus My name; now He'll know me when I get to Heaven. And when the kind angels that carry little children to the Saviour take me and leave me in His arms, Jesus will look at me so pleasant, and say, 'Why, this is Willie Huston; his mother told me about him; how happy I am to see you, Willie.' Won't that be nice, mamma?'

Mrs Huson never forgot the scene. And when she was permitted to see not only her dear Willie and Sarah, but their children afterwards added to her family circle, each successively consecrating the dew of their youth to God, she did, indeed, feel that the pastor's plan was 'the most excellent way.' So she resolved to recommend it to praying mothers by telling them this touching incident.

Economy of Fodder.

The corn crop having partially failed in a great many places, and a great deal of hay being damaged by the protracted wet weather in summer, there is need of economy of fodder in order to bring live stock in good condition through the winter and spring. Some people think they economise fodder by giving animals only half enough to keep them in thriving condition, but the saving of provender is counterbalanced by the loss in the growth and vigor of the animals. The true way of economising fodder is to turn every part of it to good account, by preparing it in the best way—chopping up hay, straw, cornstalk, etc. The rigors of winter commenced earlier than usual last year, and there is no telling how long they may continue. Farmers should begin in time to prepare provender carefully for stock of every kind, giving plenty to all, but wasting none by neglect. A steaming apparatus for preparing food for stock will be a very great assistance in this work.

The King and the Scotch Clerk.

The Earl of Rochester being in company with King Charles II., his queen, chaplain, and some ministers of state, after they had been discoursing on business, the king suddenly said, "Let our thoughts be unbosomed from the cares of the state and give us a glass of generous wine that pheareth, as the Scripture saith, both God and man."

The queen, hearing this, stedenly said she thought there could be no such text in the Bible: and that the idea was little less than blasphemy.

The king replied that he was not prepared to turn to the chapter and verse, but he was sure he had met it in his Scripture reading.

The chaplain was applied to, and he was of the same opinion as the queen.

Rochester, suspecting the king to be right, and being no friend to the clergy, slipped out of the room to inquire among the servants for a Bible. The servants named David, the Scotch cook, who, they said, always carried a Bible about him. David being called, recollected the text, and where to find it. Rochester told him to be in waiting, and returned to the king.

The text was still the topic of conversation.

Rochester proposed to call in David, who, he said, was well acquainted with the Scriptures.

David was called, and being asked the question, produced his Bible and read the text; it was from the parable of the trees in the wood going forth to appoint a king over them—Judges IX. 13. "And the vine said unto them, Shall I leave my wine which cheereth both God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees?"

The king smiled, the queen asked pardon and the chaplain blushed.

Rochester asked the chaplain if he could interpret the text now it was produced? He was mute; the Earl therefore applied to David for the exposition. The cook immediately replied,

"How much wine cheereth a man(looking Rochester full in the face) your lordship knoweth; (no doubt David had seen him fou' [tipsy] or drafft, as we say in Scotland, often); and that it cheereth God I beg leave to say, that under the Old Testament dispensation there were meat offerings and drink offerings—the latter connected of wine, which was typical of the blood of the Mediator, which, by a metaphor, was said to cheer God, as he was well pleased in the way of salvation that he had appointed; whereby his justice was satisfied, his law fullilled his mercy reigned, his grace triumphed, all his perfections harmonized, the sinner was saved, and God in Christ glorified."

The king looked astonished, the queen shed tears, the chaplian looked confounded, and Rochester applauded. After some very severe reflections upon the doctor, Rochester gravely moved that his majesty would be pleased to send the chaplian into the kitchen to turn cook, and he would make his cook his chaplian.—Scrap Book.

Confession of Murder.

An extraordinary confession was made known on Monday at Bow Street. A man named George Dyer, 47 years of age, and who describes himself as a clerk in a city office, gave himself up to the police, stating that about twelve years ago, whilst working in a portion of the Australian gold diggings, he met with one George Wilson, an English sailor. They were both single-handed and each wanted a mate, and Wilson joined him (prisoner) in working his claim. They got on very well together for nearly a month, when a quarrel arose between them in his (prisoner's) tent, as to the quantity of gold realised. It led to recriminations. Wilson drew his sheathed knife. To defend himself he (prisoner) took his spade and struck down with it. He cut his head clean open and he fell down dead immediately. Prisoner threw his body into a deep well.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1870.

Parliamentary.

There is now some pretty warm discussions at Ottawa, arising out of the address and the complication at Red River. There is an evident dissatisfaction among even the supporters of John A., and there is just as great alarm in the minds of John A. and Hincks.

Sir A. T. Galt has declared his disapprobation of the manner in which John A. has filled the vacancies in the Cabinet, and declared in the House that the government "was a failure," and that he will join with Reformers to overthrow it.

Mr. Cartwright declares he is ready to join with the opposition to remove a government which is so incapable of managing the business of the country. John A. stares at these statements.

Mr. Huntington is also down on the government for their management of Railways, Finances and Nor-west bungling, and is ready also to join to remove the present abuses, arising out of the presence of men who, by too long a tenure of power, are now abusing it, and by their unheard of acts of folly and mismanagement are bringing the Dominion into disrepute at home and abroad.

What but the name of the present government drove the Winnipeggers into revolt, and the fear of being brought under a system that stinks in the nostrils of Canadians themselves. Mr. Howe has made his explanations in the House of Parliament, and in doing so has only proved by his tergiversation and partial acknowledgment that he is responsible for the rebellion at Red River.

Mr. Howe visited Fort Garry and found dissatisfaction and discontent at being handed over to the Canadian authorities, yet he never uttered a word of palliation; never tried to remove the ill will that existed, nor did he utter a word of reconciliation. He did, however, speak of "better terms," as obtained by Nova Scotia, and of the possibility of the Winnipeggers obtaining these better terms if they should hold out. And, yet, this is one of the advisers of Sir John Young, one of Her Majesty's Canadian Ministers. Mr. McDougall read a letter in which he pointed this out to John A. and predicted the result.

How long will such men disgrace our country with their petty spleen, and outrageous mismanagement of our affairs.

It is hinted too, that there is a deficiency in the Finances. How could it otherwise be? When we consider the manner in which the public money is squandered, by such men as we have, buying up support, for in no other way could they hope to retain office an hour.

We have also the statement that J. A. would not consent to admit two Reformers to take the places of McDougall, Rowland, and Blair. Only one, Mr. Aitkens would be admitted. John A's Tory friends would not consent.

This farce of a Coalition is therefore at an end. During the last election contest we again and again pointed out the hollowness of John A's pretended coalition, well knowing that the whole affair was a ruse to blind the eyes of liberal Reformers. There were no parties then. The "no party" cry had its effect; peace-loving men sought to bury the hatchet, but John A. and the Tories had no such ideas; they are always one. Our weak-kneed Reformers now see the result—not a single Reformer of any shade in the Cabinet. Hincks appealed to the Tories to elect him. Aikens has no constituency, and has been entrapped by the immaculate creature at Kingston.

Will Reformers now open their eyes to their position, and prepare themselves for the coming struggle. John A. McDonald's government will not live long. They will endeavor to blind the people of Ontario again; but surely 14 or 16 years of the misrule of a party should be enough to induce Reformers of every shade to rally round their great principles, and show at the approaching election that the land is sick of curruption, and that they will be taught a lesson by the general rejection of all Tories, Coalitionist, Independents and Corruptionists.

We have had a trial of these no party men. What have they done for us? They have voted through thick and thin for John A. and John Sandfield, right or wrong—just or unjust they have been unceasing in their attachment to those men whom the country loathes. Let us look out for good men and true, and have them ready that when an opportunity offers, we may remove the reproach we have had to endure during the present parliament of Ontario and at Ottawa.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN.—A public tea meeting in aid of the funds of the Bible Christian Church, Peterborough, will be held in the vestry, on Tuesday evening next, first of March. Tea to be served at six p. m. After tea, the Rev. G. Webber, of Cobourg, will deliver his popular lecture on Oliver Cromwell. A good choir will enliven the meeting with vocal and instrumental music. Tickets 25 cents, children 15 cents, to be had at the door.

SIR A. T. GALT AND THE GOVERNMENT.—Le Pays says that five or six of the ministers were observed taking notes during the delivery of Sir A. T. Galt's speech on Thursday evening last, and that their outward aspect bore testimony to the trouble and excitement within. It even appears that Sir John A. McDonald turned pale when Sir Allux. declared positively that a change of Government was necessary.

The Irish Land Question.

At the present moment, this question is agitating Ireland, and exciting the attention of English Statesmen; and owing to the peculiar state of things in that unhappy island, is a question not likely to be easily settled. The troubles of Ireland are not caused by the Land System, or Tenant System, or Church Rates, but by the unhappy state of the people induced by men who should act otherwise; and can only be overcome when these men cease to trouble the nation, or when the influence ceases; and perhaps English Statesmen are now reaping the reward of their liberality, in educating a class of men whose principles are at enmity with the principles of the British Constitution. But if the entire Island were given over to the tenant holders, Ireland would just be as troublesome as it is, and the majority of the people as dissatisfied.

We do not wish it to be understood that we are opposed to justice being done to the Irish people, not at all. Let every injustice be removed, let every reasonable grievance be remedied if possible, let the Island have free Institutions, such as other nations enjoy, but even then don't expect that there will be no more complaining.—Everything British will just be as hateful, and every Colonist not able to trace his name from some ancient Celtic patronimis would be considered as unworthy of a home or place on their sacred soil. Notwithstanding all this, let Ireland have justice at the hands of the Landlords.

SIR JOHN YOUNG'S CASE.

The most of our readers are aware of the circumstances of this case. In 1829, the Rev. M. Bell, leased some land from Sir John Young, for the term of his, Mr. Bell's natural life, or 21 years. In 1869 Mr. Bell died, having held the land nearly 40 years. The rent at first was about £45,-5s. It was afterwards abated to £35,3s,4d and remained at that rate till his death.—He however willed the lands to his sisters and niece, as if he had a right after the expiration of the terms of the lease, namely after his death. It being near Sir John Young's residence, it was proposed to keep part for Sir John's own use, and lease the remainder in park lots. Sir John approved of the plan, but from a letter to Mr. Chambers his agent, he says:—I approve of your suggestion about this place; leave the cottage and garden with the sister during her life; deal liberally with her, but get the remainder of the holding and divide it into town parks, but keep the meadow for me, also the small piece required for planting. It would be better to pay Miss Bell an annuity, in addition to the house, &c., than let the farm pass to the parties you name. If she is in poor circumstances I will do so willingly, but get possession of the land and meadow.

Sir John Young therefore appeared to deal liberally with Miss Bell, and Mr. Chambers his agent was carrying out his instructions, which of course, were according to his own suggestions. The case was tried in Court on the ejectment of Mr. Chambers, and was decided in favour of Sir John Young.

It is however an admitted principle between landlord and tenant, that the occupant or lessee at the time of expiration of any lease, shall have the first right to release, provided he has regularly paid all rents heretofore, but such a principle is not allowed in any other country under the sun.

The Lessee too often divides and subdivides his small farm amongst his sons, until each one does not possess more than a good garden; and the landlord permits this to go on from time to time, instead of stamping out such a process, and compel young men to go to countries where they can get land enough for themselves and sons, and obtain abundance instead of a miserable pittance.

There are also innumerable holydays, fairdays, "Patrons," and innumerable other days spent in drinking, dancing idleness, and often worse undertakings, not heard of in other countries; all of which tend to penury, and discontent at the end. If these were removed, better days for Ireland might be expected; but never till party hatred ceases, industry increases, fairs, "wakes," "patrons" are banished, shall Ireland be happy, prosperous or contented.

Wesleyan Social.

On Tuesday evening, our Wesleyan Methodist friends had another of their very interesting "socials," in aid of their building fund. There was a very fair attendance, and a very pleasant time. Recitations, vocal and instrumental pieces, and readings were given.

T. M. Fairbairn, Esq., read a very beautiful piece on the expected advent of Christ, in a very touching and graceful style. Mr. Mason recited a piece admirably.

Mrs. Wilson favored with several pieces on the piano. Mr. Rackett with a solo.—Miss Shaw, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Wilson, sang a beautiful piece, and Mrs. Dumble also favored with a piece on the piano.

After singing "God Save the Queen," Rev. Mr. Davis pronounced the benediction.

These socials and their objects are worthy of patronage, and as there will be amusements sought out, these are more worthy of attendance than too many that are freely patronized. The sociality and associations at these meetings are as free from objections as can be looked for, and the readings, recitations and pieces are all calculated to instruct and elevate.

Our report of Tuesday evening's proceedings are meagre, as we were unable to be present the whole time.

BIBLE SOCIETY RECORDER.—We have a copy of the Recorder before us. It is neatly printed, and contains a record as its name implies, of the work of the society in Canada. Three pages are taken up with letters of recommendatio of the Rev. John Gemley for permanent Secretary. Mr. Gemley is no doubt well qualified for the position. The Bible Recorder is to be issued every second month. Mr. Gemley is the Editor. We trust the work may prosper in the end whereunto it is set forth.

CONSUMPTIVES, try Dr. J. Briggs' Throat and Lung Healer. It will relieve and cure you.—For all diseases of the Throat, Chest and Lungs, nothing can surpass its beneficial effects. Sold by Druggists.

Editorial Items.

There has been another shock of earthquake at San Francisco.

PERSONAL.—We notice with pleasure that Mr. John Green has been admitted to the Bar at the late law examination, Toronto.

We are pleased to learn that Dr. Kincaid has received the appointment of Jail Surgeon, rendered vacant by the decease of Dr. McNabb.

THE weather has been cold and stormy since our last, true to the idiosyncrasies of the season,—the change was rapid.—The roads to town, we believe, are badly drifted and blocked up.

CORRECTION.—In our last issue the compositor made a mistake in putting a "v" where an "n" should have been. In consequence the word Turner became changed into Turver, in our list of Insolvent notices. We hasten to make the correction. Our readers will see how easily such a mistake could be passed over.

We have received several copies of the "Mainland Guardian," of British Columbia., and also some private letters. The feeling there is strongly in favor of Confederation with Canada. A few United States' citizens, stopping in British Columbia for a short time, will, perhaps, oppose it, but the leading men are in favor of it. We hope a second Red River affair will not be made in British Columbia.

A NEW PAPER IN BOBCAYGEON.—The "Independent" is the title of a new paper published in Bobaygeon. The first number is now before us, and has a very neat appearance. As its name (Independent) implies, the publisher declares it will be the organ of no party; that is, it is ready for annexation, for independence, we are told, means annexation, but annexation to whatever party pays best. There is room in Canada for variety of opinions, and the Independents have as good a right to speak as others. We trust this young enterprise will remain independent and prosper.

Sudden Death.

On Saturday last, Mr. Robert Wallace, of Buckhorn, died suddenly, in the house of a friend, in the Township of Cavan.

The deceased had been in Millbrook for some days, and got on the "spree," to use a mild term. On Saturday morning, he left Millbrook, with the intention, it is believed, of going to see some of his early associates and neighbors, and called on one or two of them. About eleven o'clock a.m. he stopped at the house of Mr. Wm. Francey, saying he was unwell, but remarked that he would give anything for a glass of whisky. To satisfy him, we understand, some whisky was obtained, and Wallace got some of it, and was put to bed. Shortly after he fell out of bed, and getting up, got a little more whisky, and went back to bed again. Mr. Francey, having gone to see after his affairs outside, returned and went to see him, but found him dead.

By request, Coroner Ayres, of Millbrook, held an inquest on Sunday, when facts in accordance with the above were elicited, three or four witnesses stating that he had been on the spree for some days before his decease.

The jury returned a verdict of "Died from excessive drinking." One more!

Town Council.

The Council met on Monday evening.—Present—His Worship, the Mayor, and Messrs. Smith, Kennedy, English, Helm, Edmison, O'Beirne, Rutherford, Toole, Doharty.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read over and confirmed.

Communications were read from Alexander Robertson, Esq., Mayor of Belleville, informing the Mayor that an effort is being made to revive the charter of the Grand Junction Railway, and requesting him to lay the matter before the Council, suggesting that a committee of the Council be named to co-operate with the committee appointed in Belleville; from the License Inspector, asking the Council to appoint another License Inspector; from Henry Calcutt, Esq., asking for money to aid in boring for salt.

Petitions were read from Wm. Chambers, and others, asking for a reduction of the price paid for a certificate of a Tavern License. From D. Faucher, Mrs. Caisse, Geo. Mitchell and Wm. Phillips, asking for a Tavern License for the current year, were all referred to the License Committee.

Moved by Mr. O'Beirne, seconded by Mr. Smith, — That the Mayor, Messrs. Smith, Toole and Stevenson be a committee to co-operate with the Belleville Committee, in reference to the proposed Junction Railway.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Kennedy.—That the petition of Mr. Hill, be referred to a special committee consisting of Messrs. Helm, Kennedy, Morrow, Toole and the mover.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Toole, seconded by Mr. Rutherford,—That the communication of Mr. Calcutt be referred to a special committee consisting of Messrs. Edmison, Smith, Helm, Stevenson and the mover, with instructions to investigate the merits of the matter and report to this Council at next meeting.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, a By-law appointing an Inspector for Licenses, Buildings, Streets and Bridges, Health and Collector of Taxes, was read a first time.

This By-law was read a second and third time and passed. The blank being filled with the name of Mr. Carlile at a salary of $500 a year.

On motion of Mr. Stevenson, a By-law to amend the Market By-law was put through all its stages and passed.

On motion of Mr. Kennedy, seconded by Mr. Helm, Messrs. Helm, Smith, Stevenson and Toole were appointed a committee to consider By-law No. 237, and suggest such changes in it as they may think proper and necessary.—Carried.

This By-law refers to the powder magazine.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Doharty,—That the Clerk be directed to have a board properly printed, showing the fees to be paid on all articles brought to the Market, and have the same placed in a conspicuous place in the Market. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Toole,—That the Clerk of this Council be directed to have gas fixtures erected for the use of this chamber and the Mayor's office, on the best terms possible.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. O'Beirne,—That the Clerk of this Council and Mr. Carlisle be empowered to contract for all plank and scantling necessary for this year.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Doharty, seconded by Mr. Stevenson,—That the Market Tolls be let by tender this year and that Messrs. Stevenson, Toole, Helm, Edmison and the mover be a committee to decide with the Clerk on the acceptance of tenders for the Market Tolls.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Smith, seconded by Mr. English,—That the time for receiving plans and specifications for the water works be extended to the first day of May; and that Messrs. Stevenson, English, Toole, Helm, the Mayor and the mover be a committee to consider the plans to be adopted.—Carried.

The Council adjourned for three weeks.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Allandale.

On the 2nd inst., while the eldest son of Mr. Chase, was returning to his work during the dinner hour, he observed fire issuing through the roof of the saw-mill.—Without a moments reflection he hastened to the spot, remembering that a great quantity of dry shavings were directly under the fire, by removing these, and with the assistance of several of the neighbours, the fire was extinguished. It appears the fire was caused by the soot taking fire in the smoke pipe, which overheated to such a degree, as to cause the roof through which it passed to burn. Had the fire prevailed, not only the saw-mill and hoop-factory would have been consumed, but the flour mill, oat mill, foundry buildings, tannery, and post office, would have been laid in ashes. This is not the first time the destruction of the village has been threatened by fire.

A few days later the youngest son of Mr. James Bartliff, had one of his feet nearly severed from the leg, by a circular saw, in the hoop factory. It appears he was sitting on the stand in which the saw is situated, and by some means lost his balance, which brought his foot in contact with the saw.

No later than Friday last, Mr. Thomas Aitkin, while tending the same fatal machine, lost the fore figer of his right hand. Carelessness cannot in any way be attributed to Mr. Aitkin.

CURLIANA.

A grand curling match, North vs. South, was played at Harwood, on Wednesday, the 16th inst. The Northern team was made up of two rinks from Peterboro' and two from Keene; the Southerners boasted of two rinks from Cobourg and the same number from Baltimore. The day was so fine and the ice in such excellent condition that the most fastidious curler could have had nothing to desire. After a spirited play of about three hours, upon summing up the scores, the South was declared the victor by twenty shots.

Below we give the scores and an analysis of play.

MOCK-SUNS.—That beautiful phenomenon, known as Mock-Suns, was to be seen at Minden and vicinity on the afternoon of the 19th inst., at about 3.30 o'clock. The back-ground was a clear deep blue sky, supported underneath by a cloudy horizon. Apparently due West, amid this azure dome appeared the Sun in his quiet glory, but attended North and South by other Suns of fair brilliancy, and in a right line with the solar orb. Also, directly above, appeared two small arcs of rainbow character, showing the chief colors of the common bow; but deeper and less defined.—These bows were in the ratio of one to three, the larger being outmost, with their concaves towards the zenith. Besides, appeared a circle of like colors, and reaching from the outermost small arc, so that the convex parts of the two coincided, extending its circumference to near the two mock-suns down to the horizon, where a portion of it was imperceptible. These phenomena lasted for nearly half an hour, varied by passing vapours, when all vanished in a mass of dusky white clouds.

The Montreal "Witness" and the "Review."

To the Editor of the Examiner.

SIR,—In my last, I called upon the Review for proof of the charge it made against the Witness, and in place of supplying it, there appears an officious writer, who undertakes to do what the Review it appears could not. This "another reader" must be a "green'un," or he must suppose that I am verdant, if I accept such a miserable apology for proof. If the Review has requested you Mr. "Another Reader" to prove its slander, I don't want you to roll the burden upon me to prove it. Neither you nor your friend can prove what you say; if you can, supply it, and I will make the apology; otherwise, it must accept the position of being a false accuser. Let us have no side issues of "compliments," "influences," "champions" or such like, but positive proof of the assertion, that the Witness is a fair weather friend.

Yours, as before,

A READER OF THE "WITNESS."

Peterborough, 23rd. Feby., 1870.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

Knox College, Feby. 17th. 1870.

SIR,—Being called upon for my opinion relative to the discrepancy existing between the Township Clerk and Mr. Collins, Collector; I beg to state that having examined the Roll for 1869, I found that the amount collected by Mr. Collins, corresponded with the aggregate of the amounts opposite the respective names on the Roll. However the misunderstanding may have arisen, Mr. Collins' sterling honesty should be a sufficient guarantee against anything like embezzlement on his part.

I am your
Obd. Servant,
J. CAMPBELL.

To the Editor of the Peterboro Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Mr. Collins, in his last communication, very conveniently passes over all the denials I gave the several charges which he preferred against me; not a word of explanation about the several untruths with which I charged him; silent about the Sabbath communication; no denial of the circumstances under which I stated, I undertook to look over the Township accounts; nor of the amount I stated as due, nor to the manner in which it was found out. No, no, but instead thereof, we have him showing who cannot be Auditors which is granted, but that none of those named cannot become correctors is absurd; else it is a mere farce for the statutes to state that the Council shall finally audit the accounts. He then launches out into his usual bravado, whilst descanting upon the additional laurels he has gained, and concludes in regular auctioneering style.—Sold again. To the gifts already possessed, he now arrogates the power of performing miracles, reading the thoughts of others, and expounder of Municipal law. What next? That he is a man of ability, &c., (to use his own words) few will deny, and none more readily admit than himself, but that I used my pen to exalt him before the public as such, Mr. Amanuensis be careful, is what I disclaim, and more particularly for having done so during the last general elections, when the only thing I would have chronicled about him was his attempted pugilistic encounter at the Town Hall, Monaghan, during one of the day's of the election.

Hitherto, like "Punch," modesty has, perhaps, been the prevailing feature, or at least one of the prevailing features of his character, but as no one has come forward to acknowledge his varied public services, he has at last crossed the "Rubicon," though very reluctantly let us suppose, and now determined to lay aside modesty, he has presented himself with a testimonial of himself, got up by himself, for the gratification of himself, by himself, as a slight mark of esteem for himself, of what is thought of himself, by himself, for qualities which none but himself appears to have discerned.

And now, Sir, as there is nothing in his last, beyond what has been already advertised, to which requires notice, I shall with your permission make the following resume:—

In the month of February last, the Auditors examined the Township accounts and reported a balance of $318.97 due by collector. This sum was paid soon afterwards, when all was supposed to be correctly balanced. Indeed Mr. C. professed to be so certain about it that he appeared to think it was next to impossible that any error could be found. But what was the result? An examination of the Roll disclosed that the collector had, in three several places, deducted sums, amounting to $22.90, from those rated thereon, and again taken credit for the same amount when settling with the Treasurer, otherwise there would have been no necessity for the Auditors second report, certifying the sum named above as then due the Municipality. Under these circumstances then, and in view of the above facts, I am convinced that there is not in the Township a man who would show such an absolute want of common sense, as to parade the matter before the public in the way he has done, unless the ex-Collector of North Monaghan, who, for the purpose of cloaking his mistake, has taken refuge under the miserable subterfuge, that an order which he gave to the Treasurer over twelve months ago, on which was writen: Received payment, H. Collins, was not credited to him, but the timely admission of which by the Treasurer has enabled him to pay his indebtedness, besides leaving a balance of $17.10 in his favour, for which he should thank me, as had it not been for the re-examination of the accounts he would have lost that sum, and the Township $22.90. Mr. C., as well as the Council, asked me to perform a certain duty, which duty was afterwards found to be correct, and of which I took no public notice further than publishing what was recorded in the minutes of the Council of the 23rd of October, and for this I am so wantonly attacked.

He has appealed to the Auditors to settle the matter. They have already done so in their report already adverted to. And now, Sir, as you have had four communications addressed to you on the subject, and are cognizant of the whole case, just be kind enough to say, if by the evidence before you, Mr. Collins has sustained the charges of my having been sold, &c., &c., which he more than once so vauntingly repeated, or if under the circumstance in which the Council were placed, that you consider I did anything unbecoming my position as Clerk of the Municipality.

I am yours, &c.,
WM. WOOD.
T. Clerk.

February, 14th, 1870.

P.S.—Since writing the above you have informed me that you would not notice the subject editorially, but that I have your authority to say that, had you been placed in my position and noticed the mistake, you would most certainly have pointed it out.

W. W.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—We see you have inserted a communication from Mr. John Tully containining a violent attack against our Clerk and against us. We think you would not have done so if you had known all the circumstances. Mr. Tully, on the eve of nomination in December last, published a Fly sheet, charging us with crimes of which we were wholly innocent, and misrepresented us to the ratepayers. We felt forced to defend ourselves and reply, or by silence admit the charges. As most of the blame is cast upon our Clerk, as being the instigator of our fly sheet, we, in justice to him, say that more than once he advised us strongly not to issue it. We have not decided to make any reply to his last attack, but request you to publish the enclosed fly sheet, so that the public may have both sides of the question.

TO THE MUNICIPAL ELECTORS OF NORTH MONAGHAN.

GENTLEMEN,—Mr. John Tully, above all persons in the Township, appears to have an itching propensity for seeing his name in print, and so laughable are his statements that it rep[eats] almost completely [illegible] to make him [illegible]

"O wad some power the giftie gie him,
To see himself as others see him."

might now be well applied to him. Failing this time to get admission into the local papers, he has circulated a fly sheet in the very first sentence of which, as well as throughout the entire sheet, there is nothing short of an utter perversion of facts, calculated to mislead those to whom it is addressed.

He charges us with publishing his supposed guilt in the Review and Examiner without as yet shewing any sorrow or regret. It is nothing short of a downright falsehood for him to say so. For the present year we defy him to mention anything directly or indirectly which would lead to such a conclusion, and whatever was done last year was done by himself in giving the Minutes of the Council. We thought we had done all in our power for the benefit of the Township, but the ex-Clerk thinks otherwise. We rejoice, however, to find that he is almost alone in his opinion. He evidently smarts under his discovered mistakes, mistakes not merely of a few dollars and cents, but of several hundred dollars, which we are prepared to prove. He has entered into a long list of figures to defend himself, but the matter is simply this, that he charged upwards of $400 on the Township Roll of 1868 against the ratepayers of the Municipality, which was not entered against the Collector, and had it not been detected, would, most certainly, have been lost to the Township. By the Auditors' Report they show $3696.47 charged on the Roll, whereas only $3270.56 is carried against the Collector, thus showing a difference of $424.44: and yet this is the man to prate about correctness. Judge ye!

We think it would have been much more creditable for himself to have said nothing about the Tavern Licenses, as it is a well known fact that the entire trouble in that matter, as well as the loss to the Township was, caused by himself. He terms himself our unworthy Clerk. Well, indeed we quite agree with him that he was surely such to us, for in place of assisting us in municipal matters, he evidently was conspiring against us, and did all in his power to render us unpopular. Had he only remembered the adage "that those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," he would, we think, have acted a wiser part than stirring up this uncalled for controversy.

His attack upon our very efficient Assessor is wholly unjustifiable, when it is known that the sale of lands this year for taxes must have been given by the Assessor at least three or four years previous to this date. Again, we defy him to show from any of our records, or those of the County, that any such fine as $6,13 was imposed upon him for obeying us, and we now boldly assert that it was entirely gratuitous paying over to his friend the amount named.

But the climax of the man's folly is reached in his dissertation on the Voters List of last year. "Oh tell it not in Gath nor in the streets of Askelon," that Mr. John Tully, then Clerk of the Township of North Monaghan, has had the hardihood and unblushing effrontery to inform the Ratepayers of the Township that if the Council would only have themselves him and saved him harmless, he would knowingly have violated his oath of office in forging and perverting the Statutes of the Province. It would in our opinion be the quintessence of folly to reason further with such a man:—judge ye!

Gentlemen, we thank you for your past favours, and if returned again will do all in our power to show you "that the men whom you have so long delighted to honour," are still worthy of your confidence.

WILLIAM ROBSON.

To Miss ——

Darling, do you know who loves you?
Do you know whose heart is yours?
Who is lonesome here without you,
While this parting time endures?

Do you know whose prayers are answered,
On the breath of morn and even;
Praying God that o'er his loved one,
May be kept the watch of heaven?

Do you know whose hope of living
Would be stricken from his life,
Should he loose the love and blessing
Of his would-be cherished wife?

Does this parting ever tell you,
What a life that ours would be;
If from out its heart-held treasures
Trust should cease, and love should flee?

Does it ever gently whisper,
For the sake of joys to come,
Bear each other's burdens kindly,
Let the heaven of earth be home!

Oh! my heart's own cherished treasure,
Come what ever fate may send,
I will love thee without measure,
Love and bless thee to the end.

Onondaga Salt.

In 1869, the Onondaga salines produced 6,804,295 bushels of boiled salt, and 1,857,942 bushels of sun-made salt—a total of 8,662,237 bushels of fifty-six pounds each.—The total revenues were $96,767,90, of which $45,546,51 were disbursed for the pumping and distribution of the salt water, the improvement and repairs of the state property and machinery, and the supervision of the manufacture. The net revenue of the state was $51,211,03. The canal fund has been benefitted during the year to the extent of $109,649,79, from tolls on salt and materials used in the manufacture. There have been manufactured at the Onondaga salt springs since 1797, 200,781,490 bushels of salt. Since 1846, when the duty was reduced to one cent a bushel, the state treasury has received from the salt springs a net revenue of $517,567,43. The amount of the state appropriation called for this year is $80,000.

We learn further, that the amount inspected for the past year is 4,361 bushels less than in 1868. The decrease is attributed indirectly to breaks in the canal.

The markets for the Onondaga produce are indicated by the following statement:

Sent to New York City	1,949,635	bush
" Canada	290,120	"
" Lower Lake ports	2,120,590	"
" Upper Lake ports	2,001,110	"

State trade, including Northern Pennsylvania and Upper Hudson River ... 1,700,782 "

Statements embodied in the report show that the trade has fallen off in our home markets since 1868, 30,000 bushels, and in our exports to Canada, 520,210 bushels. On the other hand, the shipments to New York have in the same period increased 1,192,331 bushels.

The British Columbia Legislature was opened on Wednesday by Commission, in the absence of Governor Musgrove, who was ill. The speech delivered on his behalf recommended Confederation with Canada as the policy of the Imperial Government. Canada would, it was said, assume the debt and grant an annual subsidy of $35,000, and 80 cents per head until the population reached 400,000. The present population is said to be 120,000 and the debt small.

Hon. Mr. McDougall.—The Ottawa correspondent of La Minerve says the question as to whether Mr. McDougall has lost his seat and the portfolio of Public Works by his acceptance of the Governorship of Red River, will furnish a nice point for the lawyers. Any member resigning a place from Government outside of the ministry, and emoluments other than those of a minister, forfeits thereby his seat. But as the North-West has never yet belong to Canada, nor any union entered between these countries, the foresaid appointment may be considered to have been void and inept. The danger, however, is that Mr. McDougall was employed by the Government in some way, whether as Governor, Envoy, Commissioner, or otherwise, and that he did receive compensation, or at least the expenses of his expedition, other than what he was entitled to as a minister of the Dominion, or a member of the House of Commons. A certain amount of public money has been expended on his enterprise, which he freely accepted, under the obligation on his part to fulfil certain instructions. This obligation and these instructions—did they not constitute him a public servant? That is what the Chambers will decide shortly. The correspondent goes on to state that Mr. McDougall has made enemies both of the half-breeds and the Hudson Bay Company—of the former by his rigorous conduct under a previous administration towards the Indians in the Manitoulin Islands; and of the latter by the attacks made on them during his career as a journalist, in company with Mr. Brown, and both opposed their common enemy.

BRAZILIAN LADI S' BLESSINGS.

RADWAY'S READY R LIEF, RENOVATING RESOLVENT, AND REGULATING PILLS.

Rio de Janeiro, March 24, 1866.

Doctor RADWAY & Co.:

DEAR FRIENDS:—* * * My wife blesses these preparations, when she thinks that after three nights and days of suffering of violent pains in the stomach, brought on by overdoses of Quinine, by the use of four drops of "Ready Relief" in some water, she was able to sleep tranquil all night, and the next day she was completely re-established. I have also cured a slave from heart disease with "Ready Relief" and "Pills" and have also cured sore throat, rheumatic pains, toothache, headache, &c., &c. With the "Resolvent" I have cured Erysipelas Skin diseases, &c.

It is my full impression that the "Pills" are the best purgative that can be found, not alone for the facility which they can be taken, but also as they do not cause griping or make you feel sick.

I have a son of five years old now, who took the "Ready Relief" when 4 months old, as he suffered from some irregularity in the bladder, preventing him from making urine. The following was the treatment: 20 drops of "Relief" in a cup of water, and divide it in portions of a tablespoon, which he took every ten minutes which completely cured him. He has since had colic, which I treat in the same way, and also rub the stomach with it (pure).

Major Joaquim Vieira do Silva Pinto, proprietor, in the Cidade Leopoldina, can prove that after more than ten years suffering from Paralysis, through the medium of your remedies he obtained that which he had been deprived, and thought at the time that he would never be able to get, and that was the use of his legs.

You can fully believe that there are a great many people in this vast empire who truly confess that they owe their life to the use of your precious medicines. You can make use of this as you think proper.

I remain, dear friends,

Your obedient, &c.,

(Signed,) FRIAR DE SANTA CRUZ.

On inquiring for these remedies ask for Radway's as the country is flooded with imitations. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants.

See Radway's Almanac for 1870.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

We beg all those who suffer from Catarrh, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., do try Dr. J. Briggs' Alterantor; the relief and benefit derived from its use will be greater than from any other remedy known. After once testing its worth, no person would willingly be without it. For the maladies it is intended to cure, it is unequalled. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

The Poet, Priest, Philosopher and Sage.
All turn with rapture to the Golden Age.
For, in that happy period they find
Instruction and delight for all mankind.
The human race where happiest then, because
They lived according to Dame Nature's laws.
Their wants were few and easily supplied;
Their food and drink were found on every side;
Their clothing did not know the tailor's art
It did not bind the lungs or crowd the heart;
Their walk was graceful, free and unconstrained,
For not a foot of all that race was pained
With Corn or Bunion (dreadful modern ills),
With sandals shod, they scaled the steepest hills,
Or roamed the plains, by happiness possessed,
No ache or pain destroyed their perfect rest.

Messrs. Raymundo C. Leite & Bro.:

Gentlemen:—While a son of my friend Mr. Francisco de Mattos Pimenta (a large proprietor in the Oldade de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tosoco, who is thought a great deal of in Campos, but the fever, instead of diminishing, caused, continued, and typhoid, the boy (14 years old) could not speak, would not take the drafts, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tinoco declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the Relief pure on the Chest, back and wrists; three (of Radway's) Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after meals, one dessert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments.

I remain, gentlemen.

Your very obedient servant,

Joaquim Pinto Falcao, Merchant.

At a Public Meeting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly; an immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel complaints, and all other diseases incident to this climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

* Dr. J. Briggs' Alleviator, for the cure of Catrrah, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., is unrivalled. In a thorough trial of its virtues, all will acknowledge its superiority. Sold by Druggists.

The Ecclesiastical Council lately called at Rome is an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large assemblies of this nature combining representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be sustained, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us that his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell more rapidly and for higher prices. The article is 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy.' Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hart & Co. is on each package Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealer

To those who suffer from Corns Bunions Bad Nails, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, &c., try Dr. J. Briggs' Curative. If used liberally as directed, relief is immediate, and cure certain. Sold by Druggists.

Frosted Feet, Chilblains, Corns, Bunions Bad Nails, &c., are positively cured by the use of Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative. This Remedy has been compounded with great care, and, used as directed, never fails. Sold by Druggists.

Ayer's Wafers.—The great public remedy have now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried, and pronounced (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a pure, harmless, and eminently salutary preparation, and if taken in season will invariably cure colds, coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affections. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical.

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Kenestown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Comecon, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Papanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well? Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak of terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW" after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and emaciation, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"It has stood the test trial and has not been found wanting. Its astonishing cures of Inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subduing the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A. W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. A Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment" are on the wrapper.

The Sarsaparilla Diggers of Yucatan—This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico; and still retain some of the peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., employ a small army of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with narrow spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild banana furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own. [Boston Commercial.

Piles may be caused by anything that will irritate the lower bowels, producing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in past years the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight stays, sedentary habits, high living, heating, irritating food, &c. Dr. J. Briggs' Unrivalled Pile Remedy, remarkable for its superior excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do not hesitate to recommend it in the highest terms. Sold by Druggists and country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

New Method of Washing Clothes

Without Labor.

"THE DOMINION"

Steam Washing Boiler.

THIS Washing Boiler operates upon purely scientific principles. It is self-acting, and dispenses entirely with labor and the wear of clothes. The hot suds and steam, by the action of fire, are driven up through the chambers, poured upon the clothes, and forced through the fabric with astonishing rapidity, cleansing it perfectly without rubbing. It has been thoroughly tested, and pronounced unequalled as a clothes washer by those who have used it. All fabrics, from the finest laces to the best blankets, can be washed perfectly and with ease without the washboard. For flannels it is invaluable, as the rubbing, rolling and pressing process must necessarily full them more or less. It is truly a labor and clothes-saving invention. Washing will no longer be a hardship, and washing-day a terror and dread to housewives. The invention can be used in any boiler, and the low price of the article places it within the reach of every family.

☞ Ladies are requested to give it a trial, and if it don't give satisfaction, to return it.

The Boilers can be had at the stores of THOMAS LANNIN and JAMES STEVENSON and from the undersigned, who have purchased the right for the County of Peterborough.

DARLEY'S

Arabian Heave Remedy and Conditine Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

The Clear Vision.

I did but dream. I never knew
What charms our sternest season wore,
We never yet the sky so blue,
Was never earth so white before.
Till now I never saw the glow,
Of sunset on you hills of snow,
And never learned the bough's designs
Of beauty in its leafless lines.

Did ever such a morning break
As that my Eastern windows see?
Did ever such a moonlight lake
Weird photographs of shrub and tree?
Rang ever bells so wild and fleet
The muzzle of the winter street?
Was ever yet a sound by half
So merry as you schoolboy's laugh?

O Earth! with gladness overfraught,
No added charms thy face hath found:
Within my heart the change is wrought,
My footsteps make enchanted ground.
From couch to pain and curtained room
Forth to thy light and air I come.
To find in all that meets my eyes
The freshness of a glad surprise,

Fair seem these winter days, and soon
Shall blow the warm west winds of spring,
To set the unbounded rills in tune,
And hither urge the bluebird's wing.
The vales shall laugh in flowers, the woods
Grow misty green with leafing buds,
And violets and windflowers sway
Against the throbbing heart of May.

Break forth, my lips, in praise, and own
The wiser love severely kind;
Since, richer for its chastening grown,
I see, whereas I once was blind.
Thy world, O Father! hath not wronged
With loss the life by thee prolonged;
But still, with every added year,
More beautiful thy works appear!

As thou hast made thy world without,
Make thou more fair my world within;
Shine through its lingering clouds of doubt;
Rebuke its haunting shapes of sin;
Fill, brief or long, my granted span
Of life with love to thee and man;
Strike when thou wilt the hour of rest,
But let my last days be my best!

"My boy what does your mother do for a living?" was asked of a little barefooted urchin. She eats cold victuals, sir."

While men talks of revising the Marriage Service, practical women has done it en bloc. You are married by your barber's book.

Why is Salmon like a Sermon?—Because you are always glad when it is quite done, and you may eat away.

An Irishman, hearing of a friend who had a stone coffin made for himself, exclaimed, "Faith, that's good. Sure an' a stone coffin 'ud last a man a lifetime."

Overheard.—By what route the Mother of a Father should go to India cannot for a moment be a matter of doubt—Ma Sails,' of course!

A Word of Cheer—Won'd you keep out trouble? Then persevere in industry. Put your shoulder to the wheel, and you will never have to set your feet on it.

Employment of Women.—A Young Lady is articled to a Solicitor, and set to Engross a Deed. She fills both sides of the parchment with writing, and then crosses it.

"There are times," said the pensive Alphonso, "at which I am quite incapable of writing poetry." "Ah," said the cynical Bill, "those, then, are the times at which you write verse."

—A sensible contemporary says: "The women ought to pledge not to kiss a man who uses tobacco." A friend of ours suggests, they ought also to pledge themselves to kiss every man that don't use it, and we go for that too.

The Telegraph which is to be universal, is difficult of explanation to some ladies. Perhaps this way is the best. "You know that if you rub a piece of sealing wax hard, it will take up little bits of paper." "Yes." "Well explain the principle, and you will see how letters are conveyed by electricity."

Mr. Kennedy relates that whilst he was at Utah, Tom Thumb was also there on a visit. Whilst the renowned dwarf was at a party, he jumped from his chair, and said, with a pompous air, "I cannot understand this polygamy at all." His host, a man 6 ft. high, thereupon exclaimed, "Neither could I, Tom, when I was your size!"

There is an old story of a Venetian painter who set up his picture in the street with the request that anybody who perceived error or failure in the piece would "make a note of it." He found as the result, that every square inch of his laborious canvas was condemned; but when he altered the request, and begged that an ingenious public would oblige him by denoting what was faultless, again every square inch was lauded to the skies by some critic or another.

—John tells a story of Thompson and Rogers, two married men, wandering home late one night, stopping at what Thompson supposed to be his residence, but which his companion insisted was his own house. Thompson rang the bell lustily, when a window was opened, and a lady inquired what was wanted? "Madame," inquired Mr. T., "isn't this Mr. Thompson's house!" "No," replied the lady; "This is the house of Mr. Rogers?" "Well," exclaimed Mr. Thompson, "Mrs. T—T—Thompson—beg your pardon—Mrs. Rogers, won't you just step down to the door and pick out Rogers; for Thompson wants to go home."

A Colonel Franks engaged near the village of Chamba, Bengal, a body of rebels, and many prisoners were taken: one of them a Bengalee, aged about fifty-four, was conducted before the authorities to undergo interrogations. The prisoner, for the first time, appeared to realize the danger of his situation, when he found himself stripped and surrounded with soldiers. He trembled violently, terror and despair being depicted on his countenance; and when replying to the questions addressed to him, he appeared absolutely stupified by fear. Then, under the very eyes of those present [says an observer], and in the space of some half an hour, his hair, which they had seen to be of a brilliant black, became gray on every part of his head. The sergant who had charge of the prisoner cried out: "He is turning gray!" and called attention to the singular phenomenon, of which the entire assemblage present was enabled to observe the completion through all its phases.

LEGERDEMAIN.—Or how to get a whole suit of clothes in a bottle.—Every time you feel like taking a horn, drop the price of a "nipper" in a bottle and take a glass of pure cold water. Repeat this until the bottle is full, then break it, and carry the contents to a good tailor, and within a month you will find yourself encased in a new suit of clothes, without any trouble or expense to yourself. The same can be done with hats, boots, &c. We have known a cart load of wood and a barrel of flour to be transmogrified in a similar manner.

The Evening Hearthstone.

Gladly now we gather round it,
For the toiling day is done,
And the grey and solemn twilight
Follows down the golden sun;
Shadows lengthen on the pavement,
Stalk like giants through the gloom,
Wander past the dusky casement,
Creep around the fire-lit room.
Draw the curtains—close the shutters—
Place the slippers by the fire—
Though the rude wind loudly mutters,
What care we for wind sprite's ire?

What care we for outward seeming—
Fickle fortune's frown or smile,
If around us love is beaming,
Love can human ills beguile?
Neath the cottage roof and palace,
From the peasant to the king,
All are quaffing life's chalice
Bubbles that enchantment bring;
Grates are glowing—music flowing
From those lips we love the best;
O, the joy, the bliss of knowing
There are hearts on which to rest.

Hearts that throb with eager gladdess—
Hearts that echo to our own—
With which care and haunting sadness
Mingle ne'er in look or tone;
Care may tread the halls of daylight;
Sadness haunt the midnight hour—
But the weird and witching twilight
Brings the glowing hearthstone's dower.
Altar of our holiest feelings—
Childhood's well remembered shrine:
Spirit yearnings, soul revealings,
Wreaths immortal round thee twine.

MINCE MEAT.—Two pounds of beef suet two pounds of apples, two pounds of currants, two pounds of raisins, half a pound of citron, quarter of a pound of candied lemon, quarter of a pound of candied orange-peel, two nutmegs, half an ounce of salt half an ounce of ginger, half an ounce of allspice, half an ounce of cloves juice, and peel of one lemon, quarter of a pint of brandy, quarter of a pint of white wine. Take two pounds of beef suet chopped fine, add the apples pared and minced fine, the currants washed and picked, and the raisins stoned and chopped fine, the most sugar, citron, orange and lemon-peel cut fine, the nutmegs grated, the salt, the ginger, allspice and cloves, all ground fine and the juice of the lemon, with the rind grated. Mix all these ingredients well together, with the brandy and sherry, or any white wine. Put all into a jar and keep it in a cool place.

"HONEST DAN."—A merchant tailor, known by this enviable soubriquet, doing business in McGill street, failed some ten years ago for $6,000. A meeting of creditors was called, a straightforward statement of his affairs was submitted, and the creditors, one and all, agreed to accept a composition of five shillings in the pound. "Honest Dan" went to work again, put his shoulder to the wheel, and by dint of industry, sobriety and steady attention to business, has acquired sufficient means to enable him to pay off the remaining fifteen shillings of his old debts. "Honest Dan" is now doing so, and so strict is his resolve that in one instance, when the creditor was dead and had left no heir, "Honest Dan" sent the amount to deserving charities in the city. Diogenes never came across this man! [Montreal 'Star.']

One day last week a whisky seller of this place got sick, and we understand that he called for something to drink, when he was offered water, but refused it, and called for wiskey. A glass was furnished. That was not enough—he wanted, more—a bottle full and glass were placed by him. in a few hours he was found dead. This is another victim added to the already long list who have been sent to premature graves by drunkenness. But it is wrong to oppose intemperance lest somebody may be dissatisfied, and a legion of heartless grog-sellers lose the hard-earned dollars of their victims. This man has just gone where he has aided in sending many before him, and armies of others are fast staggering after them. They will soon tumble in.—Massillon (O.) Independent.

It is said by those who have experimented in feeding horses with carrots in connection with oats, that three bushels of carrots are equal to two bushels of oats in nutritive effect. That is, that three bushels of carrots and two bushels of oats, when fed in connection, are equal in nutritive effect to four bushels of oats, while the operation of the carrots is to produce a brighter eye, a glossier coat, and a more healthful appearance than when hay and oats alone are fed. Possibly this is too high an estimate, but, however, it may be, there can be no doubt that the carrots, in connection with other food is a very superior winter and spring fodder, both for milk cows and horses. It should be more exclusively used than it is.

HOW TO KEEP BUTTER SWEET.—It is the easiest thing in the world. Simply put it in clean jars and cover with a strong brine. This is equivalent to canning fruit. The brine, in the case of the jar, acts as a heading, keeping the air out. But butter must be made well; we never have experimented on poor butter. Work out the buttermilk until you have only pure "heads," clear as rain water; but, do not work so much as to break the grain, in which case you have a tough, heavy article in winter, and grease in summer. Such butter we advise no one to try and preserve.

TO TAKE STAINS OUT OF LINEN.—Stains caused by acids may be removed by wetting the part and laying it on some salt of wormwood; then rub it without diluting it with water, to make a lather, and boil the linen till the stains disappear. Recent stains of fruit may be removed by holding the linen tightly stretched over a tub and pouring hot water over the part. This must be done before any soap has been applied to it. As soon as the stain is made on linen, &c., rub on it common table salt, before it has time to dry. The salt will keep it damp till the cloth is washed, when the stain will disappear; or wash the stain lightly when the cloth is removed.

A merchant from the country, a few days since, while making some purchases in a shop in town, was asked if he did not want some half-morning prints. Well, I guess I do, said he, the people up our way are about half-dead these cold days.

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

It has been said by a few unfortunate mortals who have striven in vain to gain position of honor and distinction, that they were not sufficiently appreciated. While such may sometimes be the case, it is generally to be observed that true deserving worth is cordially accepted and honored, whether applied to religion, politics, the arts, or invention. Next to religion, invention or discovery, has the highest position, for it wields a mighty influence; through its channels nations have overleaped, as if by magic, the bounds of a separation, and united by electric wires, can converse together at momentary will.

Indeed, the diversified efforts of man's genius in these respects, are a source of admiration and gratitude to the whole human race. In medicine, science has revealed during the last quarter of a century, many hidden truths, which had before been considered to be impossibilities. The malignity of pestilential disease is now in a great measure bereft of its terror and even the "insatiate archer," consumption, is arrested in his deadly march, and oftentimes overthrown. Undoubtedly the great rallying power in the treatment of this and other pulmonary diseases, is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry; and the foregoing allusions are applicable to the memory of its illustrious discoverer. The proof of the efficacy of this great remedy is in its undying reputation. It has stood the test of time, and its fame as a curative of throat and lung complaints has extended to all climes.—Canada Christian Advocate.

DR. J. BRIGGS' Throat and Lung Healers is pleasant to take and unsurpassed for its efficacy in curing Cough, Bronchitis, Consumption. &c. Sold by Druggists.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

The reputation this extraordinary medicine enjoys, is derived from its cures, many of which are truly marvellous. Inveterate cases of scrofulous disease, where the system seemed saturated with corruption, have been purified and cured by it. Scrofulous affections and disorders, which were aggravated by the scrofulous contamination until they were painfully afflicting, have been radically cured in such great numbers in almost every section of the country, that the public is freely assured of the virtues of this.

Scrofulous poison is one of the most destructive enemies of our race. Often, this unseen and unfelt tenant of the organism undermines the constitution, and invites the attack of enfeebling or fatal diseases, without exciting a suspicion of its presence. Again, it seems to breed infection throughout the body, and then, on some favorable occasion, rapidly develop into one or other of its hideous forms, either on the surface or among the vitals. In the latter, tubercles may be suddenly deposited in the lungs or heart, or tumors formed in the liver, or it shows its presence by eruptions on the skin, or foul ulcerations on some part of the body. Hence the occasional use of a bottle of this Sarsaparilla is advisable, even when no active symptoms of disease appear. Persons afflicted with the following complaints generally find immediate relief, and, at length, cure, by the use of this SARSAPARILLA: St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, and other eruptions of visible forms of Scrofulous disease. Also in the more concealed forms, as Dyspepsia, Dropsy, Heart Disease, Fits, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, and the various Uterous afections of the muscular and nervous systems.

Syphilitic Venereal and Mercurial Diseases are cured by it, though a long time is required for subduing these obstinate maladies by any medicine. But long continued use of this medicine will cure the complaint. Leucorrhœa or Whites, Uterine Ulcerations, and Female Diseases, are commonly soon relieved and ultimately cured by its purifying and invigorating effect. Minute Directions for each case are found in our Almanac, supplied gratis. Rheumatism and Gout, when caused by accumulations of extraneous matters in the blood, yield quickly to it, as also Liver Complaints, Torpidity, Congestion and Inflammation of the Liver, and Jaundice, when arising, as they often do, from the rankling poisons in the blood. This SARSAPARILLA is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are Languid and Listless, Despondent, Sleepless, and troubled with Nervous Apprehensions or Fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of Weakness, will find immediate relief and convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine, has anything won so widely and so deeply upon the confidence of mankind, as has excellent remedy for pulmonary complaints. Through a long series of years, and among most of the races of men it has risen higher and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for incipient consumption, and the dangerous affections of the throat and lungs. As a provision against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although settled Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not fail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Zinc, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in nowise injures any patient. The number and importance of its cures in the ague districts are literally beyond account, and we believe (from a careful in the history of Ague medicine. no antidote has ever yielded by the acknowledgments we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases, and where other remedies had wholly failed. The inhabitant of, either resident in, or visiting the much miasmatic localities, will be protected by taking the AGUE CURE daily.

For Liver Complaints, arising from torpidity of the Liver, it is an excellent remedy, stimulating the Liver into healthy activity.

For Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints, it is an excellent remedy, producing many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

NEW PRINCIPLES OF CURE

Of all Wasting Scrofulous, and Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth, Throat, Ears, Head, LUNGS, Kidneys, Bladder.

THE SKIN MADE PURE, CLEAR, SMOOTH, AND BEAUTIFUL.

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent establishes a new principle of Cure of all Chronic diseases, and proves to the medical world that Consumption and other Scrofulous diseases are curable. This fact has been demonstrated in over

One Hundred Cases of Confirmed Consumption,

where one lung in over seventy cases was destroyed and dried up, and in over

500 CASES OF SUSPECTED CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Radway, three years ago, published to the world his analysis of the Blood in the several stages of Consumption, showing in every stage, that where tubercles become deposited in the Lungs and other organs, as in the Kidneys, Liver, Spleen, Bronchial Glands, Intestines, establishing Consumption of these organs; the Blood is thin, weak, poor, watery, and is deficient of such elements as Fibrin Albumen, Phosphorus, and the rich red coloring discs of the Blood Corpuscles. In the absence of these constituents in the Blood, the Blood is exhausted of strength and nourishment, and wherever there is inflammation, it deposits tubercles and decomposition. It has not the power to build in solution its natural constituents, and Ulcers, Cores, Tumors, Cancers, and Virulent Humors are formed, the presence of which causes inflammation, gathering, and consequent suppuration.

This, reader, is the true cause of the formation of Tubercles and Consumption. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory of the cause of Consumption and its kindred diseases, and prepared the Radway's Resolvent to supply the Blood with such constituents it was deficient of, in those conditions of system, and to give it the nourishment and strength to hold its natural constituents in solution. Dr. Radway's theory was published in England, France, Germany, and America, and was raised upon by the scientific men of both hemispheres. From his text medical books have been since published by medical writers, claiming to have discovered the cause of Consumption, but have failed to produce the remedy to cure. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory, and the first and only discoverer of a medicine that will cure. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent the public have a remedial agent that will cure Consumption and all diseases of the Lungs, Scrofula, Kidneys, Bladder, Womb, Throat, Glands, and Urinary Organs.

In all Wasting Discharges, such as Involuntary Loss of Sperm, Emissions, Weakness of the Genital Glands, Leucorrhœa, and all Uterine difficulties,

To Messrs. CHAMBERLAIN & SELLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.
MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th, 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two [illegible] coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds; prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshoness Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshoness Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neighbors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshoness Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.
Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshoness Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

CANADA.
BY W. G. MONCRIEFF.

However prized the scenes we left,
However sore we feel bereft
Our future home is here;
Leave, then, with ardent lo e the soil,
That well rewards our varied toil,
And greet it with a cheer.

Away beyond the stormy deep
Our thoughts will sometimes roving keep,
By old attractions led;
But call them back and let them grow,
Twining this land of sun and snow,
For better none may wed.

Its sunsets with their gorgeous lines,
Its cataracts, and inland views,
Strike on the soul with power;
And when, with magic art, the Fall
Hangs Indian beauty over all,
'Tis Nature's finest hour.

Around its rock-girt shores
Atlantic billows lash and roar
In concert with the gales;
And, dauntless, forth our bravest ride
Upon the heaving, foaming tide,
And spread their bulging sails.

Our country yet from sea to sea,
Through forests vast, and rich prairie,
Will stretch its mighty lines;
And millions of the free-born race,
With thought and vigor in their face,
Toil in its fields and mines.

These lakes expanding in their pride,
These rivers rolling on their tide,
Will thronging fleets sustain;
And mariners from distant shores,
Lay riches at our merchant's doors,
Beyond their dreams of gain.

Here, Liberty with Order crowned,
Will call this spot her chosen ground,
While countless years are reeled;
And, grateful for her costly boons,
Augmenting with recruiting moons,
Our sons will stand her shield.

Peace be their darling theme and song—
Peace with the feeble and the strong:
Fell war their hated task;
But when an arm would try their steel,
Then may they fight with courage leal,
Nor ever mercy ask.

Here bards will build immortal lays,
To rival songs in other days,
And charm those cultured best;
Nay, flame the heart of sire and son,
While battle-work remains undone,
And danger lifts its crest.

Adopted land! as in yon sky,
The purest azure meets the eye,
So be thy name attired;
The home of virtue, truth and skill,
A refuge from the tyrant's will,
'Mong nations first admired.

The Horse Thieves Outwitted.
A WILD WESTERN ADVENTURE.

It was a dark, stormy night, late in the Autumn of 18—, that seven of us, all except the one that performed the duties of host, were gathered around the cheerfully blazing fire that served, with one tallow candle, to illuminate the bar-room of a rare hotel that had been reared in the then unbroken wilderness of Western Missouri.

Without, the rain was pouring down in torrents, accompanied by a strong East wind, which served to drive it against the house with redoubled violence, while the creaking sign-board, perched upon the limb of a large tree, lent its discordant music to the various unpleasant sounds that came from without.

We travellers were all strangers to each other, and after our supper had been duly honored, we gathered around the fire, and after a few common-place remarks concerning the state of the weather, and the chances of a fair day on the morrow, we all relapsed into silence, each seemingly fully occupied with their own thoughts, or listening to the wailings of the storm without, which, as the night deepened, seemed to increase in violence.

"What a fine night to listen to a good story, gentlemen," said our host, as he entered the room after a temporary absence, and drew up a chair among the silent group by the fire-side.

"Capital! couldn't be a better; but who shall tell it, landlord?" returned I and the others, save one, immediately re-echoed the same sentiment.

The person that remained silent was a man apparently about fifty years of age, seated in one corner among the flickering shadows, and had taken but little part in the conversation that had ensued since his arrival.

His silence on a subject, which is every traveller's solace when weatherbound, or on a long winter evening, caused all eyes to be turned upon him, and the landlord remarked:—

"Perhaps the gentleman in the corner could tell us a story that would interest us this evening; if so, we would be happy to hear him."

"Gentlemen!" spoke the stranger referred to,

"I am by no means a good teller of stories; but as our host has requested something of that sort from me for your entertainment, I will tell an adventure that happened to me some years ago, while following my business as a land agent. It is strictly true, and perhaps may interest you.

The stranger cleared his throat, and all of us sinking back into our seats in a comfortable position, he, after a moment's pause, commenced:—

"My name is Reuben Hall. My business is, and has been for the last half dozen years, that of land agent; and on one of the many journeys that my calling has obliged me to take, the adventure that I'm about to narrate befell me. It was five years this very Autumn that I was making a journey through the Southern part of Indiana, which was at that time overrun with, and is not, at the present time, wholly free from, large gangs of horse-thieves, who pursued the business as a regular calling. In vain was it that the authorities endeavoured to bring them to justice, and to break up their gangs; and it was seldom that if one of their number was apprehended with any amount of evidence against him, he did not escape, either by being brought before some justice who was connected with the business himself, for many in high standing were privy to the doings of the horse-thieves, and in reality acting with them, while they continued to shield themselves from suspicion, or were rescued from the jails by their comrades in crime.

"As I said before, it was five years ago this fall that I was passing through the before mentioned state, and a night similar to this, only it possible more stormy and wild, found me bewildered in a dreary portion of the country, where the darkness was so dense that I could not see my hand before my face. All that afternoon I had rode through the wilds without my eyes being gladdened by the sight of a human being, or the least signs of civilization; and night coming on, to add to my disquietude, there was every appearance of a storm. Dark clouds rolled swiftly across the sky, and the wind sighed mournfully through the boughs of the pine, while the cricket chirped on the gravelly roadside. These signs were not to be mistaken, or suffered to pass unheeded, [illegible] already wearied limbs would permit him to go, in hopes to discover the hut of some squatter before the darkness and rain should come upon me; but my hopes and exertions availed me nothing, and I was overtaken by both. To add to the unpleasantness of my situation, in less than half an hour after the darkness fell, I was conscious that my horse had strayed from the road, and that I was in reality lost in the woods, amidst rain and darkness.

My first thought, after this unwelcome truth was forced upon me, was to dismount and endeavour to pass the night, as best I could, under the branches of some large tree, trusting to what shelter it could afford me; but this I was loth to do, as it was a prospect by no means agreeable to contemplate, much less to put in practice; and so I allowed my horse to push on, and pick out his way, as best he might, still in hopes that I should yet find some human habitation.

On we went; the rain falling in torrents. I was soon wet to the skin and shivering with cold. For another hour we slowly picked our way, and then my good horse showed decided symptoms of fatigue; and just as I had made up my mind to dismount, and pass the remainder of the night in the forest as my only alternative, I was gladdened by a bright light shining through the darkness, and appearing but a short distance ahead.

Welcome sight! Never was land to the ship-wrecked mariner any dearer than that light to me. My horse discovered it at nearly the same moment, and, with a glad neigh, he renewed his pace, in the direction of the light, and in a few moments we stood before the door of a rude cabin, from which the light that we had seen proceeded.

Dismounting, I rapped loudly at the door with my whip, and in a few moments it was opened by an old man, who inquired in a rough tone, what I wanted.

In a few words I made him acquainted with my condition. My request for food and shelter for myself and horse was immediately granted; and I followed the old man round to a rude shed to see that my horse was made as comfortable as the circumstances would permit; and then, with my host, entered the cabin. A single hurried glance revealed to me that it contained but one other occupant beside ourselves, a young girl, of perhaps fifteen years of age; who, as soon as we stepped inside the door, retired to a distant part of the apartment, where the outline of her form could just be distinguished amid the flickering shadows that filled the back part of the room, which was illuminated only by the light from an almost expiring fire that faintly glowed on the rough stone hearth.

My host motioned me to a seat on the hearth, and then drew a quantity of dry wood, that was piled in one corner, upon the embers; and soon a bright flame was cheerily flaming, diffusing its light and warmth around the apartment; and in a short time the heat had penetrated my wet garments; and I congratulated myself upon having escaped from the storm without.

"Come, Molly, stir yourself, and get the gentleman some supper; and be quick about it too!" said my host in a harsh tone.

The girl moved from her corner among the shadows, which the bright fire had well nigh dispersed, in obedience to the mandate and drawing out a table, she commenced preparations for my supper, which I now really stood in need of.

I have seen many faces that the world called beautiful; but, in my estimation, that simple rustic maiden in the backwoods far eclipsed them all! She was not so polished, to be sure; but like the brilliant diamond in its crude state, was still a priceless gem, when compared with a host of those who owe their lustre to art.

We sat in silence while Molly prepared my repast, my host not speaking, or even looking towards me, save once, while I was watching the girl, as she glided about the apartment. I was conscious that his gaze was fastened on me, and turning quickly, I met his dark, evil-looking eyes bent earnestly upon me; but he immediately turned his head, and seemed to give his attention to the fire.

When supper was ready, the girl placed a seat at the table, and with a motion bade me take it. I wondered why she did not speak; and as I obeyed her mute summons, and took the seat, I said—

"I guess you was aware, my girl, that I had fasted during the day, you have been so quick about my supper."

The girl made no answer.

"Molly is as deaf as a post; and one has to speak like a thunder-clap to make her hear; and she is dumb, besides."

"Indeed," I observed; and fell to work upon the viands which Molly had prepared for me. Unbroken silence was maintained by all, until I had satisfied the cravings of my appetite, and had resumed my place by the fire.

Scarcely had I seated myself before the sound of horses' hoofs and several voices was heard just outside the cabin; and a moment later some one called out, "Bring out a light, James."

My host started quickly, and hastily lighting a torch, passed out, and closed the door behind him. By the light that flashed in at the windows, and the sound of their voices, I became aware that they had passed around to the shed where I had sheltered my horse.

At this moment Molly, with a light step, approached me, and in a low tone, very much unlike a "dumb" person, said, "Be on your guard, Sir! or your life will be lost to-night."

"What mean you, girl?" I exclaimed, startled both by her words and manner.

"Those out side are horse thieves, Sir, and they would not hesitate to murder, if your horse is a valuable one; and they will ascertain if it is so before they come in. They will not attempt anything until you have laid down to rest, and then do not sleep! Hush! they are coming. Be cautious!" and with this last warning, the girl glided back to her old position among the shadows at the further part of the apartment, which she had scarcely reached before my host re-entered the cabin, followed by a half dozen as rough-looking customers as one would care about meeting after having the information that I had just received.

"A traveller that I have given shelter to for the night, boys," was the only introduction vouchsafed by mine host, as the new comers gathered in a circle round the hearth.

Something about as pleasant to the ear as the growl of a young bear was the only response from one of them in answer to my "good evening, gentleman."

"Anything to eat, James?" asked one of the new comers, shaking himself like a terrier, and sending the water in a miniature flood over us all.

"Guess so! Set the table again, girl!" and Moll came forth again from her corner in obedience to his commands.

Not fancying the second shower that the human terrier was about to favor me with, I arose, and signified to my host that I would like to retire, if he could furnish me with a place to sleep in.

Lighting a pine torch, he bade me follow him to the loft, when, pointing to a miserable bed in one corner, he, with a gruff [illegible] left me in the profoundest darkness. Feeling my way to the bed, I sat down upon the edge, to reflect upon my position, which anything but pleasant, as you can well conceive.

The pistols I carried with me I knew were useless, as the primings must have become wet long before I reached the cabin; and my sole defence was a small dirk knife which I always carried secreted upon my person. Yet what was I in the hand of the ruffianly gang below, were I ever so well armed. Could I not escape from the loft without alarming the inmates of the room below? was question I asked mentally: but no sort of a window met my eyes; not a ray of light, however dim, came out of the night, indicating an opening in either end of the loft.

Not being satisfied with this seeing, I determined to try the sense of feeling; so, rising from the bed, I ran my hand over every square inch of the end of the loft against which my bed stood, but nothing but the solid wall rewarded my exertions. And up toe, holding my breath, I crossed to the opposite end; but my search availed me nothing, and I returned to the bed and threw myself at full length upon it with a sickening sensation at my heart.

I could hear the low hum of voices in the room below, but could not make out anything they said; and perhaps fifteen minutes had elapsed since I had down, when they ceased entirely, and silence reigned, save the pattering of the raindrops on the roof, and these told me that the storm was well nigh abated.

A slight sound on the roof near me, unlike the falling of the rain, caught my ear. All was still again, but in a moment it was repeated, and this time it took a definite form. It seemed as though some one was endeavouring to wrench off a portion of the roof, directly over my bed. Slowly I arose from my position, and firmly grasping my sole weapon of defence, I awaited the further motions of my, what I doubted not, intended assassin.

Another motion, and a large piece of the roof was torn from its place, revealing a dim portion of murkey, out-of-door light, but in a moment this vanished, the aperture being filled by the head of a human being, and a low voice that I at once recognised as Molly's broke upon my delighted ear.

"Wake up, Sir, wake quickly, or all is lost!"

"Here I am, my girl!" I replied, as I quickly approached the spot where she had effected the aperture.

"Climb out here on the roof as quickly as possible, Sir. I guess that I have made a place large enough to admit of your doing it with ease."

I needed no second invitation; and, by the help of my bed, I was soon beside her on the roof, from whence we soon reached the ground, by the assistance of a short ladder on the back side of the cabin.

Taking me by the hand, and without speaking, even in a whisper, Molly led me into the forest a short distance, and imagine my surprise to find my own horse, tied to the tree saddled and bridled.

"Mount, Sir, and make all haste from this spot." At about half a mile ahead is a beaten trail, that you cannot miss, even in the dark."

"But you, my good girl, will they not murder you, when they find that you have aided my escape."

"They will not illtreat me; and, if do, no harm will come to me. But this will never do, Sir, your tarrying here. Good bye."

"God bless you, my girl," I exclaimed, and in a moment she was lost in the forest.

I had no difficulty in finding the trail, which proved to be the one that I had strayed from out, and safely arrived at my destination.

Five years later, I passed that way again. A few burnt sticks and quantity of white ashes were the only relics of the cabin. A few rods from the spot stood a large farm-house, and, on my calling to obtain information of the fate of the horse thieves, the first person that met my gaze was Molly, now a busy house-wife. From her, I learned that the horse thieves had left the country for a newer state, the old place being too hot to hold them; and that she had married the son of a farmer, and was happy. I stayed with her a while, and found that her words were true. Gentlemen, my story is done."

"A good one, too," observed the landlord, which sentiment was echoed by the entire company; and after we had sat a while in silence, we each sought our own couch, and soon I, for one, was lulled to sleep by the sound of the falling rain beating on the roof.

Put a Ring on his Hand.

a writer in the American Messenger says: This may seem a small thing for Jesus to mention in so thrilling a description of the welcome home of the wayward but penitent son. And if it were to be estimated merely as it is used for ornament by its costly jewels and cunning workmanship, it would be trifling with a solemn occasion. But the ring, from time immemorial, has been employed as a signal or token of precious things. Did you ever have a wife or sister die, and as she passed away take a ring from her finger and give it to you saying, "Wear that for me!" If so you have appreciation of its value. "Put a ring on his finger," says Jesus. Let him know that he is not only forgiven, but loved. So with the forgiven sinner; all that ever has been symbolized by the ring is given to him. It is the emblem of an inviolable covenant of love. So God declares, "I have made everlasting covenant with you, I have loved you with an everlasting love." If the poor, self-condemned sinner ever doubts the love of God, let him think of the ring on his hand. It is also an emblem of delegated power and protection. When Joseph interpreted the dreams of the Egyptian king, and was appointed his deputy, Pharaoh drew a ring from his finger and placed it on Joseph's finger; then whoever touched Joseph touched Pharaoh. So with Ahasuerus and Mordecai. So with Jesus: "Whoso receiveth you receiveth me, and whoso rejecteth you rejecteth me." The ring of divine protection is on the finger.

Home Sweet Home.

What a charm rests upon that endearing word, home, consecrated by domestic love, that golden key to all human happiness. There a father welcomes with fond affection,—there a brother's kind sympathies comfort in the hour of sorrow,—there a pious mother first taught infant lips to lisp the name of Jesus,—and there a loving sister dwells, she the companion of our early days. Truly, if there is a place that is lovely here below, this home,—it is like the oasis of the desert. The passing of our days may be painful, our path may be overrun with sorrow and care, unkindness and frowns may wither the joyousness of the heart, may efface the happy smiles from the brow and bedew life's path with tears; yet when the memory hovers over the past, there is no place in which it so delights to linger as around the scenes of childhood and home. 'Tis the star of our existence.

What cheers the mariner when far away from friends, in a foreign land, or tossed upon the bounding billows as he paces the deck at midnight alone? What thoughts fill his breast? He is thinking of the loved ones far away in his own dear home. In his mental vision he sees the group of friends seated around the fireside, and in his imagination he hears their voices united in singing the sweet songs which he loves. He is anticipating the hour when he shall return to his native land and greet those absent friends so dear to his heart.

Why rests that deep shadow upon the stranger's brow, as he seats himself amid the family circle? Or is surrounded by all the luxuries that wealth can afford.—Happy faces gather about him and strive, [illegible] to win a smile. Ah! he is thinking of the loved ones assembled in his own cot. Why those tears which steal down the cheeks of that young and lively girl, as she mingles in the social circle? Ah! she is an orphan; she, too, had a happy home, but its loved ones are now sleeping in yonder churchyard. The gentle mother that watched over her in infancy, and sung that low sweet song which none but a mother can sing, who in girlhood taught her of the Saviour, and tuned her youthful voice to sing praises to His name, has passed from earth to the mansions of joy above, and is mingling her song with those of angels in heaven. Poor girl! she is now left to tread the thorny path of life, a lonely, homeless wanderer.

Thus it is in this world of change. The objects most dear are snatched away. We are oft-times deprived of the friends we most love, and our cherished home is made desolate. "Passing away" is engraved on all earthly things; but there is a home that knows no change,—where separation is unknown,—where those afflicted ones of this world may obtain relief for all their griefs, and where the sighs and tears of earth are exchanged for joys unceasing.—This home is found in heaven.

In the shadowy past there is one sweet thought which the storms of life can never wither,—it is the recollection of home.—Yes, and in the visioned future there is a star whose golden lustre never fades; it is given to the good ones of this earth,—it is the hope of home,—a home beyond the skies.

Never Give Up.

"If at first you don't succeed,
Try, try again."

Yes, I'll try again,—and the boy went on fashioning and fitting, toiling patiently, hopefully, until at last the little vessel was completed. Then, as he launched it upon the waves, and watched its white sails filling with the wind, and the little flag streaming gallantly from the mast-head, while an exulting smile played over his features, he exclaimed, I was sure I could do it,—and "I'll never give up again, no, never."

If all possessed the spirit of that boy, would there not be more successful triumphs, and less successful failures among us? Victory ever supports the standard that bears upon its banner this brave motto, "never give up."

Alexander did not conquer the whole world by one bold invasion of his mighty armies. Nor can we expect to conquer all difficulties by one effort, strong and resolute though that effort be. "Life is but a strife," a continual, never-ending strife, and we must bring to bear against its great army of doubts, fears, and discouragements, patience, perseverance, hope; these, supported by faith, and all wielding that mightiest of weapons, prayer, will triumph in the conflict, surely, gloriously triumph. "Never give up." Every thing can be accomplished by the energy of a resolute will. Ye who will may share the favors of fortune,—ye who will may wear the glory-wreath of fame. Nay, all who will, may be honored, great, and good, for "God always helps those who help themselves." Weary and discouraged one, the star of hope is not dimmed that thou canst not see it,—the path to prosperity and happiness is not blocked with obstacles that thou canst not tread it. Remove the blindness from thine eyes, and take courage to thine heart, thou wilt overcome at last,—only never give up. Fallen and degraded one, even to thee is the promise, "my strength is sufficient." Lay hold upon it, cling to it

THURSDAY, MARCH 3, 1870.

Parliamentary.

Our representatives at Ottawa are not doing much yet. Notices of motions and debates are all that we have to record.

Mr. Hincks' currency scheme has not yet come before the House for consideration. It will be brought forward on Friday. Already it is doing mischief to the country. The rate of discount on silver before Hincks undertook to regulate it, was about 2 to 2½ per cent, now it is 4 to 5 per cent. To this we could say very little, if the loss was fairly distributed, or if the government had set to work and purchased the silver at its value, as the entire country would then have to bear a proportion of the loss. As it is, it is all falling on the poor man, who may be compelled from circumstances to take silver payment in various ways.

It is poor statesmanship that thus seeks to enrich either the treasury or individuals at the loss of others, and in this case at the loss of those who can hardly afford to bear it. But this is in keeping with all the acts of the present party in power.

Nothing has been done to settle the Red River difficulties but to send Bishop Tache to induce them to be quiet. His presence will only tend to encourage the insurgents, and induce them to hold out. What have ministers of religion to do in this petty quarrel? or why should they be called in to do what the government has failed to do.

Mr. Dufresne, during the debate on the address, said: Let the Government appoint as Lieut.-Governor of the North-West an able, efficient and popular man; let him be selected irrespective of his nationality, and let his first work be to conciliate the Catholic clergy, who exercise such an immense influence over their co-religionists." This indicates strongly the origin of the difficulty, and the means of allaying it—concessions to the clergy.

The fact is, John A. & Co. appear unprepared for any course. They are afraid of losing office; and they are now watching the opposition policy, so as if possible to ward off the evil a little longer.

John A's pet scheme of a Supreme Court is no doubt receiving his attention. He will, if he can, have it matured so as to step into it, when defeated. It will be for life; drunk or sober—and a salary of $8,000 to $10,000 a year. It will therefore be better than a Lieut. Governorship.

The Opposition are gaining strength and influence day by day.

The North-West.

This vast territory is still in the hands of Riel. He has been elected President of the Provincial Government; James Ross, Chief Justice; T. Bunn, Secretary of State; Louis Schmidt, Treasurer; W. B. O'Donohue, Secretary of the Treasury. A general election is soon to take place to elect a council of twenty-four members. The Bill of Rights has been discussed in presence of Mr. Donald Smith, and all that he thought admissable pointed out. Judge Black, the Rev. Mr. Richot and Alfred Scott were chosen delegates to Canada, on behalf of the people of the territory. The election of the council is over by this time. There is to be a general amnesty of political prisoners.

Sabbath School Convention.

We call the attention of our readers to the announcement, in our advertising columns, of the Sabbath School Convention to be held here on the 15th and 16th inst.

It is hoped that every Sabbath School in the County will be represented at the meeting, and that as many teachers as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity of consulting together as to the interest of their several schools, and also to encourage one another in the good work. It is also desirable that those localities not having Sabbath Schools, and which feel their want in this respect, should also be represented.

Abundant provisions will be made for all who may attend, and homes provided for them during the convention.

Some of the most earnest and eloquent Sabbath School workers in the Province will be present, and take part in the proceedings, which will be varied by singing, under the conduct of an able leader, expected from Toronto.

Any further information can be obtained from the Secretary, Mr. J. A. Hall, who will gladly supply circulars and programmes to all who may desire them.

WHAT CARELESSNESS MIGHT DO.—On Sunday night, the boy who sleeps in Mr. James Stevenson's store, lit a lamp as he was going to bed, and it is supposed let the burning match drop unobserved. It fell through a joint in the desk into a drawer and set fire to some papers that were in the drawer. These, consisting of receipts, accounts, &c., were all consumed or damaged and the drawer badly charred. Some rifle balls in the drawers also exploded. The confined state of the fire in the drawers is believed to have saved the whole place from being consumed, as it died out, before being observed, and nothing was discovered by any one till Mr. Stevenson came to the store on Monday morning. Fortunately no serious damage was done, but the circumstances of Sunday night in this case may, perhaps, account for fires, the origin of which have never been discovered. The habit of throwing away, carelessly, burning matches should be guarded against, as no one knows where they may fall, for if they fall on combustible material the result may be loss that can hardly ever be repaired.

Editorial Items.

The Dunkin Act was carried at Sidney, Hastings County, on Monday, by a majority of 144.

PORKINE.—Mr. Alex. Orr, Bobcaygeon, killed a hog last Saturday, 7 months and 20 days old, which weighed 306 lbs. Beat this in the pork line, who can.

John Ashley, of Port Hope, was lately convicted and sent to the Penitentiary for 3 years for stealing $3.25 from Mrs. Lambert, tavern-keeper of that place.

The Warder says a boy named Caleb Ogilvie lost his life in Piper's Mills by venturing on a large balance wheel which on being started crushed him into an iron box and killed him.

Extensive robberies have taken place in Toronto lately. Carpenters who went about fitting shops, offices, &c., were the guilty parties. In these repairings they made their preparations, and robbed on a large scale. They are now in limbo.

The Committee of the Protestant House acknowledge, with thanks, the following donations for February; Mrs. Shaw, Ontario Bank, large parcel of boy's clothing; Mr. White, quarter of veal and suet.

Mr. Burlingame, United States Ambassador to China, died at St. Petersburgh recently. His death will be very much regretted through the United States. At the time of his death he was in Europe as agent to arrange treaties with several of the nations on that continent.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Branch Bible Society, will be held in St. Andrews Church on Friday evening the 11th March at 7 o'clock P. M.

Addresses will be delivered by the Rev. T. Goldsmith, agent of the society, and by the resident ministers of the Town.

NEW DOMINION MONTHLY.—This excellent periodical, for March, has been received, and the contents are varied and interesting. The Dominion Monthly may be introduced into any family, as the reading matter is all of a religious and instructive tendency, nothing immoral or light is admitted, and it only costs $1.50 a year.

The printing office of the News Record, Fergus, and owned by Messrs. J. & R. Craig, well known here, was consumed by fire on Sunday afternoon. Both type and presses were lost. The loss is reported about $1,700, on which there was about $500 of insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The next meeting of the Teachers Class conducted by Mr. Dixon, Principal of the Union School, will meet in the Union School on the third Saturday of this month at 10 A. M. Subjects:—Reading, from page 132 to 149; Grammar, 1st Chap. Fowler's Grammar; Arithmetic, Geo. Prog; Algebra, Indices; Geometry, 16th Prop. of Book I.

Y. M. C. A.—The Rev. Mr. Webber of Cobourg, delivered a very interesting and instructive Lecture in the Temperance Hall, on Monday, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association.—The subject was, "The Covenanters."—The Rev. Lecturer handled the theme well, and his effort was fully appreciated by a very intelligent audience.

POLICE COURT.—On Monday morning several Frenchmen were brought before the Mayor and D. Hopkins, Esq., for kicking up a row on Sunday in Conway's Hotel, Indian River. Two frenchmen, O'Sier and Jarvois were fined $10 each and costs, or in default of payment, to go to jail. Mr. Conway, in evidence, admitted that he sold them liquor on Sunday. He should have been fined also, for breach of the statute on that behalf.

SPRING SHOW.—We understand that the Agricultural Societies of the East and West Ridings have agreed to hold a Union Spring Show this year at Peterboro. By doing so they will be able to offer a better prize list, and of course better inducements to bring in good stock. We have often wondered that the farmers, who are the stock raisers, did not make up a special prize, as an extra inducement to get the best horses to travel in the county. This joint show, and hence larger premiums, is a move in the right direction, if continued.

NORTH MONAGHAN AFFAIRS.—Fully persuaded that all those concerned in the North Monaghan dispute have been heard, we have concluded not to allow it to be continued. It is becoming too personal, and will no longer answer any public good. We will willingly allow space for the discussion of all matters of public interest, but we intreat correspondents to avoid personalities. We only agreed to insert Mr. Collins' letter this week, because he urged that he was first assailed through the minutes of the Council, and has only written in defense of himself.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN.—On Tuesday evening the annual Soiree, in connection with the Bible Christian Church, was held. A large number took tea, of which, and all the concomitants there was abundance to spare. After tea, the Rev. Mr. Webber, delivered a very eloquent and learned lecture, on "Cromwell and his times." It occupied an hour and three quarters in delivery, and was listened to with the greatest attention. An excellent choir under the leadership of Mr. Jas. Millar, aided by others, filled the intervals of the evening's recreations and services, with some excellent pieces prepared for the occasion. We hope the funds for which the Soiree was undertaken, have received a large increase. The Tea was well got up, as all who partook thereof well know.

Mr. R. Kingan, at the close of the lecture, proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer, and Dr. Burnham seconded it in a few well-chosen remarks.

After a vote of thanks to the choir and the chairman, Mr. Butcher closed with the benediction. Afterwards the remains of the feast of fat things were disposed of by sale.

Are you a sufferer from Neuralgia Rheumatism or Pain of any description? Dr. J. Briggs Liverator will soothe away your Neuralgia sore your Rheumatism, and banish your Pain. Sold by Druggists.

Union School Board.

The Board met on Wednesday evening. Present,—Messrs. Edwards, Dumble, Tools, Gilmour, Stevenson, Lundy and Coulter.

In the absence of Dr. Burnham, Mr. Edwards was appointed Chairman, pro. tem.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was read from Mrs. Charlier, asking for repairs in her room, and certain payments in connection with her salary; and that Miss Jenkins be paid by the Board for teaching during her (Mrs. Charlier's) being a week or two unwell.—Communication received.

The report of Auditors was submitted and received, and ordered to be published.

Mr. Coulter submitted a report of Special Committee in reference to a School Site.

Mr. Lundy mentioned Mr. R. A. Morrow's Lot on Hunter Street, as a favorable Lot. Price $2,400.

Mr. Dumble spoke of Mrs. Dr. Haye's Lot, in connection with a part of Mr. Toole's Lot.

Messrs. Dumble, Lundy and Stevenson, were appointed a committee to ascertain the prices of Mrs. Haye's and other Lots.

The Board agreed to increase Mr. Dixon's salary $100, for this year. His salary is now $1100 per Annum. The members expressed their willingness to further increase it, if the School should keep up.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, seconded by Mr. Toole, it was agreed to make Miss Beaty's salary $340 for the current year.

The Board adjourned.

Owing to a little delay on the Grand Trunk Line, our supply of paper for this issue did not arrive in time. We had to proceed to Port Hope; and there found it in the Grand Trunk freight shed, without any intention of sending it, for a day or two longer. Through the kindness and courtesy of A. T. Williams, Esq. Supt. of the Port Hope and Peterboro R. R. in sending a carter for it, we received it late on Thursday; but for Mr. Williams, it might have lain till Saturday. Our readers will bear with the disappointment, we trust. It has been no small trouble to us.

Extensive Fire in Toronto.

LOSS OVER $200,000.

The Northern Railway Elevator was consumed on Monday night or Tuesday morning. The origin of the fire is not known; the only surmise is that a spark from a locomotive may have lodged on the roof, and, igniting, caused the fire. The Globe report says:

"The wheat bins contained 100,000 bushels of wheat; 1,000 bushels of barley and about 1,500 bushels of peas, besides 16,000 barrels of flour stored in the building. All this produce will be a total loss, but the loss will be pretty evenly divided among the several Insurance Companies. The Insurance Companies which suffer most are "The Western," "The Royal," and "The Montreal." The contents of the premises were owned by the following firms:—J. C. Chisholm, 25,000 bushels wheat; A. B. De la Porte, 14,000 bushels wheat, 4,000 bush. barley, and 4,000 barrels of flour; Duncan & Galloway, 11,000 bush. wheat; Coffin & Co., 8,000 bush. wheat and 800 barrels of flour; Robert Spratt, 4,000 bush. wheat and 500 barrels of flour; Melville, Fair & Co., 8,000 bush. wheat; D. Laidlaw and D. Davidson, 3,000 bush. wheat; N. Barnhart, 12,000 bushels of wheat; James Young, 6,000 bushels of wheat and 4,000 barrels of flour; John Brunskill, 5,000 barrels of flour; Thomas Clarkson, 3,000 bushels of wheat and 1,000 barrels of flour."

For the Examiner.

Lines on the Unexpected Death of a Neighbor.

BY WM. TELFORD, SMITH.

But one short week had past d away;
My pen was scarcely dry,
Until another neighbor lay
Where we must shortly lie.

In perfect health he left us here,
To Port Hope took his way;
With hopes to reach another sphere,
The state of Iowa

Mysterious are the ways of God,
At least to blinded man:
He stopped our neighbor on his road,
To execute his plan.

A small voice whispered in his ear:
No farther thou shalt go;
Affliction came, with pain severe,
And fatal was the blow.

No human skill could save his life,
When God did death decree;
He took the husband from the wife,
Father from children three.

Away from home, when sickness came,
With friends his lot was cast;
To soothe and comfort was their aim,
Until he breathed his last.

Hopes of recovery di appear;
He felt death drawing nigh;
He said: Send for my MOTHER dear,
To see me ere I die.

All thanks to Telegraph and Steam,
His wish was satisfied;
His Mother, Brothers, were with him
Three hours before he died.

If there's one hour destined for good,
A death-bed scene is one,
Just where that weeping mother stood
Beside her dying son.

His wife and children he caressed,
Committed them to God;
The hands of friends he kindly pressed,
To Death he gently bowed.

No dread of Death was on his face,
Prepared he calmly lay;
Death locked him in its cold embrace,
His spirit passed away.

He was brought back, of life bereft,
To that fond Mother's door,
Which he in health and strength had left
But one short week before.

In silent grave his ashes sleep,
Removed from friend or foe;
Across that mound, unfelt, may sweep,
The winter's drifting snow.

Friends, on that bed we too must lie;
His fate shall soon be ours;
Then live as we would wish to die,
While God bestows the power.

As one by one they pass away,
So we must shortly go;
Death's warrant may arrive to-day,
Prepare to meet the blow.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—After trespassing on your patience and space before, I feel that nothing but the false representations contained in Mr. Wood's last letter would have induced me to solicit a little space again, but this time I will be very brief.—I am no writer, but a farmer, and I do wish to follow my own occupation a little longer. Although you have signified to me your unwillingness to continue this correspondence, I feel sure that as Mr. Wood had the first shot at me, he cannot refuse me the last hearing.

It is not true that the Treasurer ever took my word for the forty dollars, as Mr. Wood states in his last minutes; as he, the (Treasurer,) had but two chances, either to pay the money claimed by me, or suffer the consequences of a suit at law. He chose the former, and paid the money.

It is not true that the Auditor reported in Feby., as I never gave up the Roll till the 27th. day of that month, on which day I paid the balance demanded in full, and took up my bonds, and never paid any money as Collector, after that date. The Auditors did not report until the 1st. of May, as his own minutes of Council show; hence then those statements of his must be untrue.

It is also untrue that I ever requested him to look over the figures, and I fail to find an order of Council authorising him to do so; if they did it, it was as individuals and not as a Council. I refer Mr. Woods to his own minutes as proof of this.

I think, Sir, in all honesty Mr. Wood should stop blackening my character, after the decision of the Auditors, and the letter of Mr. J. Campbell; and the Treasurer paying over the money, should be a sufficient guarantee for the truth of my statements. All he may write will have no effect upon the public mind in the face of these facts.

A good brother the other day said to me it was too bad for brothers in the Church to be carrying on a newspaper quarrel so long, to which I replied:—

Sometimes I with false brethern meet,
Whose hearts are full of vain deceit,
They appear quite fair just at the first
But of all men these are the worst.

Mr. Wood has been at some trouble to misrepresent me, but I care not for his misrepresentation. He may write away for ought I care. Your readers will see that he has made very little to his credit out of the past,

Thanking you for past favors, I will not trouble you on this matter again.

I am,
Yours, &c.,
H. COLLINS.
ex-Collector

Monaghan, Feby. 28th, 1870.

Smith Council.

Smith, Feb. 21st. 1870.

The Council met, all the members present.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

A By-law to provide for the appointment of overseers of highways, pound keepers and fence viewers for the present year, and to divide the roads into divisions for the performance of statute labor, and the expenditure of commutation money paid in lieu thereof, received its first second and third readings and passed.

The auditors read their report of the receipts and expenditure of the Treasurer for the year 1869, which was adopted by the council, and the clerk directed to have 150 copies printed in sheet form for distribution amongst the ratepayers.

The abatements requested by the collector of 1869 were examined by council and assented to.

Petitions praying for a certificate to obtain a license to keep a tavern were received from Asa Dunbar, John Pope, Magaret Moore, Richard Northey, Stephen Nichols, and Richard Hill.

The clerk was directed to issue his certificate to the same, upon their complying with the requirements of the law and the By-laws and regulations of the council made in that behalf.

A communication from John W. Moore asking certain privileges of the council upon his clearing the road between lots 30 and 31 in the 12th concession.

Joseph Nelson councillor was directed to examine the same.

Douro Council.

Feby. 12th, 1870.

Council met, pursuant to adjournment.

All members present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Hogan moved, seconded by Mr. Barrie,—That Michael Torpey be re-appointed Assessor for the present year, and that his salary be $60, and also, that he be appointed Inspector of Taverns.—Carried.

Mr. Casement moved, seconded by Mr. Hogan,—That, the bonds of John Sawers, required by the Tavern License Act, be accepted, and that the Reeve and Clerk be authorised to give him the necessary certificate.—Carried.

Mr. Hogan moved, seconded by Mr. Barrie,—That the Collector do credit Thos. Russell with $1.50 in his taxes on the Roll of 1869.—Carried.

Mr. Barrie moved, seconded by Mr. Moloney,—That the taxes against the S. E½ of Lot 8, Con. 7, and the E½ of Lot 4, Con. 4, be settled, by the parties assessed therefor, giving the Collector their endorsed notes, payable to the Township Treasurer, on or before the 1st day of June next, which notes the Treasurer is authorised to give the Collector credit for, when the Roll is being returned.—Carried.

Mr. Hogan moved, seconded by Mr. Moloney,—That the Reeve do issue his order in favor of John Torpey, for $1, being a dog tax paid by him, the dog having been assessed to the name of Richard Condon.—Carried.

Mr. Casement moved, seconded by Mr. Hogan,—That the Reeve do issue his order in favor of the Township Treasurer for $187.80, being the amount paid to C. A. Weller, Esq., for damages and costs, in the suit of Fitzpatrick, vs. the Township, for the loss of a horse.—Carried.

Mr. Moloney moved, seconded by Mr. Barrie,—That the Reeve do order the payment of the following accounts, viz:—R. Romaine $3.50, and Thos. Menzies $2.32.—Carried.

Mr. Barrie moved, seconded by Mr. Moloney,—That the Reeve do order payment of $1.50 each to Messrs. Jas. Hogan and Wm. Moher, for picketting the Dummer Road by order of the Council in 1869.—Carried.

Mr. Hogan moved, seconded by Mr. Barrie,—That the Reeve do give his order in favor of Widow Leahy, for $4, as charity.—Carried.

On motion, the Council adjourned to the last Saturday in March next.

Dummer Council.

Town Hall, Dummer, Feb. 28, 1870.

Second meeting. Present—the Reeve, and Councillors Drain, Smith, Kidd and Spence.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

By-law No. 238, to amend By-law No. 237, respecting the appointing of Auditors was read through all its stages and passed.

Moved by Mr. Drain, seconded by Mr. Kidd,—That Wm. Kidd receive $14 for services as License Inspector for 1869.

Moved by Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Smith, That Wm. Kidd be appointed Collector of Taxes.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Spence, seconded by Mr. Drain,—That James Wason be Collector for 1870.

The Reeve gave his vote in favor of amendment.

Moved by Mr. Spence, seconded by Mr. Drain,—That James Wason be Inspector of Licenses for 1770, and that his salary for both duties be $40.

The Reeve read a petition from Robert Lukey and 35 others, asking Council to pass a By-law to withdraw them from S. S. No. four.

A counter petition was read by trustees and 16 others, petitioning Council to take no action upon Mr. Lukey's petition.

On motion of Mr. Kidd, seconded by Mr. Drain, the matter was laid on table for next meeting. Petition was read from William Moore and others of S. S. No. 8, Dummer, in union with No. 11, Asphodel and No. 15, Otonabee, asking that all that part of said union section which is in Dummer, be withdrawn from said union. Petition granted and Trustees notified.

Mr. Smith gave notice that at next meeting of Council he will introduce a By-law to withdraw S. S. No. 8, Dummer, from union with Asphodel and Otonabee, and to annex the same to Nos. 1 and 6, Dummer.

Application was made by James Darling, as invalid, for assistance, to enable him to procure medical attendance.

Petition was received from John McNamarra, asking Council to grant him a certificate to obtain a Shop License for selling liquors.

Moved by Mr. Drain, seconded by Mr. Smith,—That certificate be granted.

A communication was read from County Treasurer, informing the Council that the late Treasurer had sold certain lots in Dummer for arrears of taxes, but had not received the reserve price put up on them by Reeve also, informing Council that purchaser was willing to add $50 as bonus to purchase money, and asking whether Council would confirm the sale.

Moved by Mr. Drain, seconded by Mr. Smith,—That Council do not confirm the sale.—Carried.

The Council then appointed Overseers of Highways, Pound Keepers, Fence Viewers, &c.

Orders were issued upon Treasurer in favor of the following persons and for sums annexed:—Wm. Kidd, License Inspector. 1869, $15.00; Fred. Myles, for keeping a lunatic one week, $5 00; James Darling, to procure medical attendance, $8.00; Mrs. Corrigan, charity, $4.00.

Council then adjourned to meet again on second Saturday in March.

A. S. MAGUIRE,
T. Clerk.

Peterboro Protestant Home.

Some eighteen months ago the committee of the above charity were notified through Mr. Dennistoun, (now Judge Dennistoun) of the intention of Mr. Pearson, of Smith, to transfer to Trustees a mortgage for $1,000, the money when collected to be for the benefit of the home. The committee thereupon acknowledged through the newspapers of the Town, their sense of Mr. Pearsons good intentions, but soon afterwards he removed the Mortgage and other papers from Mr. Dennistoun's care, without having executed the transfer to the Trustees, for the committee, who have since heard nothing more of it. They think it advisable those circumstances should be made known to the public, through the same channel as that by which their acknowledgements were conveyed, and especially as this intended gift of Mr. Pearson has been confused with another for a like sum of $1,000 from a different source now awaiting disposition at their hands. The name of the person who bestows this second $1,000, is not to be disclosed until the handsome gift has been indited, for several years past, to the generosity of Mr. R. A. Morrow. For the same object a grant was lately obtained from the County Council, and to the fund thus commenced, has been added the proceeds of the two public entertainments, given this winter under the superintendence of the Committee. It is earnestly hoped that all who are favorable to the Home will now come forward with every aid in their power for the furtherance of the undertaking, and in continued support of the work in hand.

Lists of the regular subscriptions and donations in money, received in the sixteen months between the date of the last published accounts and the fourteenth of the present month, are published with this, all the other donations, (not in money) having already appeared in the newspaper acknowledgements made after the close of each month. The Treasurer's accounts have been submitted to an auditor for examination, and the proper statements prepared for publication as the Committee may direct, of the receipts in full as above as well as of the general expenses of the Home itself, and of the amount specially paid out for the relief of the poor outside the building. With regard to this latter amount the Committee wish it to be understood that it by no means represents the whole costs of the assistance rendered in outdoor relief. In fact (with the exception of a small loan and a gift in money in an unusual instance,) it consists merely of what has been paid out for wood supplied and for grocery or bread-orders on the shops. But from the Home stores, soup is made and given out several times a week, principally for the sick; and also, according to the exigencies of the the cases, bread, meat and clothing are distributed. The orders for groceries are always for small quantities at a time for each applicant, but they are repeated week after week as thought requisite, sometimes for months together, and even for years in instances of helpless destitution.

What Others Think.

The Evening Mail, Ottawa, says: "There is a class of men on the Ministerial benches who are perfectly convinced in their own minds of the necessity for a change in the Government, but who dare not vote against the Tories for the fear they have of going back to their constituents, who would certainly reject them. These men have their five years to enjoy the salary given to them by the country, and they are determined to enjoy this and the pickings that fall to them. They sit on their seats from one year's end to another, do nothing but vote like a flock of sheep when bidden by Sir John A. Macdonald or Sir George E. Cartier. These men have neither the ability nor the pluck to do as the country requires of them. What are the interests of their constituents and of the country compared to their own necessities! These are the men whom the Tory leaders trade on. These are the men who keep the Tories from resigning en masse. They are without souls and despicably insignificant, but they are useful. Their reward is a shake of the hand or a nod from their lords and masters. Can we call such men?

The Gas Question.

A man in New York, possessed of an inquiring turn of mind has been investigating the Gas Question. At the time he commenced his investigations his bills were six dollars, with two burners in use. He then used fluid and only one burner. The result was an immediate increase in his bills. A friend then told him to use all the burners in his house, and agreed to pay the whole amount of his bill above six dollars. Careless for his friend's pocket, he boldly lighted every burner, and, coal being high, introduced several gas stoves. The startling result was that he bills thereforth were never more than five dollars. The conclusion he came to was that his gas bills were were regulated by the guess work in the clerk's head rather than by the clock-work of the gas meter. We believe that this experience in the intricate uncertainty of gas measuring is not confined to a single city.

THE BISHOP AND THE RED RIVER TROUBLE.—Bishop Tache gives it as his opinion that the Dominion must grant 'liberal concessions' to the insurgents in the North-West, without further delay, in order to insure peace and an amicable settlement. It is to be hoped that the Dominion Government will not be so foolish as to grant any thing as 'liberal concessions." The absolute rights of the people must be respected in every particular; but more than that they are British subjects on British soil, and that they possess rights in common with all other citizens of the empire, rights which our Government are prepared to and must respect. They have the same rights as the rest of us, but nothing more. Bishop Tache is playing a foolish part, and injuring rather than bettering the condition of the people, by leading them to fancy for one moment that they must demand or that we must make 'liberal concessions.' If they expect that we are going to grant them special privileges they are very much mistaken.—Toronto Telegraph.

In the United States Senate the Public Lands Committee has reported in favor of a grant to a railway company for a line from St. Paul to the Red River frontier. It is intended, so it is said, to express sympathy with the struggle of the Winnipeg people for Republican institutions, and to checkmate the Canada Pacific Railroad.

Mrs. Grant is a great stickler for forms. She insists upon ceremonious recognition of her husband's rank even in his own household, and surrounded by his most intimate friends. When adjourning to the dining-room, should a gentleman guest rise and offering his arm to Mrs. Grant attempt to lead off with her, he is pretty sure to receive from that lady an emphatic reminder that "the President goes first."

CATARRH, is a disease which distresses us and disgusts our friends, can be instantly relieved and quickly cured by using Dr J Briggs' Allevantor, a invaluable Remedy for all pain and Inflammation. Sold by Druggists.

$4 25 vs. $500 00.

Economy in Health and Physic is an important as in business, and we know of no cheaper, better, or surer means of preserving health and divesting the sick of their infirmities, than through the medium of Dr Radway's famous medicines. We present a case in point

CASE 1,236.—Marcus W. Mount, long a sufferer from liver complaints, has paid, he says, at different times, about $250 to physicians, and he thinks as much more for medicines. Is induced to try Radway's Pills, with occasional doses of the Renovating Resolvent to assist in removing it from his system the effects of the mercurial treatment to which he has been subject. Soon feels the benefit of the change. Takes in all, five boxes of the Pills and three bottles of the Resolvent, and at the end of the course is "as well as he ever was in life."

Glance at the account current below:

Bills for medical attendance, $150; outlay for prescriptions, $250 (so much money thrown away)	$500 00
Five boxes Rad way's Pills, $1 25; three bottles Resolvent, at $1 each, $3 —(disease removed)	4 25
Balance in favor of the Regulating Pills and Resolvent	$495 75

R. R. R. Remedies sold by Druggists and Country Merchants. See Dr. Radway's almanac, 1870.

TORONTO MARKETS.—Wheat sold by the car load yesterday at 86 cents; Barley at 50 cents. It is bought from 82 cents to 84 cents. Fall for choice samples—has brought 93 cents; Barley, 45c. to 56c.; Peaso. 55c. to 56.; Oats, 32c. to 34c.; Rye, 50c. to 51c.; Clover, $6.25 to $6.40; Hay, $7.00 to $10.50; Dressed Hogs, $8.00 to $8.25.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

We beg all those who suffer from Catarrh, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., to try Dr. J Briggs' Allevantor; the relief and benefit derived from its use will be greater than from any other remedy known. After once testing its worth, no person would willingly be without it. For the maladies it is intended to cure, it is unequalled. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

THE POET, PRIEST, Philosopher and Sage. All turn with rapture to the Golden Age. For, in that happy period they find Instruction and delight for all mankind. The human race when happiest then, because They lived according to Dame Nature's laws. Their wants were few and easily supplied; Their food and drink were found on every side; Their clothing did not know the tailor's art It did not bind the lungs or crowd the heart; Their walk was graceful, free and unconstrained, For not a foot of all that race was pained With Corn or Bunion (dreadful modern ills), With sandals shod, they scaled the sternest hills, Or roamed the plains, by happiness possessed, No ache or pain destroyed their perfect rest. Briggs' Modern Curative, the only reliable and most efficacious remedy in the world for the speedy cure of Corns, Bunions, Club and Inverted Nales, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, No. 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION.—The general symptoms of this disease are an habitual cough, morbid expectoration, pains in the breat, casual flush feverish heat in the hands, feet, and cheeks, change of voice, thin fingers and nose, bent or crooked nails, falling of the hair, &c. This disease has been divided into three, four, and even five, stages by medical writers; but, for practical purposes, three stages will be found best adapted to the course of the disease. To entirely cure this cough, and eradicate all the early symptoms of this fatal malady, Dr. Briggs' Renovator, the Great Throat and Lung Healer, is thoroughly adequate and sure. It is not unpleasant to the palate, and its properties are all of a healing and purifying nature. After once having used it, no person would hesitate to acknowledge its superior efficacy in staying the hand of that fell Destroyer, Consumption. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers, Dr. J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Bradway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear!" Proclaim the glad tidings far and near! Let all the world rejoice, for the days of excruciating agony, the sleepless nights of woe will be but a phantom, a thing of the past, for Briggs Allevantor will conquer pain, will speedily drive it from the system like chaff before the wind, No matter from what cause, no matter in what portion of the body, when Briggs Alevantor is applied, pain must cease. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J briggs & Co. Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 28th, 1866.

Messrs. RAYMUND C. LEITE & BRO:

GENTLEMEN:—While a son of my friend Mr. Francisco de Mattos Pimenta (a large proprietor in the Cidade de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tonoco, who is thought a great deal of in Campos, but the fever, instead of diminishing, turned, continued, and typhoid, the boy (14 years old) could not speak, would not take the broths, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tinoco declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the Relief pure on the Chest, back and wrists; three (of Radway's) Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after meals, one dessert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments.

I remain, gentlemen,
Your very obedient servant,
JOAQUIM PINTO FALCAO, Merchant.

Dr. Radway's Remedies are sold by Druggists and Country Merchants.

See Dr. Radway's Almanac for 1868.

At a Public Meetting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly: as immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel commiaints, and all other diseases incident to this climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer." Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

Dr J Briggs' Allevator, for the care of Catrrah, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., is unrivalled. In a thorough trial of its virtues, all will acknowledge its superiority. Sold by Druggist.

MILKING whether for human reason, or in view of pecuniary profit, should be done as clean as possible by the same hands.

THE ECCLESIASTICAL COUNCIL lately called at Rome is an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large assemblies of this nature containing representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be as harmonious and unanimous as the verdict in favor of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, for diseases of the lungs, blood, stomach, liver, &c For sale by all druggists.

INVERTED TOE-NAIL is a very painful disease, gene ally the result of wearing tight shoes, and is usually accompanied with more or less inflammation, and, at times, ulceration. The great toe is the one usually attacked. At first, there is only a little uneasiness, which ceases when the shoe or boot is removed from the foot; after a time the part becomes tender or inflamed, and the corner or edge of the nail is found pressing deeply into the flesh, while the whole nail is narrow, and much arched across Ulceration eventually comes, proud flesh appears, and the pain becomes very severe For the sloughing of the proud flesh, healing the ulceration, and eventually curing the toe, use Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative, according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

As me! I heed not as the passers-by
Mark my pale cheek and sunken eye;
I feel no joy, as the golden ray
Of the glorious sun lights up the day!
My dear sick friend, to restore to your cheek
Its healthy rose color, Briggs' Lung Healer seek;
Use as directed, and soon you will see,
From Consumption, Bronchitis, you are entirely free.

GREAT SUFFERING.—How many thousand ladies, both young and old, have passed through great suffering from that terrible demon, Neuralgia, some passing a sleepless night tossing about in great agony, but succeed in getting relief after a few hours of misery, only to be renewed again in a short time with the same unrelenting, excruciating pain. Others have endured this terrible torture for weeks both day and night, until exhausted with such continual suffering, and almost wishing for the angel of death to relieve them; but hope dawns: a cure has been discovered, a rapid and radical cure; Briggs' Allevantor is the remedy: can be tested, free, at No. 6 King St. West Toronto; is sold by Druggists and Country Merchants everywhere. Dr. J. Briggs' & Co., Proprietors' No. 208 Broadway, New York

NEURALGIA may be distinguished from rheumatism by the intensity of the pain, its short continuance, and its liability to return on the slightest touch; in acute rheumatism there is fever, redness, heat in the part affected, and some swelling, all of which are absent in Neuralgia; in chronic rheumatism the pain is continuous, less severe, and often worse at night. From toothach, by the shortness of the paroxysm, the rapidity of its su cession, and the frequent convulsive twitchings. To obtain immediate relief, use Dr. J. Briggs' Allevantor, according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 2 8 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

For twenty-four years has Dr. Bucos' still Relieved much pain; but thousands suffer still. His skilful hands have eased the twingeing pain, Restored the foot to shape and health again. His curative tea thousand have applied, How now pronounce the name of Buchus with pride.

He sees with deep delight, in many a face, That he has proved a blessing to his race! All he asks, is but to follow still The course assigned to Providential will; "The laborer is worthy of hishire:" A living price is all he would desire; And all who close to profit by his art, Will find him master over every part.

Briggs' Curative, the only reliable and most efficacious Remedy in the world for the speedy cure of Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails. &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, No. 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King Street West Toronto.

Dr. Bucos took of every substance known, That ever healed, or stilled a groan, And soon composed by skill alone, His own unrivalled Curative.

The people said, at last was found A cure for every sore or wound; They have used it, and are whole and sound, And all their pain have left them.

Afflicted with corns, bunions, or bruise, Thousands of sufferers neard the news, The thing was found that met their views; They bought and used th Curative.

No sooner was the sore part dressed The pain was eased that spoilt their rest; With tears of gratitude they blest The man who made the Curative.

All signs of soreness soon went by, Whether in hand, or foot, or eye, Let every sufferer likewise try Dr. Bucos' Modern Curative.

Briggs' Curative, the only reliable and most, efficacious Remedy for the cure of Corns Bunions, Bad Nails, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors. Office-, No. 208 Broadway, New York, and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto Canada.

A CLERGY MAN writing to a friend says, "My voyage to Europe is indefinitely postponed. I have discovered the 'fountain of health' on this side of the Atlantic. Three bottles of the Peruvian Syrup have rescued me from the fangs of the fiend Dyspepsia." Dyspeptics should drink from this fountain.

SUFFERERS from Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails and those torturing afflictions, Chilblains, are earnestly recommended to use Dr. J. Briggs, well-known Cultivate for certain relief and positive cure. Sold by Druggist.

ALL persons suffering from Piles, Internal, Bleeding, External or Itching piles will be immediately relieved and eventually cured by using Dr. J. Briggs' Pile Remedy sold by Druggists.

DYSPEPSIA is one of the most frequent diseases with which the physician meets; it is found in every country, at every season of the year, and among all classes of society, and is more generally a malady of middle age, young persons being, as a rule, exempt from it. It usually commences gradually, and in a very insidious manner, producing, more or less, distress, and in many instances rendering life a burden. Dr. J Briggs' Allevantor, used according to directions for Dyspepsia, has been proved to be a very superior remedy, and those who use it will not be disappointed in the result. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

R. R. R. IN BRAZIL.

We refer the reader to the following testmony in favor of Dr. RADWAY'S REMEDIES, from gentleman of high character in Brazil. Persons doubting the genuineness of the same are requested to write to the parties, also to the U. S. Consul at Rio, as to the correctness of the statements and status of the writers. For every word not true the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid:

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 23d, 1866.

Messrs. RAYMUNDO C. LEITE & BRO:

GENTLEMEN:—In answer to your favor of 20th instant, asking my opinion in regards to the efficacy of Dr. RADWAY & Co.'s preparations. I am happy to say that I consider the Relief and Pills the best remedies ever known, and to form such an opinion I am obliged to prove it, which I will do willingly viz: I suffered so much from "colic" that when I was attacked it pained me so much that I preferred death to such sufferings, I took everything that was reccomended, but it was of no use, at last I took 4 of Radway's Pills, after which the pains were very moderate, and then I thought that I was cured, but the pains were still violent (which I attribute to the negligence in my part in not following it up as directed,) that I was obliged to give in to my friend's request to take sum "Relief," which he gave he gave me in a dose of one tablespoon in a tumbler of water. In the interval of three minutes I felt relieved immediately, and fifteen minutes after the pain ceased. It is three months since I had an attack, and should I feel any symptoms of it I take the "Relief," I will do all in my power to convince the doctors of the good results of these medicaments. so that they may prescribe them.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

LUIS JOSE DA SILVA CAMPOS.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

STOP AND SEE!

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Stormes, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Ernestown, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood of Cameron, Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Napanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well? Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

☞ Call at the Drug Store and get a Circular of unquestionable certificates on the GREAT SHOSHONEES REMEDY and satisfy yourselves.

Price of Remedy in large pints $1.00.

☞ For sale by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicine. Agents for Peterborough—Messrs. Kempt, Coulter, Ormond & Walsh, Ontario Drug Store, and Dr. Taylor and Dr. Bell.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP!

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

Relief and Health to your infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak of terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW" after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by druggists throughout the world.

DR. A. TRASK'S MAGNETIC OINTMENT!

CURES CROUP OR BATTLES.

Dr. Dingham, of Utica, New York, says:—"I have used Dr. A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment in my practice a number of years, and can say with pleasure I deem it one of the greatest discoveries of the age for the cure of Inflammation of the Lungs, Inflammatics of the Bowels, Inflammatory Rheumatism, and in Child Bed Fever, it operates with perfect success. In cases of Burns, Bruises, Frozen Limbs, it acts like a charm."

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"it has stood the test true and has not been found wanting. Its astonishing cures of Inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subsiding the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A. W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. A Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment" are on the wrapper.

THE SARSAPARILLA DIGGERS OF YUCATAN.—This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico, and still retain some of the peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co, employ a small army of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with narrow spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild banana furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own, [Boston Commercial.

PILES may be caused by anything that will irritate the lower bowels, producing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in past years the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight stays, sedentary habits, high living, boating, irritating food, &c. Dr J. Briggs' Unrivalled Pile Remedy, remarkable for its aperient excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do not hesitate to recommend it in the highest terms. Sold by Druggist and country Merchants generally. Dr J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

A Country Life for Me.

After removed from bustling life,
Remote from cities gay,
The valley spreads its carpet green
For Nature out to play;
And waving in the singing winds
That carol o'er the plain,
The tall tree bends its graceful form
To list the song again.

In brilliancy the orb of day
Smiles from the Eastern sky,
And sweetly breathes its gentle breath,
From Heaven's arch-way high:
The wild flower blushes fairest there,
Untrammeled in its pride,
While Nature wreaths a garland rich
To deck its noon-day bride.

The streamlet o'er its pebbled bed
Flows rippling from its source,
And leaves the mossy rocks that stand
To sentinel its course;
The warbling songsters of the wood
Their softest wild notes blend
In mingling cadence with the winds
That up to Heaven ascend.

As evening follows day's decline,
The twilight shadows seem
To cluster phantomly around,
Beneath the starlight gleam;
Until the rising moon dispels,
With silvery rays of light,
The ideal pictures painted by
The pencil of the night.

A country life 'mid leafy woods,
'Mid flowers, and streams, and love,
'Mid wild delights, 'mid blessings pure,
Beneath, around, above—
A calm, that's fascination's self,
It woos the mind with truth,
The birthright valued there alike
Is found for age and youth.

Advice to Girls.—Do not estimate the worth of a young man by his ability to talk soft nonsense, nor by the length of his moustache. Do not imagine that an extra ribbon tied about the neck, can remedy the defect of a soiled collar or an untidy dress. If your hands are browned by labour, do not envy the lily fingers of Miss Fuss and Feathers, whose mother works in the kitchen while the daughter lounges in the parlor. If a dandy with a cigar between his fingers, asks you if smoking is offensive to you, tell him emphatically, "Yes." The habit should be even is the odor is not. Do not waste your tears on the imaginary sorrows of Alonzo and Melissa, nor the trials of the dime novel heroines. Seek rather to alleviate the woes of the suffering ones on earth. Always cherish a partiality for the smell of dish-water—it is more conducive to health and far less expensive than the "Bouquet of Eden."

Of all the boys and girls that we have known, we never knew one to succeed in life who spent his time when young, in reading exciting stories. We do not say you may not read stories. But we do say, that if you want to be of any use in the world, you ought not to let your reading be story reading. And what is more, you ought to read nothing but good stories. But how can we tell wether it is good or not? There are very many books that have a weak moral, or a religious side, that are yet good for nothing. They are too exciting, and breathe a bad air. How shall we know the good ones? A book that makes us feel brave, strong for our work, is good. If any writer makes us feel, not that we would like to do better, but that we "will" do better, we may trust such an author. But if a book gives us a feeling that our life is dull, that we would like to be somewhere else than where God has put us, that book does us harm.

The mother of a family was married to an infidel who made jest of religion in the presence of his own children, yet she succeeded in bringing them all up in the fear of the Lord. I asked her one day how she preserved them from the influence of a father whose sentiments were so opposed to her own. This was her answer.—"Because to the authority of a father I do not oppose the authority of a mother, but that of God. From their earliest years my children have always seen the Bible upon my table. This holy book has constituted the whole of their religious instruction. I was silent that I might allow it to speak. Did they propose a question, did they commit a fault, did they perform a good action—I opened the Bible, and the Bible answered, reproved or encouraged them. The constant reading of the Scripture has wrought the prodigo which surprises you."

Here is a good lesson from an iron bar. Read it, children. A bar of iron worth five dollars, worked into horse shoes, is worth $10 50; made into needles, it is worth $355; made into penknife blades, it is worth $3,295; made into balance-springs of watches, it is worth $250,000. What a drilling the bar must undergo to reach all that; but hammered and beaten, and pounded and polished, how was its value increased? It might well have quivered and complained under the hard knocks it got; but were they not all necessary to draw out its fine qualities, and fit it for higher offices? And so my children, all the drilling and training which you are subject to in youth, and which seems so hard to you, serve to bring out your nobler and finer qualities, and fit you for more responsible posts and greater usefulness in the world.

Queer answers are very often received by grown people who talk to children, for the reason that the latter have not yet become accustomed to the subtleties and figurative meanings and round-about ways of words, and therefore, look at things very practically. 'Sam,' said a young mother to her darling boy, 'do you know what the difference is between the body and the soul? The soul my child, is what you live with; the body carries you about. This is your body [touching the boy's shoulder and arms,] but there is something deeper in. You can feel it now. What is it?" 'Oh! I know,' said he, with a flash of intelligence in his eyes; 'that is my flannel shirt.'

Passing in a bugh city to and fro—what mark we? Noise, and motion; earnest faces that glance by us and are gone, never, perhaps to meet us any more. Yet each passing figure of humanity has a spirit, a will, and a purpose, thereby made part of the city's might. In all the seeming confusion—the strange feet that press our path, the strange voices that meet our ear—there is purpose and order. The flow of life in the roaring street may differ each day, yet is, in some amount and character, the same—differing in its parts, but resulting from the will of each.

CANADA'S EMBLEM.

BY W. BIRCH CANAVAN,—OTTAWA.

Let other nations proudly praise
The Emblems of their Fame,
That sounding down thro' ages long,
Have won immortal name.
Let Britain, Greatest of them all,
Loud praise her glorious three:
That like her Sons are joined as one
In CANADA THE FREE.

Old Erin's Shamrock, England's Rose,
And Scotia's Thistle green,
Awake the love of Britain's Sons,
In many a far off scene;
And nowhere, in the wide world o'er
Those cherished emblems three,
Are truly honor'd more than here—
In CANADA THE FREE.

But, there's another emblem yet,
Dearer to us than all;
That tells of happy hearts and homes,
And Freedoms joyous call,
A magic light,—a Beacon bright
To myriads o'er the sea,
Our Emblem Chief the Maple Leaf
Of CANADA THE FREE.

It breathes no tale of ancient feuds,
Betrays no barren soil,
But welcomes to our grand old woods
The Sons of honest toil;
Gives equal rights and equal laws
To all, whoe'er they be,
Our Emblem Chief—the Maple Leaf
Of CANADA THE FREE.

Then while we prize with filial love
The Shamrock and the Rose,
The Thistle and the Fleur de Lys
Forget not;—yet there grows
Upon our broad and fertile soil,
A Noble Forest tree;
With graceful Leaf—the Emblem Chief
Of CANADA THE FREE.

Tavern and Shop Licences.

The "Act Respecting Tavern and Shop Licences," passed during the second session of the Ontario Legislature, received several amendments during the late session, which it is hoped, will make its working more satisfactory to the public. The twelfth section of the act has been repealed, and a new one inserted instead. The principal clause in this provides "that it shall not be lawful for the council of any township, town, &c., to grant any certificate for a license, or any certificate whatever, whereby any person can obtain or procure any license for the sale of spirituous fermented or intoxicating liquors, on the days of the exhibition of the Agricultural Association of Ontario, or of any county, electoral division or township Agricultural Society exhibition, either on the grounds of such society, or within the distance of three hundred yards from such grounds." By the 29th section any police officer, constable, or license inspector, may, at any time, enter any tavern or other place where refreshments or liquors are sold; and any person who refuses admittance, or offers any obstruction, after due summons, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than ten, and not more than fifty dollars for each offence.

The Indians of South-western Kansas and North-western Texas are said to be getting up an unappeasable appetite for white peoples scalps, and are becoming dangerous. A Texas editor proposes that a brigade of strychnine-whiskey dealers be sent against them, armed with an unlimited supply of their deadly fluid. He thinks that would "clean out" the entire race in the speediest and cheapest manner.

A woman in Mansfield, Ohio, sued a Saloon keeper for damages done her, by selling liquor to her husband, and got a verdict for $250.

REV. NEWMAN HALL is reported to have stated that 30,000 persons are annually expelled from the English Churches for intemperance.

There are on South Street—in the city of London, England, 25,000 homeless and friendless boys.

Things that I have seen.—I have seen a farmer build a house so large that the sheriff turned him out of doors. I have seen a young man sell a good farm, turn merchant, and die in an insane hospital. I have seen a farmer travel out so much that there was nothing at home worth looking after. I have seen rich men's sons begin where their fathers left off and end were their fathers began—penniless. I have seen a young girl marry a young man of dissolute habits, and repent it as long as she lived. I have seen the extravagance and folly of children, bring their parents to poverty and want, and themselves to disgrace. I have seen a prudent, industrious wife retrive the future of a family, when her husband pulled at the other end of the rope. I have seen young men who despise the council of the wise and advice of the good, end their career in poverty and wickedness. I have seen a man spend more in folly than would support his family in comfort and independence. I have seen a man depart from the truth, when candor and veracity would have served him a much better purpose. I have seen a man engage in a law-suit about a trifling affair, that cost him more in the end than would have roofed all the buildings on the farm.

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

It has been said by a few unfortunate mortals who have striven in vain to gain position of honor and distinction, that they were not sufficiently appreciated. While such may sometimes be the case, it is generally to be observed that true deserving worth is cordially accepted and honored, whether applied to religion, politics, the arts, or invention. Next to religion, invention or discovery, has the highest position, for it wields a mighty influence; through its channels nations have overleaped, as if by magic, the bounds of a separation, and united by electric wires, can converse together at momentary will.

Indeed, the diversified efforts of man's genius in these respects, are a source of admiration and gratitude to the whole human race. In medicine, science has revealed during the last quarter of a century, many hidden truths, which had before been considered to be impossibilities. The malignity of pestilential disease is now in a great measure bereft of its terror and even the "insatiate archer," consumption, is arrested in his deadly march, and oftentimes overthrown. Undoubtedly the great rallying power in the treatment of this and other pulmonary diseases, is DR. WISTER'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY; and the foregoing allusions are applicable to the memory of its illustrious discoverer. The proof of the efficacy of this great remedy is in its undying reputation. It has stood the test of time, and its fame as a curative of throat and lung complaints has extended to all climes.—Canada Christian Advocate.

DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO. We sometimes hear persons say, 'my horse is sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;' they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us this his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell more rapidly and for higher prices. The article is 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy.' Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co is on each package Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealer

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them; those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Their operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitations of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings, they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of souling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a

HAIR DRESSING,

nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

CONCENTRATION the great principle. The system of infinitesimal doses of medicine diffused in gallons of injurious stimulants exploded. All useless material discarded. The active principle only of the most powerful and efficient remedies known, concentrated in a small, convenient form HABITUAL CONSTIPATION CURED. All diseases of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, permanently relieved by using Dr. Colby's ANTI-COSTIVE AND TONIC PILLS, Sugar-Coated. Recommended by the Medicine Profession.

GLAD TIDINGS FOR ALL.—Those who have no hair may have it.—Those woo have plenty, may preserve and beautify it. Those who are losing it may have its loss arrested. The hair strengthened, beautified, restored, by using HURD'S EXCITE HAIR GLOSS, cheapest, cleanest, best. Don't rest till you have tried a bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

SUCCESS begets envy. Hence the efforts of certain vendors of Liniment to decry Jacobs' RHEUMATIC Liquid. Wherever introduced, it drives all others from the market. Pain positively annihilated by its use. We have not room to enumerate the virtues accorded to it by the thousands who have used it. No medicine ever invented is capable of more extended application. It has hundreds of imitators, but not one RIVAL. Beware of Counterfeits.

DARLEY'S
Arabian Heave Remedy and Conditine Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases, and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions thus equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

THE TRUE
THEORY OF PURGATION
APPLIED TO THE
Liver, Kidneys, Skin, STOMACH & BOWELS.

DR. RADWAY'S PERFECT PURGATIVE PILLS,

Perfectly Tasteless,
ELEGANTLY COATED.

Dr. RADWAY has completed one of the most essential discoveries in medical chemistry in the combination of vegetable substances, for the purposes of a PURGATIVE, ALTERANT, CLEANSER AND IRRITANT, ALTERATIVE PILL, that can be taken or administered with the absolute certainty of securing THOROUGH EXPULSION OF ALL DISEASED AND DECOMPOSING Elements of the human body, and also safe to take in the most malignant of Eruptive Fevers. In cases where the mucous membranes of the internal viscera are suffering from Ulceration, Inflammation, or from

LIVER,
Gastric, Biliary, Pancreatic Complaints,
DR. RADWAY'S PILLS

supply the only Vegetable substitute for CALOMEL or MERCURY.

In RADWAY'S PILLS you have one medicine that will search out these troubles, and better results than will be given in from three or more different prescriptions of the medical practitioner. As a proof of this, You are seized with a Bilious attack. Don't prescribe Blue Pills or Calomel next, some Drastic Mineral Pill or Powders to work on the coats of the blue Pills this penetrates you, and a basis is set up for a gentle assault, when a ONE DOSE OF RADWAY'S PILLS will do the work fully. Severe purgatives are given to you without producing sufficient relief from mercurial ptomaine pills using the system.

RADWAY'S PILLS.

In RADWAY'S PILLS the true principle of purgation is discovered, and alone to the effect of expelling the bases and excrementitious from the bowels, but those humors that are elsewhere deposited in the passage through the system, such as the blood, flesh, fat, nerves, and all excreting and secreting organs, for in these experiments we propose to send up in the blood vessels, but must be poured there by the skin, liver, kidneys, lungs, bowels, and other excreting organs, they have a direct influence on the blood vessels

To MESSRS. CHAMBERLAIN & SILLS, Conway P.O County of Lennox, Ontario, Canada.
MADOC, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th., 1869.
This is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on up to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I sought medical advice, employing, at different times, three doctors, and medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, but of no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1868, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy by reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At this time I had begun to feel the weakness in my hands; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was not a private one, but known to all my neigabors and friends; and to any one afflicted as I was, I have only to say try the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you,
MARY ANN DOUGHTY.
Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this ninth day of February, 1869.
A. F. WOOD, J. P. &c.
I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness. I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.

Poetry.

Under the Snow.

"Over the mountains, under the snow,
Lieth a valley cold and low,
Wreath a white, immoveal pall,
Desolate, dreary, soulless all,
And soundless, save when the wintry blast
Sweeps with funeral music past.

Yet was not that valley not always so
For I trod its summer paths long ago,
And I gathered flowers of fairest dyes
Where now the snow-drift heaviest lies
And I drank from rills that with murmuring song
Wandered in golden light along
Through bowers whose ever-fragrant air
Was heavy with perfume of flow'rets fair,
Through cool, green meadows, where all day long,
The wild bee droned his voluptuous song,
While over all shone the eye of love
In the violet-tinted heavens above.

And through the valley ran veins of gold,
And the Rivers o'er beds of amber rolled;
There were pearls in the white sand thickly sown,
And rocks that diamond-crusted shone;
All richest fruitage—all rarest flowers—
All sweetest music of summer bowers—
All sounds the softest—all sights most fair,
Made earth a Paradise everywhere.

Over the mountains, under the snow,
Lieth that valley cold and low,
Where came no slowly consuming blight,
But the snow swept silently down at night,
And when the morning looked forth again
The seal of silence was on the plain;
And fount and forest, and bower and stream
Were hidden all from his pallid beam,
And there deep-hidden under the snow,
Is buried the wealth of the long ago—
Pearls and diamonds—veins of gold,
Priceless treasures of wealth untold,
Harps of wonderful sweetness stilled
While yet the air was with music filled—
Hands that stirred the resounding string
To melodies such as the angels sing—
Faces radiant with smile and tear
That beat enraptured the sounds to hear—
And high, calm foreheads, and earnest eyes,
That came and went beneath sunset skies.

There they are lying under the snow,
And the winds moan over them sad and low,
Pale still faces that smile no more,
Calm closed eyelids whose light is o'er,
Silent lips that will never again
Move to music's entrancing strain,
White hands folded o'er marble hearts—
Each under the mantling snow-drift rests.
And the wind their requiem sounds o'er and o'er,
In the oft repeated 'No more—no more!'

'No more—no more!' I shall never hear
That funeral dirge in its moanings drear;
But I may not linger with faltering head
Anear my treasures—anear my dead.
On through many a thorny maze,
Up slippery rocks, and through tangled ways,
Lieth my cloud-mantled path, afar
From that buried vale where my treasures are.

But there bursts a light through the heavy gloom,
From the sun-bright towers of my distant home;
Fainter the wail of the sad 'No more',
Is heard as I slowly near that shore;
And sweet home-voices come sad and low
Half-drowning that requiem's dirge-like flow.

I know it is sorrow's baptism stern
That has given me this for my home to yearn—
That has quickened my ear to the tender call
Which down from the jasper height doth fall—
And lifted my soul from the songs of earth
To music of higher and holier birth,
Turning the tide of a yearning love
To the beautiful things that are found above;
And I bless my Father through blinding tears,
For the chastening love of departed years,
For hidden my idols so low—so low—
Over the mountains under the snow."

The Two Generals.

A STORY OF THE WAR IN KENTUCKY.

Mrs. Reckenthorpe was nearly twenty years younger than her husband, but even with this advantage on her side Ada's doings were almost too much for her. She, however, at last managed to consult the Major, and he resolved upon appealing to the generosity of his younger son. By this time the Confederate general was warming himself in the kitchen, having declared that his brother might do as he pleased; he would not skulk away from his father's house in the night.

"Frank," said the father, as his younger son sat silently thinking of what had been told him, "it cannot be your duty to be false to your father in his own house."

"It is not always easy, Sir, for a man to see what is duty. I wish that either he or I had not come here."

"But he is here; and you, his brother, would not take advantage of his coming to the fathers house!" said the old man.

"Do you remember, Sir, how he told me last year that, if ever he met me on the field, he would shoot me like a dog!"

"But, Frank, you know that he is the last man in the world to carry out such a threat. Now he has come here with great danger."

"And I have come with none; but I do not see that that makes any difference."

"He has put up with it all that he may see the girl he loves."

"Pshaw!" said Frank, rising from his chair. "When a man has work to do, he is a fool to give way to play. The girl he loves! Does he not know that it is impossible that she should ever marry him? Father, I ought to insist that he should leave this house as a prisioner. I know that would be my duty."

"You would have, Sir, to bear my curse."

"I should not the less have done my duty. But, father, independently of your threat, I will neglect that duty. I cannot bring myself to break my mothers heart and yours. But I will not see him. Good-bye, Sir. I will go up to the Hotel, and leave the place before day break to-morrow."

After some few further words, Frank Reckenthorpe left the house without encountering his brother. He also had not seen Ada Forster since that former Christmas when they had all been together, and he had now left his camp and come across from the army much more with the view of inducing her to acknowledge the hopelessness of her engagement with his brother than from any domestic idea of passing Christmas at home. He was a man who would not have interfered with his brothers prospects, as regarded either love or money, if he had thought that in doing so he would in truth have injured his brother. He was a hard man, but one not wilfully unjust. He had satisfied himself that a marriage between Ada and his brother must, if it were practicable, be ruinous to both of them. If this were so, would not it be better for all parties that there should be another arrangement made? North and South were as far divided now as the two poles. All Ada's hopes and feelings were with the North.—Could he allow her to be taken as a bride among perishing slaves and ruined whites?

But when the moment for his sudden departure came, he knew that it would be better that he should go without seeing her. His brother Tom had made his way to her through cold, and wet, and hunger, and through infinite perils of a kind sterner even than these. Her heart now would be full of softness towards him. So Frank Reckenthorpe left the house without seeing any one but his mother. Ada, as the front door closed behind him, was still standing close by her lover over the kitchen fire, while the slaves of the family, with whom Master Tom had always been the favorite, were administering to his little comfort.

General Tom was a hero in the house for the few days he remained there, and the step he had taken was the very one to strengthen for him the affection of the girl he had come to see. North and South were even more bitterly divided now than they had been when the former parting had taken place. There were fewer hopes of reconciliation; more positive certainty of war to the knife; and they who adhered strongly to either side—and those who did not adhere strongly to either side were very few—held their opinions now with more acrimony than they had then done. The peculiar bitterness of civil war, which adds personal hatred to national enmity had come upon the minds of the people. And here, in Kentucky, on the borders of the contest, members of the same family were, in many cases at war with each other. Ada Forster and her aunt were passionately Northern, while the feelings of the old man had gradually turned to that division of the nation to which he naturally belonged.—For months past the matter on which they were all thinking—the subject which filled their minds morning, noon, and night—was banished from their lips because it could not be discussed without their bitterness of hostility. But, nevertheless, there was no word of bitterness between Tom Reckenthorpe and Ada Forster. While these few short days lasted it was all love. Where is the woman whom one touch of romance will not soften, though she be ever so impervious to argument? Tom could sit upstairs with his mother and his betrothed, and tell them stories of the gallantry of the South—of the sacrifices women were making, and of the deeds men were doing—and they would listen and smile and caress his hand, and all for a while would be pleasant; while the old Major did not dare to speak before them of his Southern hopes. But down in the parlour, during two or three long nights which General Tom passed in Frankfort, open Secession was discussed between the two men. The old man had now given away altogether. The Yankees, he said, were too bitter for him. "I wish I had died first; that is all, he said. "I wish I had died first. Life is wretched now to a man who can do nothing." His son tried to comfort him, saying that Secession would certainly be accomplished in twelve months, and that every Slave State would certainly be included in the Southern Confederacy. But the Major shook his head. Though he hated the political bitterness of the men whom he called Puritans and Yankees, he knew their strength and acknowledged their power. "Nothing good can come in my time," he said; "not in my time—not in my time."

In the middle of the fourth night General Tom took his departure. An old slave arrived with his horse a little before midnight, and he started on his journey. "Whatever turns up, Ada," he said, "you will be true to me."

"I will; though you are a rebel, all the same for that."

"So was Washington."

"Washington made a nation, you are destroying one."

"We are making another, dear: that's all. But I won't talk Secesh to you out here in the cold. Go in, and be good to my father; and remember this, Ada, I'll be here again next Christmas eve, if I'm alive." So he went, and made his journey back to his own camp in safety. He slept at a friend's house during the following day, and on the next night again made his way through the Northern lines back into Virginia. Even at that time there was considerable danger in doing this, although the frontier to be guarded was so extensive. This arose chiefly from the paucity of roads and the impossibility of getting across the country where no roads existed. But General Tom got safe back to Richmond, and, no doubt, found that the tedium of his military life had been greatly relieved by his excursion.

Then, after that, came a year of fighting, and there has since come another year of fighting; of such fighting that we, hearing the accounts from day to day, have hitherto failed to recognise its extent and import. Every now and then we have even spoken of the inaction of this side or of that, as though the drawn battles which have lasted for days, in which men have perished by tens of thousands, could be renewed as might the old German battles, in which an Austrian general would be ever retreating with infinite skill and military efficiency. For constancy, for blood, for hard determination to win at any cost of life or material, history has known no such battles as these. That the South have fought the best as regards skill no man can doubt. As regards pluck and resolution there has not been a pin's choice between them. They have both fought as Englishmen fight when they are equally in earnest. As regards result, it has been almost altogether in favor of the North, because they have so vast a superiority in numbers and materials.

General Tom Reckenthorpe remained during the year in Virginia, and was attached to that corps of General Lee's army which was commanded by Stonewall Jackson. It was not probable, therefore, that he would be left without active employment. During the whole year he was fighting, assisting in the wonderful raids that were made by that man whose loss was worse to the Confederates than the loss of Vicksburg or of New Orleans. And General Tom gained for himself mark, name and glory—but it was the glory of a soldier rather than of a general. No one looked upon him as the future commander of an army; but men said that if there was a rapid stroke to be stricken, under orders from some more thoughtful head, General Tom was the man to strike it.—Thus he went on making wonderful rides by night, appearing like a warrior ghost leading warrior ghosts in some quiet valley of the Federals, seizing supplies and cutting off cattle, till his name came to be great in the State of Kentucky and Ada Forster, Yankee though she was, was proud of her rebel lover.

And Frank Reckenthorpe, the other general, made progress also, though it was progress of a different kind. Men did not talk of him so much as they did of Tom; but the War-Office at Washington knew that he was useful, and need him. He remained for a long time attached to the Western army, having been removed from Kentucky to St. Louis, in Missouri, and was there when his brother last heard of him. "I am fighting day and night," he once said to one who was with him from his own State, "and, as far as I can learn, Frank is writing day and night. Upon my word, I think that I have the best of it."

It was but a couple of days after this, the time then being about the latter end of September, that he found himself on horseback at the head of three regiments of cavalry near the foot of one of those valleys which lead up into the Blue Mountain ridge of Virginia. He was about six miles in advance of Jackson's army, and had pushed forward with the view of intercepting certain Federal supplies which he and others had hoped might be within his reach. He had expected that there would be fighting, but he had hardly expected so much fighting as came that day in his way. He got no supplies. Indeed, he got nothing but blows, and though on that day the Confederates would not admit that they had been worsted neither could they claim to have done more than hold their own. But General Tom's fighting was in that day brought to an end.

It must be understood that there was no great battle fought on this occasion. General Reckenthorpe, with about 15,000 troopers, had found himself suddenly compelled to attack about double that number of Federal infantry. He did so once and then a second time, but on each occasion without breaking the lines to which he was opposed: and towards the close of the day he found himself unhorsed, but still unwounded, with no weapon in his hand but a pistol, immediately surrounded by about a dozen of his own men, but so far in advance of the body of his troops as to make it almost impossible that he should find his way back to them. As the smoke cleared away and he could look about him, he saw that he was close to an uneven, irregular line of Federal soldiers. But there was still a chance, and he had turned for a rush, with his pistol ready for use in his hand, when he found himself confronted by a Federal officer. The pistol was already raised, and his finger was on the trigger, when he saw that the man before him was his brother.

"Your time has come," said Frank, standing his ground very calmly. He was quite unarmed, and had been separated from his men, and ridden over; but hitherto he had not been hurt.

"Frank!" said Tom, dropping his pistol arm, "is that you?"

"And you are not going to do it, then?" said Frank.

"Do what?" said Tom, whose calmness was altogether gone. But he had forgotten that threat as soon as it had been uttered, and did not even know to what his brother was alluding.

But Tom Reckenthorpe, in his confusion at meeting his brother, had lost whatever chance there remained to him of escaping. He stood for a moment or two, looking at Frank, and wondering at the coincidence which had brought them together, before he turned to run. Then it was too late.—In the hurry and sorrry of the affair all but two of his own men had left him, and he saw that a rush of Federal soldiers was coming up around him. Nevertheless he resolved to start for a run. "Give me a chance, Frank," he said, and prepared to run. But as he went, or rather before he had left the ground on which he was standing before his brother, a shot struck him, and he was disabled. In a minute he was as though he were stunned, then he smiled faintly, and slowly sunk upon the ground.—"It's all up, Frank," he said, "and you are is at the death"

Frank Reckenthorpe was soon kneeling beside his brother amidst a crowd of his own men. "Spurrell," he said to a young officer who was close to him, "it is my own brother." "What, General Tom?" said Spurrell. "Not dangerously I hope."

By this time the wounded man had been able, as it were, to feel himself, and to ascertain the amount of the damage done him. "It's my right leg," he said, "just on the knee. If you'll believe me, Frank, I thought it was my heart at first. I don't think much of the wound, but I suppose you won't let me go?"

Of course they wouldn't let him go, and indeed if they had been minded so to do, he could not have gone. The wound was not fatal, as he had at first thought; but neither was it a matter of little consequence as he afterwards asserted. His fighting was over, unless he could fight with a leg amputated between the knee and the hip.

Before nightfall General Tom found himself in his brother's quarters, a prisoner on parole, with his leg all but condemned by the surgeon. The third day after that saw the leg amputated. For three weeks the two brothers remained together, and after that the elder was taken to Washington, or rather to Alexandria, on the other side of the Potomac, as a prisoner, there to wait his chance of exchange. At first the intercourse between the two brothers was cold, guarded, and uncomfortable; but after a while it became more kindly than it had been for many a day. Whether it were cold or kindly, in nature, we may be sure, was such as the younger brother made it. Tom was ready enough to forget all personal animosity as soon as his brother would himself be willing to do so; though he was willing enough also to quarrel—to quarrel bitterly as ever—if Frank should give occasion. And to that threat of the Secession had passed away from Tom Reckenthorpe, as all his angry words passed from him. It was clean forgotten. It was not simply that he had not wished to kill his brother, but that such a deed was impossible to him. The threat had been like a curse that means nothing—which is used by persons in a rage to weapon when passion is impotent. But with Frank Reckenthorpe words meant what they were intended to mean. The threat had rankled in his bosom from the time of its utterance, to that moment when a strange coincidence had given the threatener the power of executing it. The remembrance of it was then strong upon him, and he had expected that his brother would have been as bad as his word. But his brother had spared him; and now, slowly, by degrees, he began to remember that all o.

"Whatever your plans, Tom?" he said, as he sat outside by his brother's bed before the removal to the prisoner to Alexandria.

"Plans" said Tom. "How should a poor fellow like me have plans? To eat bread and water in prison at Alexandria, I suppose."

"They'll let you up to Washington on your parole, I should think; I'll advise I can say a word for you."

"Well, then, do say it. I'd have done as much for you, though I don't like your Yankee politics."

"Never mind my politics now, Tom."

"I never did mind them. But at any rate, you see I can't run away."

It should have been mentioned a little way back in this story that the poor old Major had been gathered to his fathers during the past year. As he had said himself, it would [illegible] he should die. He had lived to see the glory of his country, and had gloried in it. If further glory or even further gain were to come out of this terrible war—as great gains to men and nations it often does from causes to which are very terrible while they last—he at least would not live to see it. So when he was left by his sons, he turned his face to the wall and died. There had, of course, been much said on this subject between the two brothers when they were together, and Frank had declared how special orders had been given to protect the house of the [illegible] in the course of the war in Kentucky should surge up around Frankfort. Though very near to Frankfort but [illegible] able between the two armies, and the question of flying from their house had more than once been mooted between the aunt and her nieces [illegible], so far, that still that day had been stayed off as yet. Frankfort, the little capital of the State, was Northern territory.

"I suppose you will get home?" said Frank, after musing a while, "and look after my mother and Ada?"

"If I can, I shall, of course. What else can I go with one leg?"

"Nothing in this war, Tom, of course." Then there was another pause between them.

"And what will Ada do?" said Frank.

"What will Ada do? Stay at home with my mother."

"Ah yes. But she will not remain always as Ada Forster."

"Do you mean to ask whether I shall marry her, because of my one leg? If she will have me, I certainly shall."

"And will she? Ought you to ask her?"

"If I found her scarred all over with small-pox, with her limbs broken, limb, disfigured by any misfortune, which could have visited her, I would take as my wife all the same. If she were penniless, it would make no difference. She shall judge for herself; but I shall expect her to act by me, as I would have acted by her." Then there was another pause. "Look here, Frank," continued General Tom, "will you mean that I am to give her up as a reward to you for being sent home. I will have nothing to do with the bargain."

"I had intended no such bargain," said Frank gloomily.

"Very well; then you can do as you please. If Ada will take me, I shall marry her as soon as she will let me. If my being sent home depends upon that, you will know how to act now."

Nevetheless he was sent home. There was not another word spoken between the two brothers about Ada Forster. Whether Frank thought that he might still have a chance through want of firmness on the part of the girl; or whether he considered that in keeping his brother away from home he could at least be himself no greater [illegible] or whether, again, he believed that he would act by his brother as a brother should act, without reference to Ada Forester, I will not attempt to say. For a day or two after the above conversation he was somewhat sullen, and did not talk freely with his brother. After that he brightened up once more, and before long the two parted on friendly terms. General Frank remained with his command, and General Tom was sent to the hospital at Alexandria—or to such hospitalities as he might be able to enjoy at Washington in his mutilated state—till that affair of his exchange has been arranged.

In spite of his brother's influence at headquarters, this could not be done in a day; nor could permission be obtained for him to go home to Kentucky till such exchange had been effected. In this he was kept in terrible suspense for something over two months, and mid-winter was upon him before the joyful news arrived that he was free to go where he liked. The officers in Washington would have sent him back to Richmond had he so pleased, seeing that a Federal general officer, supposed to be of equal weight with himself, had been sent back from some Southern prison in his place; but he declined any such favor, declaring his intention of going home to Kentucky. He was simply warned that no pass South could after this be granted to him, and then he went his way.

Disturbed as was the state of the country nevertheless railways ran from Washington to Baltimore, from Baltimore to Pittsburgh, from Pittsburgh to Cincinnati, and from Cincinnati to Frankfort. So that Gen. Tom's journey home, though with but one leg, was made much faster and with less difficulty than that last journey by which he reached the old family house. And again he presented himself on Christmas Eve. Ada declared that he remained purposely at Washington, so that he might make good his last promise to the letter; but I am inclined to think that he allowed no such romantic idea as that to detain him among the amenities of Washington.

He arrived again after dark, but on this occasion did not come knocking at the back door. He had fought his fight, had done his share of the battle, and now had reason to be afraid of no one. But again it was Ada who opened the door for him. "Oh, Tom; oh, my own one." There never was a word of question between them as to whether that unseemly crutch and still unhealed wound was to make

THURSDAY, MARCH 10, 1870.

The North West.

The unhappy state of things still exists at Red River. Riel has been chosen President pro. tem. Schults and Mr. Boulton, who attempted a counter revolution have been unsuccessful. Boulton had to surrender; he chose to do so rather than fight under disadvantages. Schults escaped and moved from the scene of trouble.

It is said that Commissioners are on their way to Canada to treat with the Dominion Government.

All this trouble and disgrace is caused by the mismanagement of the Dominion Government, who neglected to make themselves acquainted with the state of affairs at Red River soon enough. And when they did learn of the discontent through Mr. Howe, took no steps to allay the uneasiness.

At present, Riel's government is the only legitimate government in the Country.—The Hudson Bay Company have no authority there. The Canadian government have no right to the Country by their own acknowledgement, till they pay the purchase money—and thus affairs remain.

The state of affairs at Red River must afford a fund of amusement to Americans, who are cognizant of the fact that about 500 men frustrate the whole Dominion government, set at nought their authority, and for months defy them to do anything; delay the settlement of the country, and reign supreme in spite of John A., and all the military skill and prowess of Sir George Cartier.

Nothing more indicates the utter weakness of John A. McDonald's government, or the unfitness to manage the business of the Country in any crisis than their having to employ a Priest to proceed to Red River to appease the two or three dozen half breeds that are in rebellion. What such statesmen cannot do, a Roman Catholic Priest is commissioned to attempt.

The olden times of England's misrule is being re-enacted in Canada, by a class of incompetent politicians, who manage commercial transactions where money rules supreme, and the parties to the bargain purchasable; but they are totally unfit to direct affairs of state, when mind, not money is wanted.

There is, however, a strong feeling of opposition to the continued rule of the McDonald-Cartier power, and if they are not driven from power during the present Session, the next election will rid us of the horrible farce. We can number not a few Conservatives who would most willingly unite to compel them to give way to superior men, of any party.

Protection.

Several members of the Dominion Parliament are pressing for protective duties on imported grain, salt, and some articles of manufacture. One reason assigned for such a course is, that this would compel the American people to renew trade relations on some better bases than exist at present. Another reason, several industries would then be fostered and encouraged. A third reason—the Country would be benefitted by such a course.

Protection is calculated to benefit the producer, certainly not the consumer. If grain coming into our country has to pay a heavy duty, not the seller of the grain, but the consumer who has to buy it, pays the duty. No one will import any article of merchandize, unless he hopes to make a profit by the transaction. If he purchases at a certain price, and afterwards pays ten per cent duty, he must realize at least ten per cent more than cost; and if he does not hope to do so, he will not engage in the enterprise. If the demand is keen, he will, and the consumer foots the bill, Is it not evident therefore, that protection would not be advantageous to the mass of Canadians who are consumers. It may be to localities, or to companies, but cannot be to the whole people of Canada. It is true, that if salt should be found in paying quantities near Peterborough, it would be of great advantage to the company to have ten per cent of import duty on salt, for that would enable the company to demand ten per cent more for their article, without fear of competition; but the people would have to pay the whole. In the face of this, we feel certain that the people of Canada have no desire for protective duties, but rather, on the contrary, desire as free trade relations as possible. There is great reason to fear that the advocates of protection are interested parties, who seek their own gain, not the good of the whole.

There is not much fear however of their views prevailing to any extent.

Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, wife of Mr. Brown, teacher of Balieboro, and formerly of Otonabee, died in Toronto, on Tuesday. She has been unwell lately, and this together with close study thro' sense of sin, is said to have hurt her mind, and necessitated her removal to the Asylum about a week ago. The Doctors in connection with the Asylum, think that necessary exposure in going to Toronto, in connection with the state of her health, hurried her decease. The verdict of the jury was, Death from natural causes. The Coroner remarking, that if she had died at home, no inquest would have been required.

GAS.

Several of the stores on George street are now lit with gas, and others are getting the fixings put up for it. Those who have it are pretty well satisfied with the quality. As to the comparative cost of it and oil light, few have made calculations, although all agree that oil light is the cheapest—gas light the best and cleanest.

The contractor gave up the getting of the lamp posts for the town, and in consequence the Special Committee of the Council are managing the matter. Let us hope that they will exercise the greatest economy. We are satisfied that the gas will cost the town enough without extravagance.

There is some talk of Ashburnham getting the company to extend the pipes over the river, so as to have two posts in the village, one at the east end of the bridge and one nearer the village, so that the villagers may have light on the subject also.

Our chronicling the progress of gas light in no way interferes with our views on the gas question. We would be pleased to see the town lighted up; but let those streets and people who reap the benefit pay for it. There can be no justice in taxing the people on Smith street, at the north, or those at the extreme west and south for light on George street; but as soon as any street is lit with gas let those on that street be taxed. Another thing that might have been secured, is light at George and Simcoe streets square, also at George and Hunter streets square, during the whole night when needed, i. e., during the dark of the moon. This might have been secured without any additional cost, as no doubt the Company is well paid for what it is bound to give We do not wish our remarks to be understood as in any way reflecting on either the contractor or company in general. They have a right to make the best bargain they can, but we will not fail to expose any citizen of the town or any other who shall prove recreant to the interest of the town for his own agrandisement, we care not what his station or position may be. Our people have lost enough by railways, debentures and other jobbery. In fact the question has been mooted of some gouging even in the gas affair, and dame rumor has been busy accusing some of having a large quantity of stock in in the company. Not many days ago a prominent citizen enquired if we had not a few hundred dollars to our credit, as if making some base insinuations, of course, not applicable to us. Who would like these insinuations? But then the town has gas, and honest advocacy of it is worth something let it be paid or not.

A Road to South Monaghan.

We have again and again advocated the wisdom of doing something to increase facilities for communication with the fine township of South Monaghan. Five or six thousand dollars spent in doing so would amply repay the ratepayers of this town in a few years, in increased trade. The scheme of a road in the direction of the railroad through Monaghan is certainly a feasible one, and we have reason to believe that the right of way would be given free, nearly all the way to the Gravel Road. One farmer with whom we lately conversed on the subject, said he would give the right of way across his whole farm of 200 acres.

The road would be easy made too. The track is level, and a drain dug, and the stuff thrown up and levelled would be all necessary to make an excellent road. The ditch thus made would serve to drain the land along the route, and, hence, would thus materially benefit the low land now requiring drainage, which would amply repay for the right of way.

We hope some of the members of the TownCouncil will take this matter up and get the Council to do something in the matter.

The township of North Monaghan ought also to do something to aid the work. The land along the river is not now very valuable, not being drained, and hence not tillable. This road would open it up and make it more valuable. Taxes would thereby increase; the township become of more value, and the whole be taken up either by settlers, or by adjacent farmers for pasture and meadow purposes. Besides, everything tending to build up Peterboro increases the value of adjacent property; increases the demand and therefore ensures high prices for beef, mutton, butter, eggs, vegetables—everything the farmer or gardener raises. The interest of the Town and Monaghan are mutual, and let us urge that there shall be mutual aid. The south bridge over the Otonabee river, too, should be repaired. The County, Town, and South Monaghan Councils should do this unitedly, as the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham have long since shown that in this respect Monaghan must see after its own interests.

We have little doubt that South Monaghan would come nobly forward, if the Town should take the initiative. Every week this bridge remains impassable money is lost to the Town by trade being thus driven to Port Hope.

Greater efforts must be made to secure to Peterboro the trade of the surrounding country, Our position and the demand should ensure us a large market for both sale and purchase. Let us not slumber until others step in and take from us what is naturally ours, if but a little exertion and a trifling outlay were made.

St. Andrew's Church Concert: The concert on Thursday last was quite a success. The musical talent, at least that of Mrs. Gilbert, and Mr. Gellatly, was fully appreciated. These performers were repeatedly encored. Mr. Gellatly appeared to be quite a favorite. Mrs. Gilbert fully equaled the expectations of the audience concerning her, and the fame that had preceded her. The other singers did very well, but the difficulty of pleasing, following the above excellent performers, should be conceded. The attendance was very large and the concert we trust in a pecuniary sense successful, for it is money after all that is the great test of success now a days. Mrs. McDonnell very ably presided at the piano during the evening. At the close the Rev. Mr. McDonnell thanked the audience for their response to the call of St. Andrew's Church, remarking that it was now two or three years since it had been done before, and the large audience showed that they had not been forgotten. The whole was wound up by singing the National Anthem.

North Monaghan.

As our readers are aware, the minutes of the different Township Councils are furnished us from time time by the different Township Clerks, for which not only ourselves, but the community are indebted to them, and this the more as they do it voluntarily. The late unhappy North Monaghan affair, shows that in the discharge of this kindness they are liable to get into trouble and blame, and that perhaps without just grounds for it either.—We have no doubt but our readers feel that the omission of these reports of minutes, would be a loss to those who do not otherwise learn what is done in the respective Councils.

Mr. Wm. Wood, has very kindly furnished the minutes of North Monaghan during many years, and we can safely say that only in the present instance has any feeling or trouble arisen out of his reports. We do, therefore, sympathize with him, and as we know that both he and his opponent are too magnanimous to keep up any feeling on this matter, we may safely conclude therefore, that he will still continue the reports.

The impeachment of his veracity by Mr. Collins, is entirely an exceptional case, and we feel assured that calm investigation would prove that there are less grounds for accusation one of the other, than at present appear to the parties. We have always had implicit confidence in the truthfulness of Mr. Wood's reports, and believe that if anything has appeared offending any Ratepayer, it was accidental, not intentional. Mr. Wood's report to the Council of real or supposed deficiency was right; anything else would have been wrong—very wrong, indeed. And we are confident that Mr. Collins never wished that such information should be witheld. Without giving our opinion on the merits of the late controversy, we have no hesitation in saying, that we have every confidence in the truthfulness of Mr. Wood's reports, and are sure that as far as he can, they are worthy of the confidence of the public. Calm consideration could reconcile all the little difference.

A Divorce Case in England.

In a celebrated divorce case, in which Sir Charles Mordaunt is plaintiff, several notable characters figure to rather a disadvantage.

Sir Fred Johnstone, Lord Cole, Captain Farquhar and the Prince of Wales, are spoken of as intimates of Lady Mordaunt.

A report of a trial, in reference to the insanity of the unfortunate Lady, is given. The jury returned a verdict in her favour, that is, that she is insane. In the mean time the trial for divorce is staid, as no one can be put on trial who is unable to defend him or herself. During the trial, the Prince of Wales was forced to appear as a witness, and it appears that after his own marriage, and even during the confinement of the Princess Alexandra, he was carrying on a secret correspondence and private meetings with Lady Mordaunt. He avers his innocence of anything criminal, but the fact of this secret correspondence coming to light, will leave its own impressions on the minds of the people.

Weak-minded at best, he of all others would be the most unfit for such amours; and if he had followed the example of his father, would have confined his Lady correspondence to his own wife.

It is not to be wondered at however if he has gone astray. The whole training that he has passed through in his tour through the provinces and other places, tend to dissipation.

We have only to witness the balls, parties, &c., &c., that both he and the Prince that now sojourns amongst us, have been forced to attend, and the eagerness with which even a nod from a prince is courted—to force us to the conclusion, that theirs is a dangerous path, and in it are temptations on every side.

Royalty is human in its origin, and when not properly protected or balanced, may run to human excesses. But this is not the way to be a terror to evil doers.

The rag published in the back woods, (the Independent !) in its second impressions exhibits somewhat the disposition of the son of Erin, who was "a spoilin' for a batin." He undertakes to abuse us for giving it as our opinion that all "Independent !" Journalists are venal. We choose to reiterate our opinion, in the face of his ravings.

We once knew a lunatic of the same name as the creature of the Independent(!), does not this prove relationship between them? And on reading the tirade of abuse in the Independent, levelled at us; we were at a loss to learn whether he had escaped, immigrated, and was now undertaking to enlighten the Northern settlers on mental aberration, lunacy, or some other subject in keeping with his manners and habits.—But as we have no personal knowledge of the venomous biped, whose slimy ebullitions disgrace the second impression of the Independent ! We are unable to satisfy ourselves on the point of his sanity.

One thing we are satisfied about, and it is this. No amount of abuse from the filthy scribbler, shall induce us to notice in future the effervescence of his disordered intellect. Poor soul, a few months will try your independence. All the independence carpers go over to those who dispense the loaves and fishes. On this rock you may build your youth. The community have found out the truth of our assertion too often.

The North-West Territory.

The Toronto Telegraph professes to have reliable information that the Imperial Government has recommended the payment by our Government of the purchase money at once. It is also informed that it has been decided to send a military force into the Territory. This force will consist of one battery of Royal Artillery, and the Royal Canadian Rifles. They will start from here in May, and proceed to the Territory by way of Lake Superior. The American authorities were asked to allow the troops to pass through their country, but they refused to grant the request. The troops are not to be sent to take forcible possession but merely to uphold the Government authority in case of need. The rights of the inhabitants are to be respected in every particular.

Bensel's Theatre will be in the Music Hall on Monday Evening. Lovers of fun will no doubt, attend in force.

Bible Society.—The Annual Meeting of the Society will be held on Friday evening in St. Andrew's Church. Rev. Mr. Goldsmith, the Agent, will be present and address the audience.

The Annual meeting of the Lakefield Bible Society, will take place at Lakefield, in the Presbyterian Church on Saturday evening, at 7 o'clock. Mr. Goldsmith, agent of the Toronto Society, and others, will address the meeting.

The Protestant Ministers of Port Hope, presented Mr. Dempsey, Baptist Minister, with a very cordial address, on the occasion of his removal to Ingersoll. The address breathes the kindest expressions of good will towards Mr. D., as a Minister and as a Christian.

Mr. Racket's Concert.—We understand that Mr. Racket Band Master, will give a concert on Thursday evening next, in the Music Hall. Mr. Philp, Band Master, Fort Hope, and others will assist on the occasion, we hope the citizens will give Mr. R. a bumper house.

School Desks.—We invite attention to the advertisement of Messrs. James & Son in another column, in reference to desks for schools. These desks are really the best manufactured for school purposes, and are sold at very reasonable prices. Trustees building would do well to call and see them at the Union School here.

Dr. Stewart, the celebrated Aurist and Oculist will be at Caisse's Hotel from Monday next till the Saturday following. From the very flattering notices everywhere given of Dr. Stewart's skill in treating eye and ear diseases, he must be very successful in his profession. The afflicted in sight or hearing would do well to give him a call. See his advertisement.

Personal.—Those who frequent the market from time to time will be glad to learn that Mr. Edward Green is the lessee of the Market Tolls this year. Mr. G. will, no doubt be careful and obliging to farmers and others who are compelled to have their stuff weighed by him, and we are sure that he will endeavor to do justice to all.

Dr. Nelles's Lecture.—The lecture on Friday evening was as well attended as as lectures generally are, but not as well as the friends of the Mechanics Institute had a right to expect.

The Rev. Lecturer managed his subject very well, and was frequently applauded. At the the close a vote of thanks was tendered to him, for his kindness in coming to deliver it.

There are strong fears for the safety of the Steamship "City of Boston." The Captain of the Barque E. A. Kennedy, reports having seen a vessel at sea, as if without a rudde.. The vessel is supposed to have been the "City of Boston." Vessels have been sent out to cruise for her. About 500 vessels are lying off the coast of Ireland, unable to enter English ports.

New Zealand Oats.—Mr. Robert Goodfellow, Monaghan, showed us a few grains of oats from New Zealand, lately sent him by a friend. The grain is whiter and smoother than our oats but not so long. It is plump, but not so plump as the oats of the British Isles. He informs us that they weigh about 40 lbs. to the bushel. Mr. Goodfellow intends making a trial of how they will do in our northern clime.

Destructive Fire in Lindsay.—We learn by the Lindsay papers, that Kempt's block was destroyed by fire on Sunday morning. It was occupied by Mr. A. Gillies, and Messrs. Bertram, the latter gentlemen we are glad to learn saved considerable of their property, and the damages are fully covered by insurance. Mr. Kemp's Law office was consumed, and Mr. Kemp's office likewise, all the papers in the safes were preserved.

It is reported that John Sanfield McDonald has selected Brantford, as the site for the Asylum for the blind. The Toronto and Hamilton papers claim that a city is the most suitable place. The Globe thinks that if Toronto is not chosen Hamilton should. The arguments used prove plainly that a city is the most suitable place for the Asylum. But Brantford has an E. B. Wood in the government, and consequently has a strong claim for the site, and will get it.

Literary Entertainment To-night.—The young men connected with the Wesleyan Methodist Church, give a Literary and Musical entertainment to-night in the Sabbath school room of the Church. The treat we believe will be equal to any that has been given during the season. Mr. Gellatly who was so favorably received at the St. Andrew's concert, will sing at the concert to-night also. A very pleasant evening may therefore be expected.

Salt.—Mr. Jas. Armstrong of Otonabee has shown us some of the salt-like substance produced by boiling the water of the well that is being bored by the Peterboro Salt Company. Of course, we are not prepared to give an opinion on the prospects of the Company to obtain salt in paying quantities, but all who have examined the substance shown, testify to there being Salt in it in some state. Whether it will prove to be Salt fit for use when purified, remains to be seen. The Company is actively engaged in boring. The well is now about one hundred feet down. And progress is daily reported. The Salt-like substance that Mr. Armstrong left at our office was produced from the brine when the well was about 16 feet deep.

The Company deserve encouragment in their work of developing the resources of county. We hope the members may be successful, and receive a handsome profit as the reward of their enterprise.

An old lady in New Jersey, having read an account of the bursting of a grindstone in a manufacturing establishment, became terribly alarmed lest a grindstone which was standing in her cellar should burst and blow the house down.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Protection Fire Company.

Protection Fire Company, No. 1 held their regular monthly meeting in the Firemen's Hall, on Tuesday, 1st instant,—the Captain in the chair—when the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Moved by H. Robertson, and seconded by A. Comstock, That from the Engineer of the Company having reported at the last meeting that the engine was, in consequence of no fire being put on, frozen up on several occasions during the winter, and also that the Chief Constable having informed the Captain that he would not make any more fires, as he was not paid for it, that the Secretary write to the Chairman of the Fire Committee, informing him of these facts, and urging the necessity of keeping a fire, in order that the engine may be in working order at all times. Also informing him that should a fire unfortunately occur during the time the engine was in that state, the probability is a great deal of damage might be done to property before the engine could be put in proper working order. Also that this resolution be published in the local papers, in order that no blame may be attached to this Company in case such circumstances should occur."

The mover of this resolution spoke at length, stating that the authorities of the town had not given that consideration to the wants of the Company that, in his opinion, the ratepayers deserved, or the town demanded. In the first place the Council had taken out of the hands of the Officers of the Company the authority of doing any repairs to the engine or hose that might be required, without an order from the Town Clerk. Placing the Company in this position, should anything happen to the engine or appurtenances during the fire whether by night or day, it would be necessary to apply to Mr. Edwards before anything could be done, allowing the fire to proceed and and the Company to look quietly on. Again, axes had been removed from the engine for the purpose of chopping wood, and not replaced, allowing us to go to a fire without them; and also, that the private property of the Company—benches placed for the convenience of the men after fires, in the engine house—had been taken away without the consent of the Company. The speaker said the thanks of the Company and community were due to the Captain for the stand he took and the interest he manifested in the Company and the welfare of the town, for which in return he only received abuse from the authorities.

MAXWELL HALL, Secretary.

Norwood.

ORDER OF BRITISH TEMPLARS.

The County Lodge met in the Village of Norwood on the 1st instant under the 1st Degree, pursuant to adjournment. On account of the county officers elect not being installed at last session, Bro. H. Morton, P. D., was called to the chair. A committee was then appointed to examine those present, after which the minutes of last session were read and on motion adopted.

The several orders of business were read over, after which the installation of officers was proceeded with, as follows:

Bro. J. S. Patterson, W. Chief.
" J. P. Cooper, Secretary.
" C. Lancaster, Treasurer.
" — Thistlewaithe, Chaplain.
Sister Ackerman, Recorder.
Bro. H. Morton, Marshall.
" J. B. Fuller, O. G.
" H. Collins, P. W. C.

In absence of the remaining county officers elect the offices were filled pro tem.

The Dunkin Bill was then taken into consideration and warmly discussed, good feeling prevailing throughout the meeting.

The cause which calls so many of us together from time to time is one of immense importance, and we are far from doing justice to so momentous a subject. We say momentous, for may we not well view that subject as one of vast importance, when we consider that the happiness or misery of the human race is so largely dependent on the course they pursue, with respect to those three most significant and comprehensive words—"Faith, Hope, Charity." On those three fundamental pillars rest our future hope, and may the superstructure be lasting as time, and bear influence through ages yet to come. In the midst of difficulties we must not utter the vain, cowardly wish, that we had not put our hand to the plough, but press onward with the animated hope of being rewarded either by success or by the consciousness that we have done all in our power to obtain it. And we shall do this if we possess much of the power of love; for its ardor is such that many waters cannot quench it. It is of such a nature, the greater the difficulty the more will its margins increase. It is like a well-constructed arch, the greater the weight it has to sustain the more firm and consolidated it becomes. Who is he that will harm you if ye be followers of that which is good.

An excellent tea was provided by the ladies of Amaranth Lodge, after which the Lodge adjourned, to meet at the Village of Hastings on the 1st Tuesday of June, at the hour of 3 o'clock, p. m.—Com.

The "Review" and the Montreal "Witness."

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Just as I expected, neither your neighbor of the Review, nor its quasi correspondent has furnished one iota of proof to justify the base and false charge it made a few weeks ago against the Witness, and for this simple reason, they could not. I have been at a loss to conceive the motive the writer of the paragraph referred to, had when he penned it. Has the Witness at any time crossed his path, or said naughty things respecting the Review, or are its politics of the ultra grit stripe, to stir up his ire, venting itself in such a bitter manner? It would appear as if an old grudge of some kind or another existed, and it would be well if we were enlightened as to the facts. Having read both the Witness and the Review since their inception, I do not remember an instance when the Witness has made any serious charge against the Review; but I have an impression that the Review has frequently manifested an ill-feeling towards the Witness.

But the case in hand is such a flagrant outrage on the courtesy due to an unoffending contemporary that it deserves rebuke and demands an apology, which the Review owes not only to the Witness but to the public generally. As you did not, Mr. Editor, publish the article from the Review as I desired, will you please do so now, in order that your readers may understand the matter. In the Review of the 4th of February, the Editor says:—

"The Montreal Witness is a fair-weather friend. We notice its last number is well nigh full of Mr. Chiniquy and his doings in Montreal. Not long ago when Chiniquy's troubles pressed hard on him, the Witness was the busiest in circulating suspicions against him, and would occasionally decline to receive vindications. Now, however, when his star is in the ascendant, the Witness cannot say too much to extol him. It need to give Chiniquy many a bitter day by its utterances when his cause was low. Now he should tell it as Dr. Johnson did Lord Chesterfield, that he does not need its patronage."

The man who wrote the above, if he considered it was truth ought to be able to prove it. He does not state it as an impression, but gives it as a fact. I call for proof, and a writer calling himself "Another reader of the Witness," tells me if I will look at the files of the Witness about the years 1866 or '67 I will find something, or if I will ask Mr. Chiniquy the next time he comes to Peterborough, which he says will not be long, he will corroborate the truth of the charge made by the Editor of the Review. Now, I will tell this "reader," who for aught I know, may be the Editor himself, that he has read very little of the Witness to prate such nonsense. I am no apologist for the Witness when it gets wrong, for like all human productions it errs sometimes; and I have not the least ill-feeling towards the Review; yet when a paper will deliberately sacrifice truth, to vent a bit of spleen, or spite, or something else, I will not stand by and silently witness the foul deed. I say distinctly that the above extract contains a slander, both foul and false; and unless the writer adduces proof, which I believe he cannot, he stands convicted of perpetrating a vile act, without a single plea for its commission, save the prompting of a depraved nature namollified by the grace of christian charity. A thoughtlessly written article like the one referred to may do an incalculable amount of mischief in robbing a man of his good name—an act of more serious consequence than stealing his personal property, as our great poet very correctly says:

"Good name in man or woman-dear my lord;
Is the immediate jewel of their souls.
Who steals my purse steals trash, 'tis something, nothing.
'Twas mine, 'tis his, and has been slave to thousands,
But he that filches from me my good name,
Robs me of that which not enriches him,
And makes me poor indeed."

Yours truly,

A Reader of the Witness.

Sabbath School Convention.—This Convention will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday next, in the Wesleyan Church here. Every arrangement has been made to render the meeting a success. Delegates from Toronto, St. Catherines and other places will be present. The committee has succeeded in securing the services of Mr. Cotes of Toronto, who will take charge of the singings All the meetings will be open to the public, and all will be cordially welcomed. Delegates from a distances will be provided for during the Convention.

Wesleyan Operations in Canada.

The Canadian Wesleyan Methodist missions are described by a correspondent of the Methodist Recorder, of London, as highly prosperous. In their missions of every kind, which are 176 in number, there is a membership of 4,113 Indians, 221 Germans, 53 French Canadians, 4,497 on the Domestic Missions, 35 in Red River and the Saskatchewan, and 186 in British Columbia, making a total of 13,091 in church fellowship. These are supplied by 166 missionaries, besides which there on the Indian missions 15 interpreters, 16 day schools and 16 teachers, making a total paid agency of 213 persons. Even the Home Missions which comprise 106 of the 176, are scattered over immense areas. "Commencing at Gaspé," says the correspondent, "the eastern extremity of the Province of Quebec, where one of our missionaries is usefully employed, and proceeding westward, we have to perform a journey of scarcely less than 2,000 miles before we have reached Bruce Mines, which is another of the society's posts. Or, if we start from any of those missions which are to be found here and there along our southern border, we shall have to travel several hundred miles northward before we have reached the most northern extremity of this department of our work." The most hopeless subjects are the French Canadian Romanists, who are stolidly indifferent, hearing the arguments of the missionaries, but dismissing the subject by saying, "It may be so, but if it is so, it is the worst for the priest." The Germans, though few and widely scattered, yeild more encouraging results. For the Indians, we are told that "amd many discouragements, this work is going on. The process of civilization, with all the consequences thereof—the introduction of the destructive vices and diseases of civilised men—have produced fearful physical degeneracy, and the rate of morality among them is dreadfully great. The obituary of our societies among them is rapidly increasing from year to year; but not withstanding this and other discouraging facts, our numbers are not only kept up, but gradually increased. We have at present upwards of 3,000 names of these red men and women on our class-books; and not only the children of these, but the youths of many families who have not become Christians are being educated in our schools." In the Hudson's Bay Territory, British Columbia, and Vancouver's Island are outlaying stations, which select an amount of good which is not redeemable to figures. The annual outlay of the church in this work is nearly $80,000, which must be increased if the missions are to extend in proportion as the work opens out before them."

The New York Post says the constant use of intoxicating liquors makes hard times for many a man; thus, a family of five persons will consume four barrels of flour a year, or 1,057 pounds of bread. This is nearly three pounds a day. Good flour can be bought at $7 a barrel; four times 7 makes $28; and thirty cents a day for drinks is $109.50, or $82.50 more per year than the bread for a family of five persons costs.—"But," says A.," I only take two drinks a day." Very well, you pay then for drinks $73 a year, only $45 more than you pay for the bread consumed by your whole family, if it contains five persons. This sum would provide tea and coffee for them. Here then we see that the man who pays twenty cents a day for liquor spends a sum sufficient to supply his family with bread, tea and coffee. Is it strange that times are hard?

The Attempted Assassination of a Prominent Fenian In New York.—Mr. Meehan, editor of the Irish American, who was shot and dangerously wounded by one Dr. Keenan, as they were returning home from a meeting of the Fenian Brotherhood, of which organization they were both officers, is likely to recover, although the wound was severe. The friends of Meehan, while declining to state the motive which actuated Keenan, say, with significance:—"He was an instrument." The Herald says they utterly reject the idea that there was anything of personal enmity between Mr. Meehan and Dr. Keenan, and state their relations were cordial and friendly. They further affirm that Mr. Keenan was never a secretary of the Fenian Brotherhood but was only retained in the capacity of clerk and that Keenan could not have been impelled by any grievance of his own. Doubts of Meehan's loyalty are said to be at the bottom of the difficulty.—Boston Journal.

SPIRITUALISM.— At a very successful seance in Cincinnati, the other night, a man burst into tears when the medium described very accurately a tall blue-eyed spirit standing by him, with light side-whiskers and his hair parted in the middle. "Do you know him?" inquired a man at his side, in a sympathetic whisper. "Know him, I guess I do," replied the unhappy man, wiping his eyes. "He was engaged to my wife. If he hain't died he would have been her husband instead of me. Oh, George George," he murmured in a voice choked with emotion, "why did you peg out?"

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 28th, 1866,

Messrs. RAYMUND C. LEITE & BRO:

GENTLEMEN:—While a son of my friend Mr. Francisco de Matos Pimenta (a large proprietor in the Cidade de Campos) was staying at my house, he was attacked with intermittent fever. Immediately I sent for the very clever Dr. Tosseo, who is thought a great deal of in Campos, but the fever, instead of diminishing, turned, continued, and typhoid, the boy (14 years old) could not speak, would not take the broths, and it required a great deal of coaxing to make him swallow the medicines. Dr. Tinoco declared that there was not the slightest hope of saving the boy's life; that it would be advisable to write to his father and inform him of the state of his son's health. At that moment I thought of the well spoken Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments, and applied them in the following manner: One teaspoon of Relief in a tumbler of water, dividing it three doses a day; frictions with the Relief pure on the Chest, back and wrists; three (of Radway's) Pills every day, and well covered so that he might perspire. Second day, half an hour after meals, one dessert-spoon of Resolvent and water. In the fourth day he was able to get up from bed, to the astonishment of every one, who witnessed the miracles of Dr. Radway & Co's medicaments.

I remain, gentlemen

Your very obedient servant,

JOAQUIM PIRTO FALCAO, Merchant.

Dr. Radway's Remedies are sold by Druggists and Country Merchants.

See Dr. Radway's Almanac for 1868.

PILLS are frequently preceded by a sense of weight in the back, loins, and lower part of the abdomen causing the patient to suppose he has some affection of the kidneys or neighborind organs; at times, symptoms of indigestion are present, as flatulency, uneasiness, of the stomach &c. A disagreeable itching is a common attendant. At certain times a stinging or burning pain is experienced, being often very severe; and after the fecal discharge, there is more or less bearing down or tenesmus. For this painful disease, Dr. Briggs' unrivalled Pile Remedy is a specific cure; used according to directions, the greatest sufferer will feel the benefit of its virtues. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers, Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No. 6 King St. West Toronto.

IN THE FIRST OR INCIPIENT STAGE OF CONsumption there will be found some difficulty in breathing, perhaps amounting to a shortness of breath, more especially on exercising. Cough is a very early symptom; it may be slight and hacking at first, but gradually becomes more and more distressing and frequent; at first it is dry, but is soon attended with an expectoration of a thin or frothy character, or resembling mucus. Very frequent the expectoration will be streaked with blood, and sometimesmes the first observable symptom of consumption will be more or less profuse bleedings from the lungs. To those singled out as victims to that fatal malady, we offer a remedy, sure in its result to bring back health to the poor weakened frame, and joy to the hearts of the friends Dr. J. Briggs' Rejuvator, the Great Throat and Lung Healer. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs' & co., Proprietors 208 Broadway, N. Y, and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

At a Public Meeting held in Buffalo a few days since Ex-President Fillmore is reported to have said, that he would do nothing to excite the ire or provoke the hostility of his Canadian neighbours, they were a worthy people, and were for the most part friendly; an immediate outbreak was not to be anticipated, but he would advise his fellow citizens to heed the lessons which history had taught all nations. "In time of peace prepare for war," hence it would be well to have our Northern frontiers well fortified.

Is not this a lesson to us to fortify our Southern frontiers? and while doing so would it not be well to fortify ourselves against the attacks of rheumatism, coughs, colds, cholics, bowel complaints, and all other diseases incident to us, climate by supplying ourselves with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," Can be had of any Medicine Dealer for 25cts per bottle

We beg all those who suffer from Catarrh, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, &c., to try Dr. J. Briggs' Allevantor; the relief and benefit derived from its use will be greater than from any other remedy known. After once testing its worth, no person would willingly be without it. For the maladies it is intended to cure, it is unequalled. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

THE POET, Priest, Philosopher and Sage.
All turn with rapture to the Golden Age.
For, in that happy peroid they find
Instruction and delight for all mankind.
The human race where happiest then, because
They lived according to Dame Nature's laws.
Their wants were few and easily supplied;
Their food and drink were found on every side;
Their clothing did not know the tailor's art
It did not bind the lungs to sound the heart;
Their walk was graceful, free and uncon-
strained,
For not a foot of all that race was pained
With Corn or Bunion (dreadful modern ills),
With sandals shod, they scaled the steepest hills,
Or roamed the plains, by happiness possessed,
No ache or pain destroyed their perfect rest.

Briggs' Modern Curative, the only reliable and most efficacious Remedy in the world for the speedy cure of Corns, Bunions, Club and Inverted Nales, &c. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, No. 208 Broadway, N. Y. and No, 6 King St. West, Toronto.

DR. J BRIGGS' Pile Remedy is acknowledged by all who have tried it (and their name is Legion) to be the best most successful and efficacious Remedy ever used for that disease. Sold by Druggists.

SETH'S WAFERS.—The great public remedy have now been in use over twenty years, hence it cannot be said that they are on trial. They have been thoroughly tried, and pronounced (on the authority of those whose lives and health they have preserved) to be a pure, harmless, and eminently salutary preparation, and if taken in season will invariably cure colds, coughs, sore throat, and all Bronchial affection. One fair trial will convince the most skeptical

$4 25 vs. $500 00.

Economy in Health and Physic is as important as in business, and we know of no cheaper, better, or surer means of preserving health and divesting the sick of their infirmities, than through the medium of Dr. Radway's famous medicines. We present a case in point

Case 1,336.—Marcus W. Mount, long a sufferer from liver complaints, has paid, he says, at different times, about $250 to physicians, and he thinks as much more for medicines. Is induced to try Radway's Pills, with occasional doses of the Renovating Resolvent to assist in removing it from his system the effects of the mercurial treatment to which he has been subject. Soon feels the benefit of the change. Takes, in all, five boxes of the Pills and three bottles of the Resolvent, and at the end of the course is "as well as he ever was in life."

Glance at the account current below:

Bills for medical attendance, $250; outlay for prescriptions, $250 (so much money thrown away)..... $500 00

Five boxes Rad way's Pills, $1 25;
three bottles Resolvent, at $1 each, $3

Balance in favor of the Regulating Pills and Resolvent..... $495 75

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION.—The general symptoms of this disease are an habitual cough, morbid expectoration, pains in the breast, casual flush feverish heat in the hands, feet, and cheeks, change of voice, thin fingers and nose, bent or crooked nails, falling of the hair, &c. This disease has been divided into three, four, and even five, stages by medical writers; but, for practical purposes, three stages will be found best adaped to the course of the disease. To entirely cure this cough, and eradicate all the early symptoms of this fatal malady, Dr. Briggs' Renovator, the Great Throat and Lung Healer, is thoroughly adequate and sure. It is not unpleasant to the palate, and its properties are all of a healing and purifying nature. After once having used it, no person would hesitate to acknowledge its superior efficacy in staying the hand of that fell Destroyer, Consumption. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers, Dr. J Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Bredway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear!" Proclaim the glad tidings far and near! Let all the world rejoice, for the days of excruciating agony, the sleepless nights of woe will be but a phantom, a thing of the past, for Briggs Allevantor will conquer pain, will speedily drive it from the system like chaff before the wind, No matter from what cause, no matter in what portion of the body, when Briggs Allevantor is applied, pain must cease. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants generally. Dr. J Briggs & Co. Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No, 6 King St. West, Toronto.

To those who suffer from Corns Bunions Bad Nails, Chilblains, Frosted Feet, &c., try Dr. J. Briggs' Curative. If used liberally as directed, relief is immediate, and cure certain. Sold by Druggists.

FROSTED FEET, Chilblains, Corns, Bunions Bad Nails, &c., are positively cured by the use of Dr. J. Briggs' Modern Curative. This Remedy has been compounded with great care, and, used as directed, never fails. Sold by Druggists.

THE ŒCUMENICAL COUNCIL lately called at Rome is an instance of the solicitude of the Catholic Church for the welfare and prosperity of her Communicants. Large assemblies of this nature containing representatives from all parts of the world, should be of some benefit to our race. We hope this opinion will be as harmonious and unanimous as the verdict in favor of the Great Shoshonees Remedy, for diseases of the lungs, blood, stomach, liver, &c. For sale by all druggists.

A CLERGYMAN writing to a friend says, "My voyage to Europe is indefinitely postponed. I have discovered the 'fountain of health' on this side of the Atlantic. Three bottles of the Peruvian Syrup have rescued me from the fangs of the fiend Dyspepsia." Dyspeptics should drink from this fountain.

SUFFERERS from Corns, Bunions, Bad Nails and those torturing afflictions, Chilblains, are earnestly recommended to use Dr. J. Briggs, well-known Cultivate for certain relief and positive cure. Sold by Druggist.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF, RENOVATING RESOLVENT, AND REGULATING PILLS.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 24, 1866.

DOCTOR RADWAY & Co.:

DEAR FRIENDS:— • • • My wife blesses these preparations, when she thinks that after three nights and days of suffering of violent pains in the stomach, brought on by overdoses of Quinine, by the use of four drops of "Ready Relief" in some water, she was able to sleep tranquil all night, and the next day she was completely re-established. I have also cured a slave from heart disease with "Ready Relief" and "Pills" and have also cured sore throat, rheumatic pains, toothache, headache, &c., &c. With the "Resolvent" I have cured Erysipelas Skin diseases, &c.

It is my full impression that the "Pills" are the best purgative that can be found, not alone for the facility which they can be taken, but also as they do not cause griping or make you feel sick.

I have a son of five years old now, who took the "Ready Relief" when 4 months old, as he suffered from some irregularity in the bladder, preventing him from making urine. The following was the treatment: 20 drops of "Relief" in a cup of water, and divide it in portions of a tablespoon, which he took every ten minutes which completely cured him. He has since had colic, which I treat in the same way, and also rub the stomach with it (pure).

Major Joaquim Vieira do Silva Pinto, proprietor, in the Cidade Leopoldina, can prove that after more than ten years suffering from Paralysis, through the medium of your remedies he obtained that which he had been deprived, and thought at the time that he would never be able to get, and that was the use of his legs.

You can fully believe that there are a great many people in this vast empire who truly confess that they owe their life to the use of your precious medicines. You can make use of this as you think proper.

I remain, dear friends,

Your obedient, &c.,

(Signed,) SIMAO DE SAMPAIO LEITE

On inquiring for these Remedies ask for Radway's as the country is flooded with imitations. Sold by Druggists and Country Merchants.

See Radway's Almanac for 1870.

GREAT SUFFERING.—How many thousand ladies, both young and old, have passed through great suffering from that terrible demon, Neuralgia, some passing a sleepless night tossing about in great agony, but succeed in getting relief after a few hours of misery, only to be renewed again in a short time with the same unrelenting, excruciating pain. Others have endured this terrible torture for weeks, both day and night, until exhausted with such continual suffering, and almost wishing for the angel of death to relieve them; but hope dawns: a cure has been discovered, a rapid and radical cure; Briggs' Allevantor is the remedy; can be tested, free, at No. 6 King St. West Toronto; is sold by Druggists and Country Merchants everywhere. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors' No. 208 Broadway, New York

NEURALGIA may be distinguished from rheumatism by the intensity of the pain, its short continuance, and its liability to return on the slightest touch; in acute rheumatism there is fever, redness, heat in the part affected, and some swelling, all of which are absent in Neuralgia; in chronic rheumatism the pain is continuous, less severe, and often worse at night. From toothache, by the shortness of the paroxysm, the rapidity of its succession, and the frequent convulsive twitchings. To obtain immediate relief, use Dr. J. Briggs' Allevantor according to directions. Sold by Druggists and Country Dealers. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto.

ALL persons suffering from Piles, Internal, Bleeding, External or itching piles will be immediately relieved and eventually cured by using Dr. J. Briggs' Pile Remedy sold by Druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

STOP AND SEE!

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great Shoshonees Remedy.

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from impurities of the blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, Ontario, of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Comecon Ontario, of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Fapanee, Ontario, of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and as now well-Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

☞Call at the Drug Store and get a Circular of unquestionable certificates on the GREAT SHOSHONEES REMEDY and satisfy yourselves.

Price of Remedy in large pints $1.00.

☞For sale by all Druggists and Dealers in Medicine. Agents for Peterborough—Messrs. Kemp, Coulter, Ormond & Walsh. Ontario Drug Store, and Dr. Taylor and Dr. Bell.

MRS. WINSLOW'S

SOOTHING SYRUP!

FOR CHILDREN TEETHING,

GREATLY facilitates the process of teething by softening the gums, reducing all inflammation—will allay ALL PAIN and spasmodic action, and is

SURE TO REGULATE THE BOWELS.

Depend upon it, mothers, it will give rest to yourselves, and

Relief and Health to your Infants.

We have put up and sold this article for years, and CAN SAY IN CONFIDENCE AND TRUTH of it what we have never been able to say of any other medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak of terms of commendation of its magical effects and medical virtues. We speak in this matter "WHAT WE DO KNOW" after years of experience, AND PLEDGE OUR REPUTATION FOR THE FULFILMENT OF WHAT WE HERE DECLARE. In almost every instance where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside wrapper.

Sold by druggists throughout the world.

Price, only 25 Cents per Bottle.

CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER.

A Family Medicine, well and favorably known for the past ten years, never failing in a single instance to give permanent relief when really used, and we have never known a single case of dissatisfaction where the directions have been properly followed, but on the contrary all are delighted with its operations, and speak in the highest terms of its Virtues and Magical effects.

THE CANADIAN PAIN DESTROYER has won for itself a reputation, as a Blood purifier, alternative stomach tonic, unsurpassed in the history of medical preparations. It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Kidney Complaints, Acid Stomach Phathisic or Asthma, and restores to vital activity the system debilitated by suffering and disease.

Its magical and wonderful success in curing sudden colds, sore throat, coughs, Diptheria, pains in the side, loins and back, neuralgia, toothache, rheumatic and other pains in any part of the body and from whatever cause, has given it a place in every household and is last superseding all other preparations of the kind.

It is also an effectual and prompt remedy for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains, chilblains, cholera morbus, billious cholic, cholera infantum, dysentery, &c.

Price only twenty-five cents per bottle.

DR. A. TRASK'S

MAGNETIC OINTMENT!

CURES CROUP OR RATTLES.

Dr. Dingham, of Utica, New York, says:—"I have used Dr. A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment in my practice a number of years, and can say with pleasure I deem it one of the greatest discoveries of the age for the cure of Inflammation of the Lungs, Inflammation of the Bowels, Inflammatory Rheumatism, and in Child Bed Fever, it operates with perfect success. In cases of Burns, Bruises, Frozen Limbs, it acts like a charm."

Dr. J. P. Kennedy, of Chittenango, N. Y., says:—"It has stood the test true and has not been found wanting Its astonishing cures of inflammation of the Lungs and Croup, and the wonderful success in subsiding the torturing pains of Rheumatism, and relieving Nervous Affections, entitle it to a high rank in the list of Remedies for these complaints."

Dr. A. W. Belding, of Knowlesville, N. Y., says:—"I have used it in several cases of Specific Irritation, and for the worst cases of Piles, and sundry other complaints, and find it a superior article, and well worthy the attention of all."

Purchasers should be sure and ask for Dr. A Trask's Magnetic Ointment, and see that the words "A. Trask's Magnetic Ointment" are on the wrapper.

THE SARSAPARILLA DRINKERS OF YUCATAN.—This singular set of people are descended from the ancient Aztecs of Southern Mexico, and still retain some of the peculiarities which Stephens and Prescott gave of their ancestors. Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co, employ a small army of them in digging Sarsaparilla root. Provided with narrow spades a coil of rope, and a bag of water, they are ready for the forest where the wild banana furnishes them with food, and thick-leaved trees their only shelter. Few of those who find themselves rejuvenated by this product, know how much they are indebted to the toil of these humble laborers, who dig health for thousands of Doctor Ayer's patrons, while they sometimes lose their own, [Boston Commercial.

PILES may be caused by anything that will irritate the lower bowels, producing a determination of blood to the rectum, as drastic cathartics, from the extensive use of which in past years the disease has become very common, habitual constipation, straining at stool, diseases of the liver, much riding on horseback, tight stays, sedentary habits, high living, heating, irritating food, &c. Dr J. Briggs' Medicated Pile Remedy, remarkable for its absorbent excellence, should be used for this painful affliction. All who have tried it do not hesitate to recommend it in the highest terms. Sold by Druggists and country Merchants generally. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., Proprietors, 208 Broadway N.Y., and No. 6 King St. West, Toronto. }

Poetry.

Watching.

Watching when the morning breaketh
Over the mountains cold and grey—
Watching when the morning breaketh
In the last long flush of day;
Watching when the stars look gladly
Over all the moonlit sea,
When the night is silent round us—
Love, for thee

Holy memories stand o'er me
Of the far far distant past;
Fairest visions float before me,
All too bright, too sweet to last.
Watching in the midnight dreary,
Longing thy dear face to see;
Watching till the heart grows weary,
Love, for thee.

Ceaselessly against the window
Beats the dismal plashing rain,
Telling stories weird and wretched
Of what ne'er can come again;
And the night-lamp burneth blearly
On the table, cheerlessly,
And my heart is weary watching,
Love, for thee.

Watching for the lightest footstep
While my soul is deeply stirr'd
By a murmur 'neath the casement,
By a softly spoken word;
And I gaze into the darkness,
Rain and darkness dreamily
Watching, longing, longing, watching,
Love, for thee.

Glad the day suppose the night thee
With its floods of rosy light;
Following the gloomy Winter
Comes the Summer warm and bright.
The light comes to the flowers,
And the leaflet to the tree,
And all is gay in Spring-time,
Love, but me.

The birds will mate them gladly
When the year is in its prime;
The flowers will smell the sweetest
In the happy Summer-time.
I, sad, alone, will watch it—
The wide, the cruel sea—
While its billows bear thee farther,
Love, from me.

Watching all the happy Summer,
When the days are long and bright;
Watching while the Autumn noontide
Fadeth slowly into night;
Watching through the dreary Winter,
When the Spring's first buds I see;
Watching till the heart grows weary,
Love, for thee.

Good Words,

The following is clipped from the Laws of Life: 'Very few ladies know how to appreciate an easy, healthful dress. They think their dresses are loose, when a man or boy put into one as tight would grasp for breath, and feel incapable of putting forth any effort except to break the bands. Ladies are so accustomed the tight fit of dressmakers that they 'fall all to pieces" when relieved of them. They associate the loose dress with a bed or lounge. To be up, they must be stayed up, and to recommend a comfortable dress to them is not to meet a conscious want of theirs. It is a great pity none the less. If they could once know what a luxury it is to breathe deep and full at each respiration, to feel the refreshment which the system takes in by having the blood enlivened and sent bounding through the arteries and veins, to have the aids to digestion which such process gives, to have their own strong, elastic muscles keep every organ in place and themselves erect; it they could for a good while know the blessed luxury, and then to be sent back into the old, stiff, straight jackets, they would fume, and fret and rave in very desperation if they could not get rid of them. As it is, they prefer to languish and suffer dreadfully and die young, and leave all their friends, and their husbands, and their little children, and I do not see any other way but let them be and die till they are satisfied. If only the sinner was the sufferer it would not be worth while to make so great ado about it, but the blighting of future innocent lives which must follow renders the false habits of our women in the highest degree criminal.'

Keep the birthdays religiously. They belong exclusively to and are treasured among the sweetest memories of, home. Do not let anything prevent some token, be it ever so slight to show that it is remembered, Birthdays are great events to children. For one day they feel that they are heroes. The special pudding is made expressly for them; a new jacket, trousers with pockets, or the first pair of boots, is donned, and his brothers and sisters sink into insignificance beside 'Little Charlie,' who is 'six to-day,' and who is soon going to be a man. Farmers who have half a dozen little ones to take care of are apt to neglect birthdays—they come too often. Sometimes they are to busy, and sometimes they can't be bothered; but if they only knew how such souvenirs are cherished by their children years afterwards, when, far away from their heartstore, they have added one more year to the [perhaps] weary round of life, or to wish them, in the good old-fashioned phrase, 'many happy returns of their birthday,' they would never permit any cause to step in between them and a parent's privilege.

Maxims of Bishop Middleton.—Persevere against discouragement. Keep your temper. Employ leisure in study and always some work in hand. Be punctual and methodical in business, and never procrastinate. Never be in a hurry. Persevere self-possession, and do not be talked out of conviction. Rise early, and be an economist of time. Maintain dignity without the appearance of pride; manner is something with everybody, and everything with some. Be guarded in discourse, attentive and slow to speak. Never acquiesce in immoral or pernicious opinions. Be not forward to assign reasons to those who have no right to ask. Think nothing in conduct unimportant and indifferent. Rather suffer than follow examples. Practice strict temperance; and, in all your transactions, remember the final account.

It is very dangerous for either man or woman to marry without love.

Milking whether for human reasons, or in view of pecuniary profit, should be done as far as possible by the same hand.

The Arabs consider white indicative of deficient wind in horses, black as a sign of weak feet; and chesnut as a pledge of soundness and endurance in every respect. Dun or cream-colored horses they consider worthless.

To Clean Gilt Frames.—When the gilt frames of pictures or looking-glasses, or the gilt mouldings of rooms have got specks of dirt upon them, from flies or other causes, they can be cleaned with the white of an egg gently rubbed on with a camel's hair pencil.

INTERDICTING COMMON DRUNKARDS.—One of the best acts passed at the last session of the Quebec Legislature is one for appointing a curator to manage the affairs of any person who becomes a habitual drunkard, and providing for the punishment of those who furnish intoxicating liquor to such interdicted person. There are a good many persons within a circle of 25 miles from this town, to whom and their families it would be a blessing to apply this law. When a man becomes such a slave to strong drink that he cannot control his appetite, it becomes the duty of his friends to place him in circumstances where he cannot obtain liquor, Guilmette the Arthabaska habitant who murdered his wife and child and then barned his house down to conceal the crime, was found guilty at the term of the Court of Queen's Bench, which has just come to a close, and sentenced to be hung on the 29th April. He was defended by Messrs. John Farrell and Willfred Laurier.

The Viceroy of India has applied to the Home Government to send out a civil engineer, possessed of special experience, to be employed in examining the coast of India, with the view of discovering sites for ports.

Graham Bread.—Take one quart of warm water, one teaspoonful of salt, put into a pan; make a stiff batter with flour which has been sifted, to thicken it; knead it well, but do not let it get cold; let it rise again. Then work it down, and put in one teaspoonful of sugar and a piece of butter the size of an egg, knead it half an hour; put in pans and let it rise very light. Bake three-quarters of an hour in a moderate oven.

The Wholesale Propriety of Apples.—There is perhaps no fruit more useful and more wholesome than the apple. Every housekeeper should lay in a good supply of apples, as it is the most economical investment in the whole range of culinaries. A raw, mellow apple is digested in an hour and a half, and a more healthy dessert cannot be placed on the table than baked apples. If eaten at breakfast, with warm bread and butter, they have a good effect on the general system.

A clergyman on his way to church one Sunday was overtaken by a heavy shower of rain. On arriving at the vestry, he exclaimed, rather impatiently;

'I wish I were dry.'

'Never mind" said his colleague, "you will soon be in the pulpit, and there you will be dry enough.'

'How many years have you been dumb?' sympathetically asked a gentleman of a beggar, who pretended to be bereft of speech.

'Five years, sir,' said the imposter, completely taken off his guard.

A yankee editor remarks that he has lately seen a couple of sisters who had to be told everything together, for they were so much alike that they could not be told apart.

A Stupid exquisite, at a recetn wedding wished the bride 'many happy returns of the occasion.'

A man who had filed a petition for a divorce was informed by his counsel that his wife had filed a 'cross petition,' as lawyers call it.

'A cross petition!' exclaimed the husband 'that's just like her. She never did a good thing in her life.'

A lady who had been reading law is in the most fearful and agonizing doubt regarding the legality of her mental. She says 'lotteries are illegal and marriage is the greatest lottery in life.'

"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."

It has been said by a few unfortunate mortals who have striven in vain to gain position of honor and di tinction, that they were not sufficiently appreciated. While such may sometimes be the case, it is generally to be observed that true deserving worth is cordially accepted and honored, whether applied to religion, politics, the arts, or invention. Next to religion, inventions or discovery, has the highest position, for it wields a mighty influence; through its channels nations have overleaped, as if by magic, the bounds of a separation, and united by electric wires, can converse together at momentary will.

Indeed, the diversified efforts of man's genius in these respects, are a source of admiration and gratitude to the whole human race. In medicine, science has revealed during the last quarter of a century, many hidden truths, which had before been considered to be impossibilities. The malignity of pestilential disease is now in a great measure bereft of its terror and even the "insatiate archer," consumption, is arrested in his deadly march, and oftentimes overthrown. Undoubtedly the great rallying power in the treatment of this and other pulmonary diseases, is Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY; and the foregoing allusions are applicable to the memory of its illustrious discoverer. The proof of the efficacy of this great remedy is in its undying reputation. It has stood the test of time, and its fame as a curative of throat and lung complaints has extended to all climes.—Canada Christian Advocate.

DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO. We sometimes hear persons say, 'my horse is sadly out of condition, and I cannot tell either what is the matter with him, or how to get him into better order;' they appear to be ignorant of the fact that there is within their reach a remedy safe, sure, and effectual in all cases. Many persons who deal in horses use large quantities of it, and testify that its effects are most satisfactory. One horse dealer informs us that his horses' condition and appearance are so much improved by its use that they sell more rapidly and for higher prices. The article is 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy.' Nothing else is equal to it for the same purpose. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers

R. R. R. IN BRAZIL.

We refer the reader to the following t estmony in favor of Dr. RADWAY'S REMEDIES, from gentlemen of high character in Brazil. Persons doubting the genuineness of the same are requested to write to the parties, also to the U. S. Consul at Rio, as to the correctness of the statements and status of the writers. For every word not true the sum of one hundred dollars will be paid:

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 22d, 1866.

Messrs. RAYMUNDO C. LAPIE & BRO:

GENTLEMEN:—In answer to your favor of 20th instant, asking my opinion in regards to the efficacy of DR. RADWAY & CO.'S preparations. I am happy to say that I consider the Relief and Pills the best remedies ever known, and to form such an opinion I am obliged to prove it, which I will do willingly viz: I suffered so much from "colic" that when I was attacked it pained me so much that I prefered death to such sufferings, I took everything that was recommended, but it was of no use; at last I took 4 of Radway's Pills, after which the pains were very moderate, and then I thought that I was cured, but the pains were still violent (which I attribute to the negligence in my part in not following it up as directed,) that I was obliged to give in to my friend's request to take sum "Relief," which he gave he gave me in a dose of one tablespoon in a tumbler of water. In the interval of three minutes I felt relieved immediately, and fifteen minutes after the pain ceased. It is three months since I had an attack, and should I feel any symptoms of it I take the "Relief," I will do all in my power to convince the doctors of the good results of these medicaments, so that they may prescribe them.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant,

LUIZ JOSE DA SILVA CAMPOS.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Probably never before in the whole history of medicine has anything won so wide a confidence upon the confidence of mankind, as has the remedy for pulmonary complaints. From boyhood's years, and among most of the communities in which I have risen higher and higher in public estimation, as it has become better known. Its peculiar character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it a favorite and reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for the incipient consumption, and the other grievous affections of the throat and lungs. As a protection against sudden attacks of Croup, it should be kept on hand in every family, and those who are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Although called Consumption is thought incurable, still great numbers of cases where the disease seemed settled, have been completely cured, and the patient restored to sound health by the Cherry Pectoral. So complete is its mastery over the disorders of the Lungs and Throat, that the most obstinate of them yield to it. When nothing else could reach them, under the Cherry Pectoral they subside and disappear.

Singers and Public Speakers find great protection from it.

Asthma is always relieved and often wholly cured by it.

Bronchitis is generally cured by taking the Cherry Pectoral in small and frequent doses.

So generally are its virtues known that we need not publish the certificates of them here, or do more than assure the public that its qualities are fully maintained.

Ayer's Ague Cure,

For Fever and Ague, Intermittent Fever, Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Periodical or Bilious Fever, &c., and indeed all the affections which arise from malarious, marsh, or miasmatic poisons.

As its name implies, it does Cure, and does not ail. Containing neither Arsenic, Quinine, Bismuth, Iron, nor any other mineral or poisonous substance whatever, it in no wise injures any patient. The entire and immediate absence of all such medicines, are liberally beyond account, and we believe it justly entitled to the history of Vegetable Medicine, as unlike is gratified by the acknowledgment we receive of the radical cures effected in obstinate cases of chronic complaints, for which other remedies had wholly failed. Many of these cases have been circumstantially certified, and are known to our agents, and to the people generally, in their localities, will be promptly given. The AGUE CURE daily confounds the arising from humidity and miasm, and is an excellent remedy, stimulating, and strengthening to the system, preventing periodical returns of disease. For Liver Complaints, it has proved a most valuable remedy in many cases, and in others where medicine had failed. PREPARED BY J. C. AYER & CO., Practical Chemists, Lowell, Mass., and sold by all druggists everywhere.

DARLEY'S
Arabian Heave Remedy and Condition Medicine

IS positively superior to any or all other preparations for the cure of Heaves, Coughs, Thick and Broken Wind, and all diseases which affect the Wind of Horses; also, as a Condition Medicine, surpassing everything of the kind; is easy to give, sure to cure, and safe in all cases and at all times, and does not prevent the horse from being worked while using it.

It cleanses the breathing apparatus, by removing from the air-cells the coagulable lymph or that secretion which in Heaves clogs them causing a difficulty in breathing, and by its action on the diseased part, causing the mucous membrane to resume its natural dimensions can equalizing the circulation of the blood, and restoring the distended vessels to their natural size; by its use the horse's appetite is improved all derangements of the digestive organs corrected, softening the skin, and giving to the coat a sleek and shining appearance.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT.

NEW PRINCIPLES OF CURE

Of all Wasting Scrofulous, and Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth, Throat, Ears, Head, LUNGS, Kidneys, Bladder.

THE SKIN MADE PURE, CLEAR, SMOOTH, AND BEAUTIFUL.

Dr. Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent establishes a new principle of Cure of all Chronic diseases, and proves to the medical world that Consumption and other Scrofulous diseases are curable. This fact has been demonstrated in over

One Hundred Cases of Confirmed Consumption,

where one lung in over seventy cases was destroyed and dried up, and in over

500 CASES OF SUSPECTED CONSUMPTION.

Dr. Radway, three years since, published to the world his analysis of the Blood in the several stages of Consumption, showing in every stage, that where tubercles become deposited in the Lungs and other organs, as in the Kidneys, Liver, Spleen, Bronchial Glands, Intestines, establishing Consumption of these organs, the Blood is thin, weak, pale, watery, and is deficient of such constituents as fibrin Albumen, Phosphorus, and does not red or coloring discs of the Blood Corpuscles. In the absence of these constituents in the Blood, the Blood is exhausted of strength and nourishment, and wherever there is inflammation, it deposits tubercles and decomposition, it has not the power to hold in solution its natural constituents, and Ulcers, Boils, Tumors, Cancers, and Virulent Humors are formed, the presence of which causes inflammation, gathering, and consequent suppuration.

This, reader, is the true cause of the formation of Tubercles and Consumption. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory of the cause of Consumption and its kindred diseases, and prepared the Radway's Resolvent to supply the Blood with such constituents it was deficient of, in these conditions of system, and to give it the nourishment and strength to hold its natural constituents in solution. Dr. Radway's theory was published in England, France, Germany, and America, and was seized upon by the scientific men of both hemispheres. From his text medical books have been since published by medical writers, claiming to have discovered the cause of Consumption, but have failed to produce the remedy to cure. Dr. Radway was the first to advance this theory, and the first and only discoverer of a medicine that will cure. In Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent the public have a remedial agent that will cure Consumption and all diseases of the Lungs, Bronchial, Kidneys, Bladder, Womb, Throat, Glands, and Urinary Organs.

In all Wasting Discharges, such as Involuntary Loss of Sperm, Emissions, Weakness of the Genital Glands, Leucorrhea, and all Uterine difficulties, Gravel, Lime Stone, Brick Dust, Uric Acid, and Calculous Concretions, the Sarsaparillian Resolvent is a positive cure. In Dropsy, Diabetes, uncured Venereal, Syphilis in its many forms, it cures when all other medicines fail.

EVERY DAY

an increase of flesh, weight, and strength is experienced. It is Fat-tening, Caloric or Heat-making. It is to the blood what oxygen is to the atmospheric air—it supplies the life principle. It swiftly removes from the surface all Spots, Blemishes, Pustules, Tetters, Rash, Flesh Worms, Sores, &c., imparting a Clear & Beautiful Complexion to all.

CERTIFICATE OF BEAUTY.

The following letter is from a highly-gifted lady, well known in the "circles of our best society":

LAFAYETTE, Feb 25, 1869

I had not much confidence in your SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT. Having been disfigured for the last four months with BLOTCHES and PIMPLES, I received, at all events, to try it, and took TWO TEASPOONFUL three times a day, as directed. In two spells (ONE MONTH since I commenced to use. To-day there is not a BLOTCH, spot, blemish, or defection of any kind on my person.
